F. D. R. ADMITS MAKING SECRET DEAL AT YALTA

Reports Today, but Won't Tell All.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Returning to Washington today with an admission that he had made secret commitments for the United States at Yalta, President Roosevelt launched at once a campaign to obtain popular approval of his international program.

He arranged to report in person to congress and the nation tomorrow on the results of his conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at Yalta in the Russian Crimea. But he will not disclose the secret commitments which he referred to at a press conference aboard ship as understandings that are necessarily secret, tho they probably will become apparent in time.

Talk to Be Broadcast.

The President will appear before congress at a joint session of the house and senate in the house chamber at 11:30 a. m. [Chicago time]. His report, which will be broadcast, will be long and he will deliver it seated because of inability to stand for a protracted period.

His health, however, was reported excellent by his physician, Adm. McIntire, who said Mr. Roosevelt had returned from his five week, 14,000 mile journey to Russia in tip top condition. He was under the weather only once, with a slight cold for a few days.

Having defended before congress his acts at Yalta, the President will concentrate on the adoption of the Dumbarton Oaks world peace plan at the allied nations conference at San Francisco, which he announced upon his return today he will attend in person. He is expected to welcome the delegates from two hemispheres on the opening day of the conference, April 25, in an address designed to bring speedy adoption of the project for a new league of nations to enforce peace.

Plans Drive in Senate.

Thereafter Mr. Roosevelt plans to pilot the Dumbarton Oaks treaty thru the senate, with personal attention given to the rounding up of a two-thirds majority. The scheme to change the Constitution to provide for treaty ratification by a simple majority of both houses has been dropped because of senate opposition. Besides, there would not be time enough in any event, for Mr. Roosevelt expects to get the Dumbarton Oaks treaty to the senate in June.

In between the San Francisco conference and senate consideration of Dumbarton Oaks the President will have another meeting with Churchill on war and peace measures, possibly in London in response

Polish Division by Big 3 Wins in Commons

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Prime Minister Churchill won the overwhelming approval of the house of commons today for the Big Three decision to split up Poland after Foreign Secretary Eden told the house that neither in the 1939 Anglo-Polish treaty nor in secret protocol did Britain guarantee Poland's frontiers.

By 396 votes to 25 commons rejected the motion submitted by a small group of Conservatives—members of Churchill's own party—condemning the proposals regarding the Curzon line and the establishment of a new Polish government. Of 15 speakers in today's debate only four Conservatives supported the motion protesting the government's policy on Poland. Of the 25 members of parliament voting for it, 22 were Conservatives.

Vote of Confidence Today.

Altho the government supporters hailed the vote as a Churchill triumph, the prime minister was taking no chances of the critics breaking loose tomorrow when the government's motion for a vote of confidence comes up. He has arranged to wind up the debate himself.

The burden of the opposition to the Polish settlement decreed by the Big Three was that the proposals violated the Anglo-Polish treaty, the Atlantic Charter, and the treaties between Poland and Russia.

Eden emphasized the territorial advantage Poland would gain as a result of the Yalta decisions and announced that discussions now were going on with the Russians about sending observers from Britain to see what is happening in Poland.

Willing to Guard Elections.

He also announced Britain's willingness to share in supervising elections in Poland and warned members of parliament that to doubt Russia's intentions merely gave the Germans an opportunity of making capital out of dissension between the allies.

Henry Strauss Jr., parliamentary secretary to the ministry of town and country planning, offered his resignation to the prime minister as a protest against the Yalta decisions regarding the future of Poland, it was reported. Strauss decided to withdraw his support of the government, it was said, after hearing Eden's defense of the policy.

LOST LAND MUST BE RECAPTURED, SAYS GOEBBELS

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Reichsminister Goebbels told the German people tonight that "we will rather die than capitulate" and declared that Germany must and would retake the lost territories in the east.

In an advance text of a speech by the propaganda minister transmitted by Transocean, Goebbels vowed greater areas of Britain would be shelled by V-weapons in the near future. "The war is by no means ended yet," he said. He declared the nation must economize more than ever before and that armament supply must be simplified and concentrated.

[A broadcast by the German DNB agency indicated that Germans would find nothing in their newspapers today except the text of this speech. Publishers were ordered in the dispatch to disregard regulations limiting size of Thursday papers to two pages in order to accommodate the text.]

REPORT WRECK OF PASSENGER FLYER IN OHIO

Steubenville, O., Mar. 1 [Thursday]—(AP).—An eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train, reported to be the crack "Spirit of St. Louis," was reported wrecked just outside a tunnel 12 miles west of Steubenville early today.

Samuel Wood, Pennsylvania passenger agent here, said he understood at least three Pullmans and the club car overturned. One of the Pullmans reportedly turned turtle in tunnel No. 8 and the club car was said to have crashed thru the side of a bridge into swollen Cross creek.

Hello Spring! Birds Pass Up Florida for Us

Up from Haiti, Cuba, and Santo Domingo, the lands of Calypso songs, the feathered choristers are coming. Paunchy warblers are bobbing in blossoming orange trees in Miami yards. In suburban Coconut Grove the chuckwill's widow swoops over the orchid trees and adds her extra note to the songs of her cousins, the whippoorwills.

So many ducks and hawks already have stopped over for food at Lake Okeechobee in central Florida that Homer Rhode, state conservation officer, believes spring must be advancing swiftly on the north. The birds are not arriving here much ahead of schedule but they are not lingering as long as usual.

Plovers Due Any Day.

Mallards, blue wing teal, widgeons, blue bills, and ring necks have swept in, in unprecedented numbers. Soon the golden plover will come soaring in from the Argentine and swing up the Mississippi valley to its nest north of the Arctic circle.

A few straggling pin tails and an occasional canvas back are paddling on the waters of the lake and on the canal which flows alongside the Tamiami trail.

Blackbirds in Cypress.

Meandering migrant robins and woodpeckers, en route north, are drilling into oranges.

It has been a warm winter for birds which left cool Canada for sunny South America and the West Indies as long ago as last July. Now they are streaking north, rested and strengthened by the southern sun.

HOPKINS FLOWN TO MAYO CLINIC FOR CHECKUP

Rochester, Minn., Feb. 28 (AP).—A nutritional condition which recurred while he was abroad has brought Harry Hopkins, Presidential assistant, back to the hospital here for observation and checkup, the Mayo clinic announced tonight.

Hopkins, who went abroad in advance of President Roosevelt and later with him attended the Yalta conference, was flown here late Tuesday in an army transport plane. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

The clinic bulletin said:

"Harry Hopkins has returned for recheck examination and observation. During his recent trip abroad there was a slight recurrence of a nutritional condition he has had for several years. Preliminary examination discloses no complications."

Town Hungry for Pork Chops Has Its Fill!

Andover, Mass., Feb. 28 [Special].—They're calling Police Chief George Dane the Pied Piper of Andover today because he devised a way to rid the town of pigs, which for the last three days held the city in a state of siege. Take it from any of the 11,000 citizens hereabouts, there's nothing worse than a pack of hungry porkers on the loose.

The porcine invasion stemmed from the blizzard three weeks ago which brought the heaviest snowfall in 15 years and marooned 100 prize porkers in a field on the Anthony Ryah farm on the city's outskirts. The pigs—huge animals fattened and ready for market — burrowed into snowdrifts for warmth and farm workers couldn't find them. Cut off from food, the trapped beasts tunneled thru the snow and three days ago broke onto an open highway leading to the city.

Children Endangered.

Meeting the charging pack of squealing animals headon, a group of school children scrambled onto porches, burst into houses, vaulted fences, and climbed trees.

Foiled of human prey, the hungry beasts began eating each other, the police chief said. Several of the animals killed each other in this manner or became so maimed that police shot them in the streets.

Dane ordered his policemen to undertake a roundup. They found the maddened porkers unreceptive to police methods. Until today only a few had been corraled.

Chief Is Inspired.

The chief got his Pied Piper inspiration yesterday, but found himself hampered by legal hurdles. A city ordinance prohibits the use of city equipment to plow out private roads. From the nearest street to the Ryan farm is a private road—a quarter of a mile long. The city attorney gave him an opinion the ordinance was pork barrel legislation and might be ignored in an emergency.

So Dane commandeered a snow plow from the department of public works and ordered a truck to follow in its wake with food to be tossed out as bait. He rounded up the champion hog callers of the community and put them into action as plow and truck started the homeward trek.

At nightfall today, Dane said, 90 of the porkers were back in their pens. He said half a dozen had been slain by police and that the remaining four had indubitably met the fate of the Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat.

"I'll take roast beef, rare," he sighed as he sat down to dinner.

Turkey and Egypt Join Roll of Allied Nations

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Turkey and Egypt became members of the allied nations today. This raised to 44 the number of states expected to attend the San Francisco conference on world security organization. This virtually completed the list of countries which by declaring war on one or more of the axis powers have made themselves eligible for participation in the April 25 meeting.

ROLLS BEYOND MAIN TOWN; 2D AIR BASE SEIZED

Over Half of Island Captured.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 1 [Thursday]—(AP).—A big marine push on little Iwo Island on Wednesday won most of the island's vital central plateau with gains that one general said went far toward deciding the 10 day old campaign.

The marines seized complete control of a second air field. They rolled beyond the island's principal town of Motoyama. They reached a third uncompleted air field.

They gained more than 500 yards all along the line. They advanced up to 800 yards thru the best developed set of fortifications encountered anywhere in the Pacific. They counted 4,784 enemy dead.

The count of enemy dead covered a period up to 6 p. m. Monday. Inasmuch as a previous bulletin listed 3,568 Japanese dead up to noon the same day, the new report suggested the killing of more than 1,000 Japanese in a six hour period.

Hold Over Half of Isle.

Well over half of the island, which Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith expects to fall shortly, is in marine hands.

In response to a hurry up call, transports flown from the Marianas dropped special equipment to the marines on the captured southern airfield. A dispatch from an expeditionary flagship at Iwo, said the Leathernecks already had crossed the central plateau in places and were moving downhill for the first time.

Wednesday's impressive gains snapped the back of Japanese resistance which had compelled the marines to measure gains by feet and yards for five days.

On the west shore, Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th division, which had been stalled while the other two divisions inched ahead Tuesday, drove northward, paced by tanks.

Seize Fighter Air Field.

In the center, Maj. Gen. Erskine's 3d division, finally capturing the Japanese fighter air field, plunged past Motoyama town and reached the edge of the third air field.

On the east side, Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' 4th division hurled back bitterly resisting enemy forces.

Adm. Nimitz announced the progress in a bulletin this morning which pointed up the stiff type of fight still raging by reporting enemy prisoners total 10—an average of one a day.

FILIPINOS HATE JAPS' SLAPS BUT LAUGH AT ANTICS

[This is the first of a series of three articles describing life inside the Philippines under Japanese occupation.]

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 28.—When Premier Tojo of Japan, wearing six rows of ribbons on his chest, made his celebrated visit to Manila on May 5, 1942, Filipino patriots watched with interest as he climbed with typical Japanese pompousness into an automobile to ride 200 yards to give a speech.

After the speech had been translated by interpreters, Tojo stepped from the platform as his car knifed thru the crowd to pick him up. Instead of riding, however, he started off afoot, waving and smiling, occasionally stopping to shake the hand of a surprised native. He made his amazingly democratic progress back to his hotel. There was a scatter of cheers in his wake.

"Our hearts sank when we heard that cheering," said a prominent Filipino today. "We thought the Japs at last were learning some sense. But it turned out to be the first and last diplomatic gesture they ever made in the Philippines."

Fail in Human Decencies.

Failure in the ordinary human decencies, which are the basis of diplomacy, wasn't the only Japanese shortcoming in their more than three years of Philippine domination.

Now that the first phase of the campaign for the liberation of the islands has ended with the final mopping up of Manila, it is possible to review these years of occupation objectively on the basis of fairly complete information.

The story of Japanese atrocities, which would require a book to cover, has been well documented in recent weeks and will not be retold here. Instead Japanese administration as seen from the inside during the war years will be described.

When the Japanese military machine roared down from the north in December, 1941, it was fully prepared to take over Philippine economy. This is what happened:

Motor transportation was confiscated right and left. Gasoline was declared contraband and the death penalty was assessed for concealing it. Railways and shipping were taken over. Hardware, automotive, and clothing stocks were ordered inventoried and then requisitioned. Banks and newspapers were closed.

Homes Are Commandeered.

Dwellings were commandeered and citizens were not allowed to remove their furniture. Such functions as highway maintenance and garbage collection ceased. Stores closed as their stocks dwindled.

Construction materials and manufactured items, including clothing, went off the market. Hotels were seized and filled with geisha girls for the entertainment of the military. Schools were ordered to teach Nippongo—the Japanese language.

Troops methodically searched every home for radio sets, firearms, and hoarded rice. When they found anything else to their liking they

Charge Felony in Killing of Pup

When Antonio Fradet, 46, owner of a building at 1719 S. Springfield av., went to court yesterday he was charged with cruelty to an animal, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of from $3 to $200. On arriving in the Fillmore st. court of Judge Michael Tremko he was arrested on a new charge: Cruelly killing a dog—a felony, the maximum punishment for which is imprisonment for one to three years and a fine of $1,000.

Mrs. Catherine Plum, 70, who lives with her daughter in the building owned by Fradet, charged him with using a club on Feb. 9 in beating a 7 week old German shepherd pup, Lassie, and jumping on it until it was dead. She said he declared he would kill any other dog brought to the building by any tenant. The landlord threw the pup's body into the furnace, Mrs. Plum said.

Lesser Charge Filed First.

Upon her first complaint to the police Mrs. Plum said she was advised to swear out a warrant on the lesser charge. The Humane society and the Anti-Cruelty society volunteered to assist in the prosecution.

Fradet appeared before Judge Tremko with a lawyer on Feb. 20. The defendant asked and was given a continuance. Some one in authority, Mrs. Plum said, remarked in court:

"A lot of fuss is being made about a $2 dog."

Bail Fixed at $1,000.

On Monday Mrs. Plum, who is feeble and nearly blind, appeared before Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Felony court. Judge Dougherty issued the new warrant, fixing bail at $1,000, and it was served on Fradet yesterday when he went to court. First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley, when advised of the proceedings, asked that the first charge again be continued and the case transferred to Judge Dougherty's court for trial March 7.

It was explained that the case of Lassie may be referred to the grand jury for indictment and trial in the Criminal court.

YANKS SHATTER RIVER BARRIER NEAR COLOGNE

Tanks Pour Across 3 Bridgeheads.

PARIS, Feb. 28 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower's rampant western front offensive smashed to within six and one-half miles of the great industrial city of Cologne today with the United States 1st army making three crossings of the shallow Erft river near Modrath.

There were indications that the Germans were being forced to withdraw from their positions west of the Rhine as tanks and infantry of Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army went crashing thru the main defenses guarding Cologne and other allied forces pressed their assault all along the front.

Hodges' army, which has captured more than 100 towns in six days, overran five more today and cleared many others which had been bypassed earlier. Modrath, six and one-half miles from Cologne on the main highway from Dueren, was seized as infantry and armor cracked the Erft river line, the last natural barrier before the Rhine.

Blow Up Modrath Bridge.

The Germans blew the bridge at Modrath, but the Yanks plunged across the Erft river, which is 20 to 60 yards wide there, and also forced the adjacent Erft canal. Farther north a bridge was captured intact and engineers hastily built another, enabling armor to cross at both points.

The columns smashing toward Cologne were utilizing the Dueren-Cologne highway thru Modrath and also the Autobahn [super highway] thru Sindorf, about two miles to the north. Still another force was astride the Juelich-Cologne highway.

The famous 1st infantry division was among units participating in the drive on Cologne, now clearly within sight of the advancing forces and under heavy fire of American artillery.

The Nazis threw three counter-attacks against the bridgeheads during the day, but all were repulsed by 1st army infantry, tanks, and tank destroyers.

Making Rearguard Fight.

As doughboys and armor deepened the bridgeheads across the Erft and additional forces poured up to the stream on a wide front, indications mounted that the Nazis were making only a rearguard fight before the Rhine and were incapable of halting the powerhouse American drive.

Pilots reported columns of enemy transport streaming toward the Rhine and an American officer said the enemy was withdrawing his artillery toward the broad stream which guards the heart of Germany.

Thousands of German prisoners were being taken, all the fight knocked out of them by six days of ceaseless battering. It was the greatest rout since Normandy.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army continued to close around the big railway center of Muenchen-Gladbach, but the exact movements of these troops remained masked behind a security news black-out. Front dispatches said Simpson's doughboys were advancing with great speed in some places and slowly at others. The Germans threw in King Tiger tanks, their latest and most powerful armor, in an attempt to halt the Americans.

Fighting in Outskirts.

"Task Force Church," [named for an officer], the lightning column of infantry and armor which drove 10 miles yesterday in a flanking thrust past Muenchen-Gladbach and which threatened to plunge into the heart of the Ruhr industrial region, was reported to have met stiffening resistance today. The extent of its progress beyond Waldniel, which it reached last night, was not revealed.

Fighting was reported in progress in the outskirts of Muenchen-Gladbach, nine miles from Duesseldorf and probably the biggest German rail hub west of the Rhine.

Thousands of German civilian refugees were reported streaming into Duesseldorf ahead of the 9th army's avalanche.

Enemy resistance stiffened against the Canadian 1st army, which was held to an advance of about a mile in the north and was within four miles of Xanten. Even so, it was reported Field Marshal von Rundstedt had withdrawn some of the German defenders from this end of the front with the apparent intent of trying to bolster the enemy line in the center, where the industrial metropolis of Duesseldorf was being immediately threatened as well as Cologne.

At last reports, the American 9th and Canadian armies were less than 30 miles apart. A swift junction might trap the 10 divisions opposing the Canadian army and those strung along the Maas [Meuse] around the Dutch towns of Roermond and Venlo.

The Germans still have 11 bridges and 25 ferry crossings along the Rhine between Wesel in the north and Cologne in the south. These would appear ample for a big scale withdrawal, but they are bound to be hazardous avenues of escape under the scourge of allied planes. The Rhine is from 1,300 to 1,700 feet wide at Cologne, and 3,270 feet wide at Emmerich, opposite the Canadians.

Patton 5 Miles from Trier.

Keeping pace with the main American onslaught east of the Roer, Lt. Gen. Patton's American 3d army completed occupation of the big road junction of Bitburg at the center of its 50 mile front and, farther south, drove within five miles of ancient Trier from the southeast.

After taking Bitburg, the 5th infantry division pushed on to the Kyll river, five miles to the southeast, taking five villages on the way. The column approaching Trier, one of the Germans' strongest fortress cities, fought into Pellingen. An armored division made a new crossing of the Pruem river and took six towns.

More than 3,800 warplanes of five allied tactical air commands bombed and strafed enemy positions ahead of the ground forces. Despite intensification of the air attack the Germans seemed to be making more use of tanks and heavy artillery today than yesterday and the fighting at many points was savage. American casualties, after six days of fighting, still were regarded officially as light and averaged one killed for every nine wounded.

HERR PFEIFFER'S MANOR STANDS —BUT AMID RUINS

War Rolls Across Nazis' Fertile Lands.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY OUTSIDE ELSDORF, Germany, Feb. 27 [Delayed].—Herr Pfeiffer was a lover of the better things of life. But the long columns of tanks and tank destroyers, swarms of trucks, half tracks and jeeps, long lines of huge self-propelled guns and infantry which rolled on eastward over his broad acres had little regard for Herr Pfeiffer or his country home.

Herr Pfeiffer was not at home as we strolled thru his sprawling stone mansion which sat back in a forest glade at the head of a square formed by his outbuildings.

A forlorn gander hissed angrily in the courtyard, possibly at the sudden separation from his three fat wives. Their white feathers flying, the three geese were being carried purposefully away by an enterprising armored forces chef.

Big Guns Firing All Around.

The sound of big guns—German and ours—made conversation among us all but impossible. On the wide veranda we listened to the incoming whistle of shells and ducked involuntarily as they landed several hundred yards away on the outskirts of Berrendorf.

Columns of smoke, black and white, invaded the sky from Berrendorf, Giesendorf, and Elsdorf, off to our left. We could hear our tanks firing in Berrendorf, and then would come the crump of German artillery landing near them.

Despite the surge of battle, which had rolled across his estate, Herr Pfeiffer's home somehow had been spared. A stone Cupid in a fountain, its lips fixed in a frozen smile, had been chipped. One or two window frames were minus their glass from the concussion of the big guns.

Clothes as He Left Them.

If Herr Pfeiffer were to have returned he would have seen intact his huge oil paintings, with their full bosomed, flaxen haired German women. His tapestries were there, too. His clothes were as he left them. On the wall of the stairway to the second floor his collection of satiric English hunting prints remained, as did his secret library of English books tucked into a cupboard along with copies of war posters.

He would have found his home a sanctuary in the desolate countryside. Not far from his door our jeep had passed a bullet riddled German helmet lying beside a water stained edition of Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

Other German helmets protruded from the mud and water of roadside ditches, where prisoners had cast them before surrendering. What had once been meadows and lush fields were torn and ripped with shells' craters and gun pits and slashed by tracks of hundreds of vehicles.

Alongside Herr Pfeiffer's roads, too, were white tapes and warning signs: "Mines."

Little Time for Burials.

And the German dead were there, too, because the pace of the armored advance had been too swift to allow time for burial.

Herr Pfeiffer, if he ever returns, probably will find his lovely old mansion standing, the only building in the countryside unscarred by shell or bomb. It will stand almost as a monument, for the entire Rhenish landscape will never be the same. The Germans chose to defend it house by house. And just as stubbornly, house by house, and village by village, the advancing 1st army has scarred this once fertile land.

In a village near the mansion civilians crowded like cattle around a huge bowl of hot soup and a table load of potatoes and hard tack. At the doorway Sgt. George Delappe, 537 Deming pl., Chicago, watched to see that none tried to sneak away. His charges were some 250 German civilians, including numerous young men and children, refugees from a burned village. They were receiving their first meal in two days, food obtained from captured stores by military government teams of the armored force.

The Ruhr Basin, Goal of Allies

75% of Industries

The fabulously rich Ruhr area, which allied armies are approaching if they have not already invaded, is slightly smaller than the state of Delaware, but in 1942 it cradled 75 per cent of all German war industries.

The National Geographic society describes the Ruhr area as roughly comprising a triangle anchored by the Rhine cities of Cologne and Wesel and the great rail center of Hamm, 55 miles east of Wesel and 233 miles southwest of Berlin.

The Ruhr basin, however, spills over west of the Rhine to include the cities of Muenchen-Gladbach and Krefeld.

The Ruhr is densely populated. Five million Germans lived there before Hitler started his rearmament program. Its industries are based largely on the immense coal deposits, estimated to contain 90 per cent of Germany's reserves and half of continental Europe's.

Besides the great armaments works, the Ruhr is packed with smoke blackened cities which produce finished steel, chemicals, pig iron, textiles, synthetic oil, high octane gasoline, rayon, drugs, plastics, dyes, bricks, glass, pottery, and other products.

Some of Europe's and Germany's greatest cities are in the Ruhr. These include Cologne, population 768,000; Essen, 659,871; Duesseldorf, 540,000; Dortmund, 537,000; Duisburg, 431,256; Wuppertal, 398,099; Gelsenkirchen, 313,003; Bochum, 303,288; Oberhausen, 191,305; Krefeld, 169,485; Solingen, 138,587; Muelheim, 136,805; Muenchen-Gladbach, 127,000, and Remscheid, 103,437.

Food for Captives Piles Up Awaiting Nazi Rail Repair

LONDON, Feb. 28.—An estimated million food parcels for war prisoners in Germany, accumulated at Geneva, Switzerland, are being held up by dislocation of the German transport system, it was reported here tonight. Members of parliament have suggested highway convoys carry the food to prisoners, or that the supplies be parachuted into the prison camps.

WITH THE UNITED STATES 9TH ARMY, Feb. 28.—As American troops cut deeper gashes in the German defenses and sweep farther toward the Ruhr, there is no longer any front line. The Nazi defensive system has been shattered wherever we hit it and fighting is going on wherever our assault teams encounter Nazi kampfgruppen [fighting units] as they grope back and forth on the Cologne plain.

Field entrenchments dug during the winter are being overrun everywhere without difficulty for two reasons: First, the German lines are bolstered not by concrete pillboxes but only by plowed earthworks, and, second, the enemy lacks troops in units to man positions and is vainly tossing in scattered elements to block us.

1,500 Germans Captured.

Fifteen hundred prisoners were brought in between midnight and 3 o'clock this afternoon with more coming in and thousands of civilians were flocking into the villages from scattered farms to add to the problems of the already overwhelmed military government.

The rule against fraternizing with the enemy is jeopardized by fundamental difficulties which arise when armies stream into populated areas and engage in battles, when houses, supplies, foodstuffs, and live stock are shattered, and when the populace—elderly men, women, and children—wanders about shelterless, foodless, and terror stricken.

Rudolf Stewart of Chicago, a member of an armored column, and Sgt. Edward Wilk, 1031 N. Wolcott av., Chicago, asked whether "adopting a German dog is fraternizing." Stewart said he had "found a pup in the last town back that has followed me ever since and now I've got to feed him."

Houses in all the towns I entered today had table cloths, sheets, and napkins, towels and even nightshirts and petticoats hanging from sticks in the windows and scared faces stared from doorways.

"That's their signal that they have surrendered," said Sgt. Russel Sands of St. Paul, Minn.

Long Way from Home.

James Cherry, a tanker, just had time to yell, "I live eight miles from Chicago" when his vehicle lurched ahead.

I discovered Sgt. Raymond Hacki of 2122 Belle Plaine av., Chicago, interrogating prisoners. He said:

"We bagged a lot more grenzpolitzei [frontier, or customs, inspectors]. Hitler just gave them carbines and sent them to fight as infantry."

Lt. Walter Koch, 8028 N. Navajo st., Milwaukee, Wis., asked THE TRIBUNE to tell his folks "hello" but was too busy directing the stringing of telephone wire to compose a message.

NAZIS CUT FOOD RATIONS AGAIN, SAYS BROADCAST

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—German food rations were cut again today because of the "necessity for feeding refugees from the occupied areas of the east," the German agency DNB announced in a radio dispatch. A week ago a 12½ per cent reduction was announced.

In addition to making rations for an eight week period cover nine weeks, the government ordered a reduction in bread, meat, cheese, and fat allocations.

Farmers were ordered to surrender one-fourth of the potatoes which they normally had been allowed to keep for themselves.

BOMBERS ATTACK SIX RAIL AND OIL TARGETS IN REICH

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Berlin was attacked tonight for the ninth consecutive night by R. A. F. Mosquito bombers which dropped two-ton blockbusters. This brought to a close a full month of one of the greatest aerial offensives of the war. During the day 2,000 allied war planes made six smashes at rail and oil targets in western Germany. The United States 8th air force lost three bombers and four fighters in these attacks.

Attacking for the 16th straight day, 8th air force Fortresses and Liberators bombed railway yards at Kassel, Soest, Schwerte, Hagen, and Siegen, in and near the Ruhr. Escorting fighters and fighter bombers on the way back made low level strafing attacks up and down the western battle front.

R. A. F. heavy bombers and their escort battered a benzol plant near Gelsenkirchen. Warplanes from the United States 15th and 12th air forces in Italy gave the Brenner pass rail line one of its heaviest poundings.

TWO MORE U. S. SUBMARINES ARE REPORTED LOST

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Two United States submarines, the Escolar and the Shark, are overdue from patrol and presumed lost. The navy, in announcing this today, did not identify the operations area. The vessels were of 1,525 tons, a type which normally carries about 65 officers and men. Next of kin of casualties have been notified.

The announcement raised to 39 the number of submarines lost from all causes since the start of the war, including four sunk, 33 overdue and presumed lost, and two destroyed to prevent capture.

Comdr. William J. Millican, Coronado, Cal., was skipper of the Escolar, and Comdr. Edward N. Blakely, West Los Angeles, Cal., skipper of the Shark. The Shark was the second submarine bearing that name lost since the war began. Both of the latest losses were new ships.

DENIES ARMY WILL SPEED V-E DAY RELEASES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Testimony by Veterans Administrator Hines that the war department plans to release 200,000 to 250,000 soldiers monthly after Germany's defeat was described as "without foundation" today by War Secretary Stimson.

Stimson said in a statement that the basic elements in the war department's demobilization plan were made public last September 6 and have not been changed.

Hines made his statement in testimony before the house appropriations committee recently.

Said Stimson:

"When hostilities cease in Europe, the war department intends to marshal against the Japanese every soldier and every item of equipment that can be used effectively to speed our final victory."

This means, he added, that shipping priority will be given to the transfer of men and materials to the Pacific. He said that all speed consistent with the military situation will be observed in returning men who can be released from the army overseas.

"But," he added, "any suggestion that large numbers will be coming home for discharge immediately after the fighting stops in Europe can only lead to cruel disappointment."

Hines had no comment on Stimson's statement.

NEW ROMANIAN CABINET NEAR, MOSCOW SAYS

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Moscow radio said tonight the resignations of the entire Romanian cabinet had been received by King Michael, who immediately began consultations aimed at formation of a new government.

The resignation of Premier Nicolae Radescu, following a series of bloody demonstrations against his regime, was announced by the Bucharest radio. The Radescu government had been under criticism from Russia. It took office last Dec. 5.

Earlier dispatches from Moscow had said Andrei Vishinsky, soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, had arrived in the Romanian capital for a first hand inspection of the situation.

STRAND HONORS THE LITTLE GUY WHO WINS WARS

Tribune Writer Tells of Unsung Hero's Role.

It's the little guys in the run-of-the-mill outfits nobody ever hears of who win wars, William Strand, Tribune war corresponent, told their fathers and mothers over W-G-N last night.

In a broadcast recounting his 17 months overseas, Strand paid tribute to the boys with the pick and shovel who keep the supply roads repaired behind the lines; the Negro truck drivers who kept trucks moving across the Anzio beachhead, regardless of the hail of shells and bombs, with no chance for spectacular heroism; to the green troops flanking the crack divisions which stemmed the German breakthru in Belgium, fighting tanks with bazookas and rifles until they died.

Greatest Story of All.

"To me, at least, the reactions of the little, unsung, anonymous guys who are the foot soldiers and the engineers and the transport drivers and the file closers in the new divisions—that's the greatest story of all," Strand said. "They're just plain damn wonderful.

"For instance, I was on the beachhead at Anzio. Every day, day after day, our landing ships would come in, trucks aboard, loaded and manned. The ships would be bombed coming in. They'd be shelled on the beach. The whole area was under constant fire.

"Well, our supplies had to come onto that beachhead. And they came thru. The trucks were driven by Negro soldiers. Those boys would take it all the way up to Anzio. No quitting, no complaints, no glamor, and no glory. Those drivers had a job to do, and they did it. It was the simple, immense dignity of human courage.

Gives Another Example.

"Another example: Wherever you go, you'll find engineering troops at work on the roads. I don't mean in the forward zones, where the engineers are as dashing and colorful as any outfit. But back of the lines, where ordinary guys work with pick and shovel, burdened with rifles they'll likely never use, working at the endless task, because war traffic pounds roads to pieces.

"Yet that little guy on the road will take heat, and cold, and rain, and blizzards. He'll go thru bombing and strafing. He'll clean up the wreckage, and start all over again. And then, when the little fellow goes into action, you find out something else. I found it out in the battle of the Ardennes.

"Von Rundstedt hit us with his Sunday punch on Dec. 16. He had things his own way at the start. I was at the headquarters of the veteran 1st division, whose attitude was expressed in reply to my question, 'Are the Germans coming thru?'

They Fought Anyway.

"'There's nobody comin' thru here,' I was told. 'This is the 1st division.' And they didn't come thru there. But they came thru in other places.

"The full fury of the attack burst on some green divisions, among them the 106th and the 99th. They weren't famous outfits. They were little guys who'd been in the lines only five or six days, and with no actual combat experience. Those kids were overrun and cut off.

"But they fought anyway. They tackled Tiger tanks with bazookas and grenades, which is like standing off a rhinoceros with an air rifle.

"For them it wasn't a glorious action. For them it was a sickening whirlpool of blood and weariness, confusion and death. Yet to me, the story of those green divisions is all the greater.

Not for Glory or Conquest.

"I've had a letter from a mother in Indiana. Her son died in action with a very fine division. She asked me if I had known him. I hadn't.

"Yet there's one thing I can say to her and to the beloved of so many who are fighting and dying out there. And that is: Your boy, and all the other boys, have done more than we ever dreamed any one could do. They didn't do it for ballyhoo or glory or conquest. American men are wonderful and brave and fine in war because that's the way they were before they went to war."

Aluminum Box Cars on Display

Will Cut Expenses

Aluminum box cars such as the three which are on public display by THE TRIBUNE will increase the earnings of railroads after the war by hauling more freight than heavier steel cars at less operating expense, transportation engineers predicted yesterday. They said railroads will be able to eliminate one train in 10 by replacing steel equipment with aluminum rolling stock.

The three exhibition cars, the first built in the United States, are on a siding in Illinois st. just east of the Michigan av. lower level. They may be inspected without charge from 10 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. thru Sunday.

Each of the three was built for a different purpose. They were designed by the Reynolds Metals company, and built by the Mount Vernon Car Manufacturing company, Mount Vernon, for the Rock Island, the Alton, and the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroads. The Rock Island car weighs 42,900 pounds, and can haul freight at speeds of more than 85 miles an hour.

OWI FOOTS BILL FOR U. S. TOUR BY FRENCH WRITERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—A group of eight French journalists will visit Washington Saturday on the last lap of a five week sightseeing tour of the United States. The office of war information said today that the expense of the tour of cities, war plants, shipyards, and military bases, estimated at several thousand dollars, will be borne by American taxpayers.

The journalists, six men and two women, will stay in Washington a week before leaving for a similar, but shorter, tour of Canada as guests of the dominion. While in Washington the party will be quartered in the swank Statler hotel.

The tour was conceived, sponsored and arranged by the OWI for the announced purpose of enabling the Frenchmen to report back to their countrymen on "America at war." An OWI spokesman said that agency is paying all expenses, except those in Canada, from appropriations made for operations.

The journalists were selected by the French Press federation, an association of newspapers, and approved by the French government. Since the start of the tour from New York Jan. 29, they have visited Philadelphia, Pa., Baltimore, Md., Knoxville, Tenn., New Orleans, La., San Antonio, Tex., Los Angeles, Hollywood, and San Francisco, Cal., Wichita, Kan., Chicago, and Detroit, Mich. They will visit Schenectady, N. Y., and Pittsburgh, Pa., before coming to Washington.

British Firms May Make Own Deliveries March 31

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—After March 31 British firms may make deliveries of merchandise purchased from them, it was decided today. After that date pooled deliveries will cease. The war transport ministry called this "a return to peace conditions."

HOUDE WINNER SO FAR IN SUIT TO UNSEAT HIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houde, the most unpredictable man in Canadian politics, was elected last Dec. 11. He had been released from an internment camp last summer after being held since August, 1940, for urging his fellow French Canadians to disobey the federal national registration ruling.

Wasn't in Montreal.

Suit to unseat Houde was filed soon after his election in the name of the truck driver, Leo Dore. In his petition, Dore asserts that Houde and his agents were guilty of irregular practices in his election campaign. He alleges also that Houde did not fulfill a requirement of the municipal electoral act, which provides that all candidates for office be residents of the city for three years previous to the election.

At present, the proceedings are enmeshed in a maze of legal red tape—the current question being whether the mayor can legally force Dore to disclose who put up the $1,000 deposit required in the suit.

Wins Opening Round.

In a preliminary skirmish, Adhemar Raynault, former Montreal mayor and Houde's opponent in the December voting, was asked on the witness stand whether he supplied the $1,000. He refused to answer and his refusal was upheld by the Supreme court. The case was twice presented in the Court of Appeal in an effort to upset the Superior court, but to no avail.

This week the case will be before the court on another point. The mayor will contend that the charge against him that he was not properly a candidate is vague. In legal parlance, he will "take exception to the form."

Those observers close to the situation believe that the litigation will continue on for months, while Houde continues to function as Montreal's mayor.

RED CROSS' WAR FUND CAMPAIGN TO START TODAY

Fifteen hundred leaders of the Red Cross 1945 war fund campaign for Cook and Du Page counties and the southern half of Lake county met at dinner in the Stevens hotel last night. The drive will be opened today and continue thru March 31 with a goal of $11,300,000.

Colby M. Chester of Washington, D. C., chairman of the national campaign to obtain 200 million dollars; Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the Chicago drive, and Boatswain's Mate 2d Class Gene Oxley, 21, of Indianapolis, Ind., were the principal speakers.

"The Red Cross appeals for the means to mirror home to those far away, to rest and feed them, and to smooth away their worries," Chester said. "The extent to which the Red Cross can do these things depends upon you workers and those assisting you."

"American men fighting away from home will need this year all the support we can give them," Kennelly said. "The Red Cross feels assured that Chicago will reach its quota speedily."

Ike Warns People of Trier to Prepare for Shelling

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—A warning from Gen. Eisenhower to the German civilians of Trier to prepare for heavy artillery shelling was broadcast by the Luxemburg radio tonight as Berlin commentators reported a rapidly developing pincer movement by the United States 3d army against that important Moselle valley strongpoint. The message told the Germans to resist evacuation by the Nazis, to find shelter in cellars and caves around the city and to take with them enough food and drink to last out the battle.

JAPS STAY AWAY, SPOIL FUN, U. S. PILOTS COMPLAIN

See Few Planes at Tokyo, Iwo, and Chichi.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH ADM. MITSCHER' CARRIERS OFF IWO, Feb. 20 [Delayed].—Jap air opposition hereabouts remains conspicuous by its absence and the complaint in our ready rooms is that the absent Nips are spoiling all the fun. Since our big strike on Tokyo last Friday and Saturday our boys have rained destruction on Chichi and Iwo Islands, yet there are many who participated in attacks on all three targets who have yet to see their first air borne Jap plane.

Yesterday after refueling, our Essex class carrier moved in to provide direct support of the marines landing on Iwo. All day today our pilots have made the milk run, delivering bombs and strafing fire on targets designated by the ground fighters. They report the only opposition appears to be small arms fire. Unlike Chichi Island, where the flak was intense, Iwo has been almost completely without ack-ack.

Shoots Down "Gardens."

Ensign W. E. Hardy, 25, Corning, Cal., was one of several flyers who silenced heavy enemy fire this morning on Mount Suribachi, the tiny inactive volcano 540 feet high on Iwo's southern tip, which is the island's highest elevation. He told how he helped shoot down several hanging gardens.

"We were ordered to bomb and strafe several cave entrances on the volcano's northeast face from which heavy fire was falling on our troops," he said. "Apparently the Japs had tried to camouflage the cave mouths with built up brows on which gardens had been planted. On our first run our bombs knocked down one of these terraces which slid down the sheer face, vegetables and all. I saw three other gardens shot down. After that the firing stopped, according to ground observers."

Sees 60 Wrecked on Ground.

Hardy said he afterwards skimmed low over Motoyama air fields Nos. 1 and 2 and saw about 60 enemy planes wrecked on the ground. [Both fields are now in U. S. hands.] Hardy, who flew over Tokyo and Chichi, said he hasn't met one Jap plane yet.

One of our fighters, who was chafing at the bit, is Ensign George C. Johnson Jr., 23, of 5648 N. Moody av., Chicago, who attended Maine Township High school and the University of Illinois. Johnson made two trips over Tokyo but has seen only two hostile planes.

"On the second day I went with the strike against a Jap carrier our boys had spotted the day before anchored off Yokohama. As we approached high over Tokyo bay two Jap planes made a brief pass at us, then peeled off, apparently without shooting. They must have been checking the altitude for the ground batteries for the first round of ack-ack was right on our level.

Report Carrier Sinks.

"The carrier hadn't moved. We dived in formation and just before the pull-out let everything go. I saw one direct hit on the stern and the rest of the bombs made an almost continuous fringe of near misses. Another air group reported later the ship had sunk.

The boys are still incredulous over the lack of Nip planes over Tokyo. In the fighter ready room this morning one flyer said he expected the sky to be black with enemy planes when he went in but saw none. Another declared he expected the first strike wouldn't even get to Tokyo but would have to dogfight on the approach. That the Japs may be short of aviation gasoline has been pointed out by many pilots who noticed that few planes strafed on the ground took fire.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. George Anderson, 5301 N. Ashland av.]

THE QUESTION.

Who is usually the last one to bed at your house, and why?

WHERE ASKED.

London Guaranty building, 360 N. Michigan av.

THE ANSWERS.

Charles Lyon, radio announcer, 1366 N. Dearborn st.—Usually I am, because I have all the work to do. When I first got married I took it upon myself to do all the cooking. Now we can't get any one to do our laundry, so I do it myself—and we have five sons. I get to bed almost every night around 2:30 a. m.

James E. Hartnett, salesman, 1229 Columbia av.—That's hard to say. My three children go to bed first, but they get up after my wife and I retire and go to the kitchen for a snack. Then around 3:30 a. m. I get up and cover them. So I guess I'm the last to get to bed and stay there.

Hazel Lumpkin, artist, 2480 Lake View av.—I live with another artist, and I'm usually the last one to retire. I have so many things to do. I sketch for hours and lose track of the time. Then I fix my fingernails, brush my hair, and so on into the night. Besides, I'm painting the walls in our apartment now.

Lois Zadler, receptionist, 533 Wellington av.—Almost every night around 1:30 or 2 a. m. I write letters. I can't concentrate when any one is around, so I wait until they go to bed. I have eight regular correspondents — then, of course, there's one I have to write to every day.

Dan J. Tolgo, commercial artist, 1877 Burton av., Highland Park—Lately I've been working almost every night until 10 or 10:30 o'clock. It takes me an hour to get home, and by that time the family is in bed. It's my job to take a last look at the furnace, to see if everything is in order . . . then to bed.

LOOT GAS STATION OF $1,940.

Burglars took 20 new tires, 60 inner tubes, 180 gallons of anti-freeze, and miscellaneous equipment and tools, valued at a total of $1,940, from the gasoline service station at 2421 South Park way, Peter Weck, the owner, told police yesterday.

RUSSIANS TAKE RAILWAY HUB IN EAST POMERANIA

LONDON, March 1 [Thursday]—(AP).—Russians yesterday seized the five way rail hub of Neustettin in Pomerania, killing 3,000 of its garrison, and gained five to six miles in their offensive aimed at isolating the Germans in the Baltic coastal area of Danzig, the Polish corridor, and northeast Pomerania.

Besides the slain, 600 Germans were captured and 1,500 Russians were liberated from slave labor when Neustettin fell to a combined frontal assault and outflanking maneuver, a late soviet war bulletin said today.

Unofficial dispatches from Moscow said the northward racing tank spearheads of the 2d White Russian army had reached the coastal highway and railroad which are the last escape routes of the Germans, but the nightly soviet bulletin disclosed no advances narrowing the 22 mile gap which remained after Tuesday's capture of Bublitz and Drawehn.

Instead, the bulletin announced capture of more than 50 towns in a general line straightening and solidifying operation along the 40 mile wide front of the advance, from Schwornigatz, 11 miles north of Chojnice, westward to Bublitz.

Nazis Admit Evacuation.

Premier Stalin announced the capture of Neustettin, 88 miles northeast of Stettin, in an order of the day following a German broadcast that the outflanked strongpoint had been evacuated. The soviet bulletins added the capture of Streitzig, two and one-half miles west of Neustettin, putting the Russians out in the open past Neustettin's difficult position between the Vilm and Streitzig lakes.

The east front spotlight continued to beat strongly on the soviet offensive in Pomerania, Moscow saying only that on other fronts the Russians had captured half a dozen villages in East Prussia and took another 10 blocks and the suburb of Kleinischank in surrounded Breslau, capital of lower Silesia.

Nazi Defense Stiffens.

The Germans also placed greatest stress on the Pomeranian struggle, broadcasting that the soviet vanguards had reached Pollnow, 12 miles north of Bublitz and 16 miles from the Baltic coastal railway.

Moscow news dispatches, however, said the German resistance was stiffening at some places against soviet forces "fighting fiercely to complete encirclement of the German forces to the east."

One strategic aim of the 2d White Russian drive was to cover the flank of the 1st White Russian army on the central front for a direct drive towards Berlin.

The Germans broadcast that the 1st White Russians during the day had widened their bridgeheads on both sides of Kuestrin on the Oder some 38 miles east of Berlin.

VICTORY'S GUNS ROAR AS HIS MEN HIT IWO'S BEACH

Evanston Officer's Unit Sets Up Store.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IWO ISLAND, Feb. 28 [Via Navy Radio].—Lt. Col. R. M. Victory, 400 Lee st., Evanston, Ill., pulled his cap down over his ears and said he was a little tired. His batteries of 75 and 105 mm. guns had just let go another round at the Japanese, the guns having made it ashore two days after D-day.

Lt. Col. R. M. Victory.

Across a dusty, volcanic ash road his boys had set up "Duffy's tavern" under canvass. Victory just grinned when asked where the enterprising storkeeper got his cigarets, chocolate bars, and food.

"If I were back in Chicago now," he said, "I think I'd go for a good dinner. I wonder how oysters on the half shell would go now?"

Chicagoan Hunts Snipers.

Across the western side of the island Pvt. Victor Kleber, Springfield, Ill., son of the assistant selective service chief, was directing troops searching for snipers. Helping him was Corp. Emil Slobodjka, 2145 W. Evergreen av., Chicago.

"It's a little rugged in the undergrowth," said Slobodjka. "The closest I came was when a Jap rose up and hit my rifle sling with a bullet."

Pvt. Henry Wilczewski, 2120 S. California av., Chicago, said he had nothing against Iwo Island. The only thing he didn't like, he said, was when an exploding shell buried him in dirt for three minutes.

In corps headquarters Col. Tom Yancey, army observer attached to the marine corps, watched the progress of the battle and plotted the downfall of the Japanese. He pointed out that the accuracy of Japanese fire indicated they had good observation.

Jap Observer in Ruined Ship.

It was learned today that a Japanese artillery observer secreted himself in the hulk of a ruined Japanese ship along the beach and told his batteries where to lay their shells. When found the observer was removed as quickly as possible.

The story was that on D-day the hulk was cleaned out. The marines believe the Japanese swam from shore when a careful watch was not kept over the wrecked ship.

Col. Yancey and the rest of the troops in the island talked about the odd weapon that soars over Iwo Island about sundown. At that time the Yanks stop to gaze at the sky.

Then, on schedule, the "Iwo Express" soars over the island with a sound like a limping train. It is believed to be an erratic motor propelled rocket, modeled somewhat after the German V-weapon.

Once one missed the island and once one hit near the edge of Iwo. Little damage could be seen. The weapon, which wavers overhead, is believed to be a 110 pound bomb with the tail assembly removed and a motor added.

The first two American planes to land on Iwo Jima were observation aircraft, piloted by Harvey Olson of Seattle, Wash., and Karl E. Kelley, Port Arthur, Tex.

Target Practice Called Off to Let Baby Prince Sleep

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRITISH BATTER JAPS' FORCES NEAR MANDALAY

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 28 (AP).—British Empire infantry tanks and artillery continued to smash Japanese resistance and take a mounting toll in enemy dead today in a semi-circle around Mandalay.

In a 56-hour battle for the village of Talimgon in the bridgehead across the Irrawaddy river 35 miles southwest of Mandalay, Indian troops took and held an enemy position after it had changed hands several times. British and Indian artillery blazed from inside the newly established bridgehead at Pagan, in the oil fields 92 miles southwest of Mandalay. Infantry of the 14th army fought off repeated Japanese counter-attack. Other British forces were driving south toward Mandalay down the east bank of the Irrawaddy.

Chinese troops pushed down both sides of the old Burma road to within 15 miles of the railhead of Lashio.

NAZIS GIVE UP TOWN IN ITALY TO BRAZILIANS

ROME, Italy, Feb. 28 (AP).—Allied forces improved their positions in the Mount Castello area, 5th army troops moving forward without strong German opposition and occupying the hamlet of Seneveglio, allied headquarters said today. The move into Seneveglio was made by Brazilian forces operating on the right flank of the U. S. 10th division.

CORREGIDOR WON BY 3,038 YANKS IN JUST 12 DAYS

Smash 6,000 Japs; Ships Now Use Manila Bay.

MANILA, March 1 [Thursday] (AP). Gen. MacArthur today announced the entrance of American shipping into Manila bay and the end of the Corregidor campaign just 12 days after paratroopers and infantry men landed on the fortress island.

The Americans took the Rock at the entrance to Manila bay in half the time the Japanese required to defeat the gallant defenders under Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright in early 1942.

A force of 3,038 Americans, landing under fire Feb. 16, avenged that surrender by smashing approximately 6,000 Japanese.

Count 4,215 Dead Japs.

The Japanese on Corregidor, he said, were "reduced in a period of 12 days by a combination of surprise, strategy, and fighting technique and skill, perfectly coördinated with supporting naval and air forces."

MacArthur said 4,215 Japanese bodies had been counted on Corregidor and many hundreds have been sealed in tunnels and caves where they were buried alive or blown to bits as they touched off underground ammunition dumps. Only 18 prisoners were captured on the island.

American losses were 136 killed, 531 wounded, and eight missing—a total of 675.

Ships Sail Past "Rock."

American shipping was sailing past the once formidable Rock for the first time in three years.

Some 15 miles east and northeast of Manila, where the mopping up of enemy remnants was proceeding, Yanks of the 14th corps drove against strong Japanese entrenchments on the Antipolo-Wawa line, encountering rocket fire in addition to heavy machine gun, artillery, and mortar fire.

Thirty-third division troops pressed into the mountains of the Rosario-Agoo area due north of the Lingayen gulf beachhead, while the 43d division on the other side of the head of the central Luzon plain drove toward the Balete pass road at Santa Fe.

Inside Manila Japanese suicide remnants were being cleared from government buildings with artillery fire, flame throwers, thermite grenades, and flaming drums of gasoline. Thirty-seventh division Yanks took the battered legislative building, just outside the ruined walled city, after it was blasted by artillery thruout the night. The Japanese continued to hold out in the finance and agricultural buildings.

Liberators Rip Formosa.

A heavy force of Liberators struck the Takao area of southwestern Formosa without opposition, but the results were obscured by low hanging clouds. Fighters tore into railroad traffic.

A 10,000 ton tanker was sunk and another of 2,000 tons was severely damaged off the French Indo-China coast.

Japs Report New Invasion.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokyo radio last night reported that a regiment of American troops yesterday invaded Palawan Island, long and narrow westernmost island of the Philippines. There was no allied confirmation. The enemy radio said the small Japanese garrison on Palawan "is offering violent battle at the present time."

When Tojo, Then Triumphant, Visited Manila

How Enemy Treated Citizens Is Told.

took it and sent it home to Japan. When kerosene supplies dwindled, homes went dark. Newspapers began to reappear, their columns filled with obviously doctored news and ecstatic rhapsodies about Japan.

"Experts" Supervise Businesses.

After a while government departments and a few businesses resumed operation on a reduced scale. Each was closely supervised by a Jap "expert." The ignorance of these newcomers caused a new inflection to the words, "Japanese expert," in Filipino conversation.

Other acts of the invaders caused the natives to laugh heartily. On Leyte there were systematic campaigns for the collection of all bottles. It was learned the Japs intended to use them for insulators on power lines. There was also a drive for the collection of such athletic gear as basketballs and boxing gloves—the Japs wanted the leather to make shoes.

Old clothing in any condition was collected and sent home to Japan. In at least one case soldiers seized a fine library and used the calf skin bindings to make dispatch cases for officers. Such expedients gave the natives a poor opinion of enemy abilities.

Resent Jap Slaps.

But the Filipinos didn't laugh when they were slapped by the soldiers. "A slap is worse than a sock on the jaw to us and we could never understand this Jap habit," said one Filipino. "We got slapped if we failed to bow to a sentry or if we accidentally collided with a soldier on the street. We were slapped if we failed to understand orders shouted to us in Japanese. They made fun of us and if we seemed to resent it we got slapped. Sometimes for trivial offenses they would strike us with the butt of a gun or tie our hands and feet and leave us sitting in the hot sun.

"These things happened in Manila which was a vast propaganda laboratory and where Filipinos were treated relatively well. In the remote provinces the troops were completely unrestrained and what they did one does not like to talk about."

NAVY'S VERSION OF LIBERATOR MAKES JAPS RUN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—One of America's war machines from which the Japanese choose to run, a returned pilot said today, is the navy's long range patrol bomber.

Enemy fighter opposition virtually disappears within a few weeks from areas where the PB4Y-1 begins to operate, Comdr. Justin A. Miller told a news conference.

Miller, skipper of patrol bombing squadron 101, recently returned from an eight month tour, said the Japanese always ran from the four engined adaptation of the land type Liberator unless they could muster overpowering strength.

And worse news for the Nipponese, Miller said the PB4Y-1 is now being replaced by the "Privateer," the PB4Y-2, a more streamlined, faster and more heavily armed version of the same craft. The commander said the new plane is "better in all respects, offensively and defensively and will give the Japs an unpleasant surprise."

BASTOGNE SHELL SHORTAGE TOLD BY CHICAGO MAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Corp. Henry C. Gogola of Chicago, holder of two Purple Heart awards, today told how he and his comrades fought off encircling German tanks and infantry for 10 days during the siege of Bastogne when the enemy counter-attacked last December. He told how ammunition dwindled to the point where shells were rationed and food was doled out in tiny amounts to hungry men.

Gogola, who is 21, is the son of Mrs. Frank X. Gogola, 2355 S. Albany av., Chicago. He is one of a group of 56 officers and men, most of them veterans of Bastogne, who have returned to the United States to tell war workers of the urgent need for increased munitions production.

Gogola and other members of the 101st air borne division said that when they went into Bastogne they were equipped only with "what we could salvage," explaining that they were being reëquipped and reorganized in Holland at the time the Germans counter-attacked.

Gogola told how heavily armored German tanks made constant efforts to break thru the defenses of the surrounded American forces.

When the big Nazi tanks had been disabled by bazooka rockets fired into the tread mechanism, the crews were put out of action by homemade fire bombs consisting of a bottle of gasoline and a cloth wick, he said.

4 U. S. OFFICERS KILLED IN ITALY TAKEOFF CRASH

Lt. Col. John T. Walker.

ROME, Feb. 28 (AP).—Ten persons, including three officers of Lt. Gen. Clark's staff, were killed Feb. 19 while starting for home on leave when their transport plane crashed. The plane was taking off from an Italian field, it was disclosed today. The plane fell from a height of 400 feet. Another American officer and six Britons also died.

One of the three staff officers killed was Lt. Col. John T. Walker, 32, air liaison officer of the 15th army group, who frequently piloted Clark on inspection trips. Walker, from Washington, Ind., received the Legion of Merit only last week. Walker was former aviation editor of the Springfield [Ill.] State Journal.

The other two were Lt. Col. John Howard Faust, 32, assistant artillery officer of the 15th army group, Wyomissing, Pa., and Maj. Donald M. Kerr, transportation officer, of Portland, Ore. Another killed was Maj. William N. Mallory, 42, intelligence officer of the tactical air force, who received the Legion of Merit Dec. 1 for the famed "operation Mallory" which resulted in the cutting of 22 of the 24 bridges crossing the Po in Lombardy.

WAR TIME GAIETY AT MEXICO CITY MASK OF MISERY

Wealthy Feast; Masses Go Underfed.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Feb. 28.—United States delegates to the inter-American conference in session here have noted that the rich are living high in this capital of our fellow allied nation. Other contrasts to conditions in the United States include the following:

There is no selective service and there are no casualty lists. However, Mexican generals may be seen at luxurious restaurants with their chests ornamented with ribbons, and American made jeeps and army trucks may be seen in the downtown traffic.

Food Plentiful for Wealthy.

There is no food rationing. Steaks, butter, and bacon are plentiful for the wealthy. Cigarets are plentiful. Brands popular in the United States sell for 28 to 35 cents in United States currency. Mexican cigarets, more palatable than some of the substandard brands in the United States, retail for 15 cents a package.

There is no gasoline rationing but car owners are supposed to refrain from driving one day a week. Taxicab drivers, on their days off, obey the edict moderately well. Cabs are plentiful and cheap. Good used tires may be bought but may not be taken to the United States.

'Scarce Goods' Fill Shops.

In the stores are goods scarce in the United States, including electric clocks and heaters, radios, cleaning tissues, a brand of chewing gum popular in the United States, camera film, the best makes of fountain pens, and ice cream.

Good beer, wines, and whiskies are abundant.

Horses are running at the track here and there is a half a million dollar jockey club built since Pearl Harbor day. Night clubs are booming. There is Sunday afternoon bullfighting in a ring said to seat 30,000, which is usually filled with tourists and natives.

Tourist Business Booms.

The tourist business also is booming. Visitors from the United States are mostly elderly couples. There are also a few army officers on leave with their wives. One vacationer I met was a Chicago pharmacist here on orders from his doctor to expose his sinuses to the warm sunshine. Vacationing with him was the doctor.

Entertainment for the delegates includes motor tours. Last Saturday the Mexican foreign minister, Ezequiel Padilla, was host to several hundred at a buffet luncheon with wines at the Jockey club.

Most of People Underfed.

These scenes of luxury in war time are a false picture of conditions in Mexico and Latin America as a whole. Wealth is concentrated. The middle class, which predominates in the United States, is infinitesimal here. Most of the people are underfed, underclad, illiterate, and diseased.

An accepted statistic is that the per capita consumption of all goods in Latin America is a tenth of that in the United States by arithmetical measurement of living standards.

An announced objective of the inter-American conference is to devise measures to lift the Latin American standard of living. United States war time purchases of five billion dollars' worth of goods and materials from these countries, and United States export of four billion dollars in goods to these countries, have enriched the wealthy and have sustained otherwise shaky governments, but there have been complaints that the poverty stricken masses have suffered from the resultant inflated prices of bare necessities.

This is Latin America at war. The United States delegation hopes to improve the lot of the common people economically and politically thru concerted programs under consideration at the inter-American conference, programs that will be presented to the united nations conference in San Francisco, Cal., in April.

Poland Boundary Defined at Yalta

The above map shows the Curzon line, marking Poland's new eastern boundary, as demanded by Russia and approved by the Big Three at Yalta, and its northern extension as described by Prime Minister Churchill in an official address Dec. 15, 1944. Concerning that line, he said in part:

"I cannot accept the view that the arrangements proposed about frontiers are not solid and satisfactory, or that they would not give to Poland that abiding home I spoke about in February.

"If Poland gives Lwow and the surrounding area on the south known as the Curzon line; if Poland makes this concession, and these lands are joined to the Ukraine, Poland will gain in the north all of East Prussia south and west of Koenigsberg, including Danzig."

SLUGGED BY WOMAN.

Abraham Simon, 54, of 309 W. Elm st., a busboy, received first aid at Henrotin hospital yesterday for a jaw laceration which he told police he suffered when a Negro woman struck him without cause at Chicago av. and Wells st.

FRENCH TO GET 2½ BILLION IN LEND-LEASE AID

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The United States and France today signed a 2 billion 575 million dollar agreement designed to strengthen French aid in the allied war effort and begin the economic reconstruction of the country.

The arrangement calls partly for direct lend-lease of civilian supplies to France which evidently means they will be given by the United States without financial charge, and partly for a system of lend-lease credits useful primarily in enabling the French to obtain heavy industrial and transportation equipment here.

The credits are being extended under a section of the act which allows President Roosevelt to continue shipping to an allied country lend-lease items ordered for that country but not delivered before the end of the war.

Three Agreements Made.

Today's agreement was signed for the United States by Acting Secretary of State Grew and for the French by Ambassador Henri Bonnet and Jean Monnet, French economic representative here.

Three separate agreements were made. One provides for continuing shipments of arms and munitions to the French army to maintain it in fighting trim on the western front and to double its eight divisions already organized with lend-lease equipment.

The second provides for reciprocal aid by the French to the allied war effort. Estimates of the total French contribution, once French factories are operating effectively, have run as high as a billion dollars.

The third agreement covers civilian supplies.

2 Categories of Civil Goods.

The civilian goods fall into two categories. The French will obtain 900 million dollars for equipment ranging from a fishing fleet to railway locomotives. The items in the other schedule, totaling one billion 625 million dollars for the most part are consumer goods such as food and raw materials but also include manufacturing equipment for war production.

In the case of the latter and consumer goods the French agree to pay the total cost in 30 annual installments beginning July 1, 1946, the credits to bear interest at 2¾ per cent a year. For the capital goods they agreed to pay 20 per cent down on delivery, with a balance in equal annual instalments within 30 years.

Supplies and Costs.

ANTI-RACE BIAS BILL PASSED BY N. Y. ASSEMBLY

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28 [Special].—The assembly today passed the Ives-Quinn anti-discrimination bill after a debate lasting six hours and 15 minutes during the course of which three amendments were offered and rejected. The vote was 109 to 320.

The bill now goes to the senate where it will be considered on Monday evening. Both Republican and Democratic leaders were confident tonight they would have enough votes to pass it there in identically the same form as it was approved by the assembly.

As passed by the assembly the bill sets up a permanent state commission against discrimination, consisting of five members and charges this agency with the duty of wiping out discrimination in employment on the grounds of race, creed, color, religion or national origin. It makes certain discriminatory practices followed by employers, labor unions, or employment agencies unlawful with fines and imprisonment as penalties for violations.

Few Exemptions.

The legislation specifically exempts from its provisions all domestic servants and excludes from the employers covered clubs that are exclusively fraternal, charitable, educational or religious organizations, or corporations not organized for profit.

Same Due in Illinois.

One of the defeated amendments would have stripped the bill of its punitive provisions; another called for the elimination of exemptions contained in the bill and the third would have delayed the effective date of the legislation until it had been approved by the voters of the state at a referendum.

A tabulation of the vote cast in favor of final passage showed 55 Republicans, 53 Democrats, and one member of the American Labor party in favor of the bill. Thirty-two Republicans voted against it.

Legislation along the same general lines is being considered in eight other states, including Illinois, it was stated during the debate today.

FRENCH DECIDE TO CO-SPONSOR SECURITY MEET

PARIS, Feb. 28 (AP).—The French cabinet voted today to accept the Yalta offer to be a co-sponsor of the San Francisco security conference alongside the United States, Russia, China, and Britain.

The action followed a report from Georges Bidault, foreign minister, who returned yesterday from conversations in London with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden. Bidault conferred with Gen. de Gaulle last night.

He brought added details on the Yalta conference decisions and these, it was learned, were highly pleasing to the French government, particularly as to the role accorded France in Germany, in Europe, and in the world organization.

HOLLYWOOD 'MID HORRORS OF WAR; THAT WAS YALTA

Luxury, Glitter Contrast with Battle Corpses.

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL CRUISER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Feb. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—The Crimean conference was a glittering bit of history in a setting which President Roosevelt described as Newport, Hollywood, and the south rolled into one. It blended grotesquely with the grim despoilation of war.

The trappings, a measure of artificial luxury, were brought from Moscow for the occasion by the soviet government, playing host for the first time to a meeting of the President, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill.

Russia provided the best in food and drink, staffs from the famous Metropole and Grand hotels—even barbers and manicurists. For those who wanted them, there were vodka and caviar—even for breakfast.

Skeletons at Roadside.

All about was evidence of the ebb and flow of battle—buildings in rubble, smoke-blackened walls standing starkly erect, a pillaged countryside, skeletons still lying beside the roads.

That was the picture of contrasts drawn for reporters of the three major news services who joined the Presidential party today for the trip home. Some of the other details they obtained in talks with the President and other members of the delegation:

Mr. Roosevelt lived in an impressive, two story stone building, once the summer palace of the czars, later turned into a sanatorium for tuberculars. Of all the furnishings, the Germans had left only two pictures, which hung in the President's bedroom.

Trees Are Imported.

Surrounding the palace are beautiful gardens. Trees from all over the world, including California redwoods, flourish there.

Three or four miles away were the snow-clad Yalta mountains. But flowers were in bloom down near the sea.

The German high command had used the palace and preserved it. But in near-by Yalta, once a fashionable resort, the Nazis had applied torch and bomb. And in Sevastapol, 50 miles away, the scenes of destruction appalled the President. Scarcely half a dozen buildings were intact.

Royal Ballroom Used.

All the Big Three meetings were held in a tremendous white marble room, where royalty and the elite of Russian aristocracy dined and danced. It was perhaps 50 by 150 feet, with a ceiling 30 or 40 feet high.

Mr. Roosevelt frequently started work with his own staff by 9:30 in the morning. Meetings with Stalin and Churchill usually got under way in the forenoon and continued thru lunch. Sometimes they lasted thru tea and as late as 9 p. m.

It was described as a "hard working conference." The only social events were three dinners. Each of the principals gave one for the top personnel, and the customary toasts were exchanged.

Stalin Serves Vodka.

Stalin served vodka, five wines, caviar, bread and butter, consomme, sturgeon, beef and macaroni, sweet cake, tea, coffee, and fruit.

Russian secret police were in charge of security, and they had strict orders. For a time they even "tailed" the American secret service, two to a man, but soon they were exchanging cigarets and pleasantries. Many of the sentries along the roads were girls of 14 or 15, or women of 50 or 60, with rifles and bayonets.

The Americans were told the Germans had taken away all the women 16 to 25.

Crosses in Cruiser.

President Roosevelt left Washington Jan. 22. He divided his traveling to the conference between warship and plane and returned to America without a single close call.

A cruiser took him to Malta, where he arrived Feb. 2. A plane picked him up there, flew him to Russia the next day. Leaving there Feb. 12, he flew to Egypt, where he again boarded the cruiser.

On Feb. 13 he entertained King Farouk of Egypt at lunch, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia at tea. The next day he gave lunch for King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. On Feb. 18 the cruiser refueled at Algiers and the next day started back home.

With the crew at battle stations the ship raced back thru the straits of Gibraltar at a 30 knot clip, taking the President thru waters where enemy submarines have been active.

Gets Plane Protection.

Half a dozen destroyers and another cruiser screened the Presidential ship, and a blimp and Lightning fighter planes crisscrossed overhead.

Mr. Roosevelt occupied the captain's quarters on the cruiser and his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, was assigned the flag quarters.

Women on naval vessels at sea are a rarity, so when a destroyer slid up alongside the cruiser, her commander caught sight of Mrs. Boettiger standing on deck in a fur jacket, took another good look and exclaimed:

On the return trip, the President, seated on a windy deck among sailors and officers, attended church services Feb. 25.

Mr. Roosevelt joined in singing several familiar hymns, reading biblical passages, and bowed his head in a moment of silent prayer for Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, his military aid and secretary, who had died aboard ship five days before.

First Time in Two Years.

The President will appear before congress for the first time in two years and for the first time will report directly to congress on a conference of the Big Three. He has been criticized severely for ignoring congress, which was compelled to get its information on the conduct of the war from Churchill's reports to parliament and in the case of the Tehran conference from magazine articles written for pay by favored journalists and approved by the President. His absence at Yalta was attended by a crescendo of congressional demand for disclosure of the secrets and objects of the Roosevelt foreign policy.

There is much speculation on Mr. Roosevelt's secret commitments. They are supposed to include indefinite American occupation of Germany, colossal American credits for European post-war rehabilitation, and a league of nations trusteeship for Japanese islands conquered by American arms instead of their cession outright to the United States.

A secret so far also is the purported compromise of Stalin's insistence that a big power in the peace league accused of aggression have the right to veto use of force aganst it.

50 Year Probation for Axis.

At his press conference aboard ship Mr. Roosevelt said he envisages the reduction of armament by the five big powers and the eventual admission of Germany and Japan to the league assembly after possibly a 50 years demonstration of renunciation of militarism. Pending unmistakable progress toward peace making forms of government he would keep Germany and Japan completely disarmed.

The only definite part of the plan for occupation of Germany, said the President, is that Russia shall hold the eastern part. At Yalta it was agreed that Great Britain would occupy western and northwestern Germany and America a zone extending from Mainz thru south Germany, including Baden, Wurttemberg, and Bavaria, with a supply corridor to the sea at Bremen. The assignment of a zone to France, however, said Mr. Roosevelt will require changes in the American and British zones.

The conduct of the war in the Pacific was discussed by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill at Malta but was not mentioned, the President said, at Yalta or later at the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at Cairo. It was not discussed at the Big Three conference because Russia is bound by a neutrality treaty with Japan, which America and Britain respect.

The American people, in Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, too often blow hot and cold about the war in the Pacific. The fact is, he said, that once Germany is defeated we face a long, hard war to defeat Japan.

F.D.R., CHURCHILL DON'T AGREE ON SUBJECT OF TALK

What did they talk about at their mid-February meeting in Egypt?

Mr. Roosevelt told a news conference on the cruiser that brought him home that Japan wasn't even mentioned.

Churchill told commons yesterday:

"I myself took leave of the President on the 15th of this month in Alexandria harbor after a talk about our special business in the far east, in which, as the Japanese are aware, we both take some interest."

Mr. Roosevelt's own White House staff found itself lined up with the prime minister. It had issued a release Feb. 20, which said the Alexandria meeting "permitted new and important discussions" having to do "with Japan and the war in the Pacific."

F.D.R. Gives Fourth Term Medals to Yalta Conferees

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Copies in gold of the fourth term inaugural medal were presented by President Roosevelt to principals at the Crimean conference. He gave them to Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin, and the British and Russian foreign ministers. On the face of the medal is a portrait of the President. On the reverse is the USS Constitution in full sail with a quotation from Longfellow: "Thou, too, sail on, O ship of state. Sail on, O union strong and great."

Hear F. D. R. and Stalin May Pay Visits to Britain

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Diplomats in London said today that President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin possibly would visit Britain. The President is likely to visit first, perhaps even before the end of the war with Germany, they said. Stalin would come, if at all, after Germany falls.

U. S. OFFERS PACT TO KEEP PEACE ON HEMISPHERE

Expect Conference to Guarantee Borders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 28. — The inter-American conference here is approaching an agreement on the concerted use of force in the western hemisphere against any act of aggression against any member nation.

A compromise plan was drafted by an American committee and approved tonight at a meeting with the delegates of Colombia, Uruguay, and Brazil. It probably will be adopted by the inter-American organization committee tomorrow.

Under the agreement, the United States would be among the signers who would guarantee the borders of the 19 nations attending the conference.

Clause Immediately Effective.

One provision would become effective immediately after adoption by the conference without formality of a treaty requiring United States senate ratification. This provision, encompassing the duration of the World war, would permit the President to use his war time powers as commander in chief to use force whenever or wherever an act of aggression against a western hemisphere nation threatens to handicap the allies in the war against Germany and Japan.

A second provision would cover the period after the World war. This half of the impending treaty would require senate ratification. To become effective insofar as the United States is concerned, it might require that both houses of congress delegate to the President congress' exclusive constitutional authority to declare war, assuming that could be done.

Under the agreement, the act of aggression of any signator would be considered as an act of aggression against all. The offended nation would call for help. All would consult to determine the remedial measure, including sanctions or the force of arms. A proposal that all would act on a majority vote was dropped in favor of the provision that any or all could give aid to the offended as each decided.

Shift by Latins.

The agreement by the American committee, including Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, was merged with separate resolutions presented by Colombia, Uruguay, and Brazil. It was considered significant that the more inviting concerted military action—with the United States as the only major power—originated in Latin America which, for generations, has protested against this country's occasional use of marines in Latin areas.

An incident yesterday, which threatened premature adoption of the security resolution, was dramatized in the Mexican press. Delegates, while celebrating the Dominican republic's national holiday, proposed, in the spirit of the occasion, to adopt the resolution by acclamation. Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] stemmed the wave of enthusiasm by the suggestion that any action await the arrival this afternoon of Sen. Connally.

Also approaching an agreement at the inter-American conference today was a resolution barring refuge in the western hemisphere to war criminals, providing a joint effort in suppressing Nazi subversive activities in the western hemisphere after the war, and naming a committee to define war criminals and to devise measures for their deportation after the war.

REOPEN MAILS TO AREAS HELD BY RED ARMIES

Postmaster Kruetgen announced yesterday that limited mail service is being resumed between the United States and Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Bessarabia, part of northern Bukovina, Moldavia, and parts of Poland captured by the Russian armies. For the present only letters weighing no more than one ounce and nonillustrated postal cards will be accepted.

Postage rates for letters will be 5 cents and for postal cards, 3 cents. Air mail, registry, special delivery, money order, and parcel post services will not be available for the present.

Kruetgen also announced that the previous limited mail service to Belgium has been extended to permit the sending of letters and packages prepaid at letter rate, weighing not more than 4 pounds 6 ounces. Registry and special delivery services also are now available to Belgium. The letters and packages may contain merchandise and will be subject to the export regulations of the foreign economic administration.

HIT BY TROLLEY, DIES IN HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Frances Ballin, 55, of 3534 W. 64th st., died yesterday in Holy Cross hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when she was struck by a street car at 6306 S. Central Park av.

PRESIDENT GIVES HIS WHEEL CHAIR TO ARAB RULER

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL CRUISER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Feb. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—Probably no chief of state ever before presented a wheel chair to another chief of state. But that was President Roosevelt's gift to King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia.

Reporters who joined the chief executive today to return home with him, learned that the Arabian monarch, who finds it somewhat difficult to get around because he was wounded in battle in his younger years, saw Mr. Roosevelt in a wheel chair and admired it. He said one of the chairs would save him many steps at home.

Whether it was a hint or not, Mr. Roosevelt dug up a spare and gave it with proper flourishes to the massive, black-bearded ruler.

HEROES GROW ONLY UNDER THE SOIL: CAPT. BRITT

The real war heroes are not the soldiers sporting campaign ribbons on their chests, but the men who lie under six feet of sod on foreign battlefields, Capt. Maurice L. Britt, the most decorated soldier of World War II., said yesterday. He spoke before the public affairs luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Hotel Sherman.

Capt. Britt recounted incidents which he described recently in a series of articles in THE TRIBUNE. His outfit, company L, 30th infantry, 3d infantry division, campaigned thru Africa, Sicily, Italy, and now is fighting in France. Britt lost his right arm at Anzio. He wears the congressional medal of honor, distinguished service cross, silver star, bronze star, medal of the British empire, Purple Heart with three oak leaf clusters, and distinguished unit citation.

He was introduced by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, who said the 3d division's record in World War II. is upholding the great name of the World War I. 3d division as the "Rock of the Marne."

The Chicago alumni chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity, of which Britt is a member, will give a dinner in his honor tomorrow evening in the Palmer House.

NAVAL TRAINEE IS CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

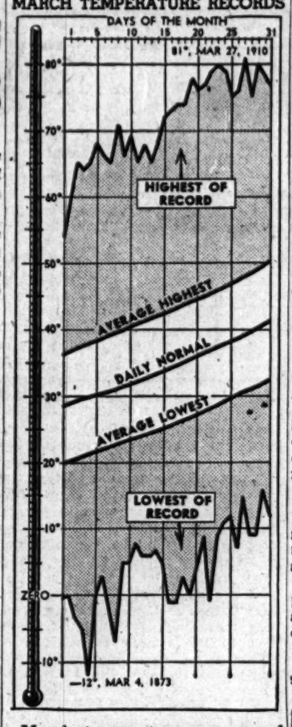
Henry C. Walston, 18, Negro steward's mate, 2d class, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury of eight women and four men before Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court last night in connection with the death of Coxswain Eugene Roberts, 21, of Miami, Fla., Oct. 6, 1944. March 14 was set as the date for sentence.

Roberts was stabbed in the abdomen in a shower room of the Great Lakes Naval Training center. The government contended that Walston struck at Roberts with a knife after Roberts had called, "Hya, Hoe." Walston testified he stabbed Roberts in self-defense.

The jury deliberated seven hours, including time out for dinner, before returning the guilty verdict. The manslaughter charge provides a penalty of not more than 10 years in prison. Assistant United States Atty. George G. Kelly prosecuted for the government and A. Bradley Eben defended Walston.

March Weather

MARCH TEMPERATURE RECORDS



March temperature ranges and averages by days in Chicago based on records since 1871.

March promises to come in like the proverbial lamb today, but its lamb-like period will be short, Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn predicted yesterday. The temperature will rise to about 48 degrees today, but it will be colder by tomorrow night, with rain or snow.

A milder, dryer, and darker—but also less snowy—February disappeared yesterday after setting an average temperature reading of 28.7 degrees.

The mercury hit its peak on the 25th, when it stood at 53 degrees, and was the lowest on the 1st at 4 below zero. Besides the 25th, temperatures remained above freezing on only one other day—the 14th.

Precipitation continued for the ninth consecutive month to be under average, bringing total precipitation to 10.74 inches. The deficiency last month was .93 with 1.17 inches.

Snowfall totaled 4.2 inches, compared to an average of 8.6, and there was sunshine for only 42 per cent of the possible hours. February had five days when there was no sunshine at all, and no day when the sun shone thruout.

KELLY PROPOSES 937 MILLIONS IN POST-WAR WORK

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Mayor Kelly of Chicago outlined a 937 million dollar post-war public improvement for his city to a senate appropriations subcommittee today. He asked for 19 million dollars of federal funds to enable Chicago's engineers to draw the plans now.

Beaming and vigorous, Kelly drew no black picture of unemployment after the war. He frankly confessed he does not know whether the end of the war will bring an unemployment crisis.

But he asked the 19 million dollars as insurance in order that Chicago may be ready, if need be, to compress a normal 30 year improvement program into five years.

May Ask More Help.

The mayor indicated that further government help would be asked if required in the construction period and said:

"Whatever jobs industry does not provide, the government should—and these at prevailing wages, and quickly."

Here is Kelly's program:

Modernization of local transportation facilities, $175,200,000. Street lighting, $11,277,000.

Construction of two more water purification plants, $57,000,000. Extension and improvement of water facilites, $77,730,000. Construction of a new sewer system and sewage disposal plants, $111,429,514.

77 Million for Play Areas.

Construction and improvement of parks and playgrounds, $77,111,000. Establishment of parking terminals, $30,000,000. Express highways, $167,311,000. Major thorofares and secondary streets, $57,316,000. Boulevards and parkways, $18,285,000. Grade separations. $53,256,000. Bridges. $16,495,000.

The mayor envisioned new schools that would cost $30,202,000, new libraries to cost $2,547,750, and $16,699,363 worth of municipal buildings.

An item of $9,124,000 for waterway improvements brought the total program to approximately 937 million dollars.

Human Bomb

DEWEY DUPRE.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP).—After 47 days as a human bomb, Dewey Dupre, 20, is able to take a hard knock now without fear he will blow up.

Twelfth naval district headquarters disclosed today that a successful operation had been performed at the naval receiving hospital here to remove a fused 20 mm. projectile from the body of the seaman, second class, from Poelousas, La.

He was at his station as gun loader aboard a battleship at Lingayen gulf on Jan. 9 when an air attack came. "The first thing I knew," said the bluejacket, "I was lying on the deck with a compound fracture of my left leg and other injuries about my chest."

Convalescing here, he told doctors last Saturday that he felt there was "something" inside of him low in his body. Surgeons, thinking they'd missed a piece of shrapnel, ordered X-rays. The pictures disclosed the fused shell.

"Because the projectile was of such a sensitive type and might explode on contact even with an operating instrument, the situation still remained full of danger," they said.

5 PLANTS BUILD NEW JET PLANE TO TACKLE NAZIS

Lockheed 'Shooting Star' Excels Airacomet.

BY FRANK STURDY.

A new and exceedingly fast jet propelled fighter plane was announced yesterday by the army air forces. The fighters now are being produced in four Lockheed plants and by North American Aviation, Inc., at Kansas City, Mo.

Developed by Lockheed Aircraft corporation, the propellerless fighter is known as the Shooting Star and is the second jet propulsion aircraft produced for the army. The first, called the Airacomet, was a Bell Aircraft design. The Airacomet is surpassed by the new Lockheed P-80, it is understood, and is now regarded by the army as an experimental jet trainer. The announcement of the P-80 called it the "first jet propelled combat plane."

Released by British.

The Shooting Star is driven by a single jet engine made by General Electric, based on the design originated by Commodore Frank Whittle of the R. A. F., whose engine, perfected to the point that it flew an airplane in 1941, was released to the army by the British.

Two of American made turbo-jets were used in the Bell airplane, one in each wing, close to the fuselage. The single unit in the Shooting Star is in the fuselage, permitting an unencumbered wing and probably the most aerodynamically "clean" airplane the army has yet put in production.

The army asked Lockheed for a jet fighter design in July, 1943, and the P-80 was conceived, built, and the first model flown in 143 days. Ordinarily, a year and a half is required to produce a new model airplane.

Aside from its jet power, the P-80 has other radical departures from conventional fighters. The cockpit is sealed to allow pressurization for pilot comfort and efficiency at high altitudes, in the same manner as the B-29 Super Fortress, the only other pressurized army airplane.

Gives Excellent Vision.

Special provisions were made for pilot "G" suits, the pressure garments worn to prevent black-outs in steep turns and abrupt pull-outs from long, fast dives.

The cockpit is forward of the wing, giving the pilot excellent vision over the slender nose of the fuselage, a tremendous advantage in flying both in combat and out.

As the jet plane is faster than any powered by conventional gasoline engines, its speed may be estimated at more than 500 miles an hour. A few gasoline engine powered pursuits are now capable of speeds of more than 400.

The plane will need all the fleetness that can be built into it to cope with the German jet fighters, timed by American fighter pilots in recent months at speeds around 500 miles an hour.

The German jet and rocket planes are not maneuverable, American pilots have reported, and their attacks have frequently been successfully broken up by the skilful tactics of army pilots taking advantage of the greater maneuverability of the Thunderbolt and Mustang, both gasoline engined aircraft, but very fast.

Engine Light and Simple.

There is no lack of maneuverability in the P-80, according to the army, which said of it:

"The Shooting Star is extremely maneuverable thru use of hydraulic aileron boost and electrically operated flaps. It can carry heavy loads of ammunition, photographic equipment, bombs, and fuel."

The jet engine is relatively light and simple in operation. Ducts in the leading edge of the wing channel air to an impeller, which compresses and whips it into a combustion chamber where a kerosene flame causes it to expand and its temperature to rise enormously.

The P-80 performs remarkably at extremely high altitudes, according to the announcement, and has an efficient ceiling greater than any other fighter.

Russian Plane Fastest, Moscow Radio Asserts

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Moscow radio asserted today that the Red army is using "the fastest fighting plane in the world," the latest model Lavochkin. Without giving exact data on the plane's performance, the broadcast said the plane had "exceptional maneuverability, fast climb, and powerful guns."

Principle of Jet Propulsion

(Story in adjoining column.)

The jet propulsion engine, showing how the principle is applied for use in aircraft. Expansion of the gases in the combustion chamber ahead of the turbine pushes the engine to the left. The exhaust passing thru the turbine provides no thrust, as is popularly believed.

BRITAIN USES JET PLANES; BELIEVED TO TOP 500 MI. AN HOUR

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—British jet propelled fighter planes have been in action since late last summer, the air ministry disclosed today.

Known as the Gloster "Meteor," these planes were the first jet propelled aircraft of the allies to go into action.

The Meteor was first employed by an R. A. F. fighter squadron against robot bombs Aug. 4, 1944, and downed a substantial number.

The speed of the new plane is a secret but it would have to do more than 500 miles an hour to outrun a flying bomb.

In addition to the Meteor, which is a twin engine job, the air ministry said Britain had a second jet propelled fighter in an advanced stage of development.

STASSEN ASKS 50 PROFESSORS ABOUT WORLD

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 28 [Special].—Comdr. Harold E. Stassen today spent almost three hours in an informal conference with about 50 members of the Harvard faculty in line with his "continual study" of international affairs.

"I have come to Harvard before to discuss problems with my friends here," he said, adding that he had asked most of the questions. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, is one of the American delegates to the forthcoming "United Nations" conference at San Francisco.

The meeting was held behind closed doors in the Harvard Faculty club. Dean James M. Landis of the Harvard law school, who recently returned to his post after serving as economic minister to the middle east, was one of those consulted.

The commander and his wife arrived this morning from Albany, N. Y., where he had conferred with Gov. Dewey. They left about 2 p. m. for their Minnesota home.

F. D. R. SIGNS BILL TAKING RFC FROM WALLACE REACH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Supporters of Henry Wallace said his confirmation by the senate as secretary of commerce is assured by President Roosevelt's action today—signing of the George bill which separates the Reconstruction Finance corporation from the commerce department.

The senate is scheduled to vote on the confirmation tomorrow. Despite the certain victory claims of Wallace adherents, a bitter debate is forecast before the senate votes.

Once the confirmation of Wallace is out of the way, the senate is expected to proceed soon to consideration of the nomination of Aubrey Williams as rural electrification administrator. Williams has been attacked on the same ground as has Wallace—inexperience and lack of ability, plus visionary philosophies.

Friends of Williams on the senate agriculture committee have been delaying the committee's report to the senate on Williams. Indications are that Williams will not be recommended for nomination.

SUGGEST FRENCH TROOPS RELIEVE YANKS AT FRONT

It's Revercomb Reply to Job Control.

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Sen. Revercomb [R., W. Va.] proposed to the senate today that "some two million liberated fighting men of France" be equipped and sent to the western front to relieve battle weary Americans.

Sen. Revercomb.

Revercomb made his suggestion during senate debate on job control legislation. He recalled that war department spokesmen had told the senate military affairs committee some form of labor draft was needed to boost the morale of American soldiers.

"I'll tell you what will strengthen the morale of the men at the front," Revercomb exclaimed. "It's relief from their battle fatigue, a chance to relax and rest."

Cites Brazilian Performance.

In addition to liberated Frenchmen, Revercomb said, the war department should consider equipping the reserve man power of Central and South American countries which have declared war on the axis nations but which have not sent troops to the front. He said the one division sent overseas by Brazil "performed well."

Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.], senate sponsor of New Deal "work or jail" legislation, opened the fight today against the senate military committee's substitute bill which would authorize War Manpower Chairman McNutt to dictate employment ceilings in any business and forbid the hiring of new workers.

Bailey denounced the substitute bill as an "appeasement to labor and capital" and urged the senate to defeat the substitute bill, which has to be voted on first, and then approve the "work or jail" bill which already has passed the house.

Bailey said the "work or jail" bill should be passed with its provisions for drafting men 18 to 45 who quit war jobs.

Urges His Substitute.

Revercomb urged the senate to pass a second substitute bill which he and Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.] have introduced. Their bill would forbid the WMC to impose employment ceilings of less than 50 per cent of a company's working force, guarantee that displaced workers unable to find war work would get their old jobs back, and provide for the drafting of "loafers"—men between 18 and 45 not lawfully employed.

Sen. Burton [R., O.] today continued his support of the military committee's substitute. He said its chief advantage was that it provided for "voluntary" labor in war work. Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.], a sponsor of the measure, attacked the "work or jail" bill because, he said, it would force "slave type" labor into war factories.

Police yesterday held the headlight of a 1939 Oldsmobile as the only clew in the hit and run death of Carl Schwartz, 56, of 1026 E. 62d st., a war plant watchman, who was struck and killed at 104th st. and Cottage Grove av.

William Brueggemeier, 10, of 2424 N. Racine av., was killed when he was run over by a coal truck in front of 2430 Surrey ct. The driver was Gilbert Jones, 54, Negro, of 418 Bowen av.

Forty-three persons were fatally injured in automobile accidents in Chicago and Cook county in February, Coroner Brodie said yesterday. The January-February total of 76 was below the 100 total of January-February in 1943.

In January there were 2,070 traffic deaths in the nation, the National Safety council reported yesterday. This is a 7 per cent reduction from last year's fatalities but is 19 per cent greater than the number of deaths in 1943.

Millions Switch To Mutton Suet Idea For Chest Cold Aid

Helps Break Up Colds' Local Congestion—Checks Coughing

Many mothers all over America are switching to this idea of getting fast relief for these chest cold miseries. They are simply following Grandma. For years she counted on mutton suet to help carry her home medication to do its pain-easing work on nerve ends in the skin. And so today Penetro hurries along newer help in the old reliable way—help that eases painful misery, lessens coughing, loosens phlegm, soothes chest rawness—so that you can rest more comfortably and give nature a chance to restore vitality. That's why millions are switching to Penetro today—why druggists are recommending it. 25c, double supply 35c. For all your family's chest cold miseries, be sure you get white, easy-to-use Penetro.

JUNIPER-TAR COMPOUND Over 70 years in use

BELIEVES TRUE GREEK PEACE IS YET TO BE WON

British Stock to Fall, Writer Says.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 28.—Greece's bloody post-liberation civil war officially came to an end Feb. 12 when representatives of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras' government and leaders of Greece's leftist national liberation front [EAM] affixed their signatures to the peace terms they had agreed upon in a 10 day conference. But only the blindest optimist can believe those signatures on a piece of paper are going to bring true peace to the politically inflamed little nation.

Forty days of vicious fighting stirred depths of hatreds between left and right which will take years and perhaps decades to settle. At best, these animosities will be confined within the territorial boundaries of Greece and will not infect other nations.

New War Begun?

At worst—and there are observers who support this theory—World War III. started Dec. 3 when Greek police fired on leftist demonstrators crowding Athens' Constitution square to begin the revolution.

The pessimistic, who believe the next war will not be so much a struggle among nations as such as between leftist and rightist forces of the world, point to what is happening in Belgium, Italy, China, and, from the trickle of news which leaks out, in Romania and Bulgaria. They keep their eyes on Stalin's Russia as it daily engulfs more and more of Europe.

One fact, evident now in Greece, is that Great Britain's stock will slump with the Greeks because of her armed intervention in the revolution. Prime Minister Churchill sought to justify Britain's intervention by saying he was saving Greece from a massacre and hinting at the Red terror. But many rightist Greeks he allegedly saved will forget their savior quickly. This correspondent left Athens only two weeks after the shooting revolution ended, but already some of the rightists who had been the first to cheer Britain's intervention were disgruntled because England apparently was not going to pay for the damage done in the revolution.

Lost Leftist Friendship.

It is obviously true, of course, that England can do much to keep her dominant position with Greece's rightist faction. But, thru intervention, she lost forever the possibility of gaining the friendship of the powerful leftist forces, which easily would have won the revolution had British troops not intervened. Any one who believes these leftist forces were permanently crushed in the revolution does not know his history.

EAM itself was not formed until 1941 under the German occupation, but the leftist groups from which it gains its strength grew under the ruthless dictatorship of the late Premier George Metaxas in the preceding four years. In the years underground during the Metaxas regime and the subsequent Nazi occupation, the leftist front gained power and determination and ruthlessness. Its recent defeat is only a temporary setback. It will be ready when the next opportunity comes.

Politically, Greece's future is precarious. The government faces a series of inevitable crises. Firstly, there's the touchy question of punishing those members of the ELAS [the EAM's guerrilla army] who committed acts of violence contrary to the rules of warfare during the revolution.

Another Powder Keg.

Secondly, there is the problem of trying and punishing Quisling Premier John Rallis and hundreds of other Greeks who collaborated with the Germans during the occupation, which is another fused powder keg.

Thirdly, there is the coming nation-wide plebiscite in which the people of Greece will decide whether or not they want the refugee King George to resume his throne. Finally, some time this year, Greece will hold a national election to select the government which will replace Plastiras' provisional cabinet.

On each of these questions the rightist and leftist factions are sure to clash—and clash the harder because of the blood both sides already poured onto the pavements of Athens and Piraeus during the revolution. The best that can be hoped for is that these clashes will be kept verbal.

Doubts Plastiras Can Last.

It seems probable the Plastiras government, formed while guns roared in the ancient capital and containing no leftist representation, will not weather the storm. Already there has been a hint of trouble within its ranks. Minister of the Interior Pericles Ralli resigned Feb. 20, allegedly because he considered Plastiras too harsh against the left.

Reports are that John Sofianopoulos, presently foreign minister in the Plastiras cabinet, is the ablest man to guide Greece thru the dangerous water the nation is now traversing.

Baby Thrives

DELIVER BABY EARLY SO BLOOD CAN SAVE LIFE

Champaign Girl Given Transfusion at Birth.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 28 [Special].—A baby girl, whose death had been feared because of her parents' unusual blood type combination, tonight was in an incubator with a good chance to live following her Caesarian delivery a month prematurely under a new procedure which it is hoped may serve to prevent many stillbirths.

The 6½ pound infant was given an immediate blood transfusion and was reported in satisfactory condition but physicians said she would not be out of danger for 10 days or two weeks.

Scores Volunteer Blood.

Condition of the mother, Mrs. William G. Colebourn, 29, Georgetown, Ill., a registered nurse, also was reported to be satisfactory after the birth in Burnham hospital here. Her husband is an army warrant officer stationed at Yale university.

Scores of persons thruout the country having the unusual type blood needed—O-RH negative—had volunteered to donate blood to save the baby's life. Physicians selected Charles Lyons, 26, a farmer of Sidell, Ill., who arose at 4 a. m. today, drove 70 miles thru a heavy snowfall, and donated a little more than a pint of his blood.

The unusual case and the comparatively new procedure used was under the direction of Maj. Carl Greenstein, obstetrician at near-by Chanute field, army air force post.

Damaged Blood Replaced.

He said Mrs. Colebourn has type O-RH negative blood and her husband has type O-RH positive. Maj. Greenstein explained that these types are harmless in themselves but in this combination tend to destroy red blood cells. It was his plan to take the baby early, before the combination had caused too much damage, and transfuse from a donor more O-RH negative blood to maintain and replace blood cells broken down in the infant's body.

The caesarian operation, which Maj. Greenstein performed, "went beautifully," he said, and the baby "was in better condition than we had anticipated."

Will Require Few Transfusions.

Because of the baby's satisfactory condition, only three or four more transfusions may be needed, the obstetrician said, and probably not more than one will be given in any one day.

The comparatively new found "RH factor" in blood, first discovered by scientists in the blood of the rhesus monkey, is believed to be a factor in the cases of babies born dead or who die soon after birth. While the presence or absence of the RH factor is harmless in itself, the mingling of blood containing the factor and blood not containing it is believed to set off a lethal struggle among red corpuscles.

"The combination of types is not always fatal," Maj. Greenstein said, "but when parents' blood types are known to present this condition, arrangements are made for transfusions for the baby."

Combination Not Unusual.

The obstetrician observed that the combination of negative and positive blood in married couples is not unusual. The effect on children depends, he said, on which parent has the negative type. If the mother has the positive type blood there would be no effect on her children. However, the situation was reversed in the present case.

Approximately 12 out of 100 married couples have blood types differing from each other's, since only about 15 per cent of all persons have O-RH negative blood, Maj. Greenstein said. The wife would have the negative blood in less than half these 13 cases, he added. The Colebourn situation, however, due to other factors involved, would arise in only 1 out of 500 births.

Medical history shows that the first born child of parents with positive and negative blood usually survives, physicians said. The Colebourns' first born, now 3 years old, apparently was not affected by the "incompatibility" of the parents' blood. But their second child died in 1943 shortly after birth.

SEVERED HEAD OF WIFE FOUND; QUIZ HUSBAND

Bloodhounds Used in Search for Torso.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 [Special].—Discovery in a near-by Virginia woods of a woman's head, apparently carried there in a bushel basket, today led to the detention of Henry Corens, 43, for questioning in the death of his wife, Pearl, 30.

A search for the torso was under way tonight after police identified by dental work the head as that of Mrs. Corens, who had been missing from her Bethesda, Md., home since Feb. 12. She was employed in the war department. Corens told Bethesda police that his wife was last seen approaching their home.

Henry Corens and his wife, Pearl.

Two farmers, C. C. Dailey and Fristoe Melton, who were walking home after a fishing trip, found the head about 15 feet off the road. Later they found a bushel basket which apparently had contained the head. Police said indications were that the woman was slain about a week ago.

States' Atty. Joseph Simpson of Rockville, Md., said Corens, an automobile painter, would be held "pending further investigation." Simpson conferred with Mrs. Corens' brothers, Grover and Ralph Walker, and her father, McKendree Walker.

Bloodhounds Used in Search.

Chief of Police MacIntosh of Fairfax county, Virginia, used bloodhounds in a search for the torso. He said, however, recent rains, which continued today, had probably eliminated any scent.

Fairfax police said the absence of blood stains where the head was found indicated that the body had been dismembered elsewhere.

Mrs. Corens' disappearance became known Feb. 14 when her brother Grover informed police the war department had called him to ask why she was not at work.

AIM NEW DRIVE AT ABSENTEEISM IN WAR PLANTS

Olander Offers Union Aid in WMC Campaign.

(Picture on back page.)

With the time required for a job applicant to pass thru a United States employment office cut in half in the last two weeks, the war man power commission yesterday launched a pincers movement against the labor shortage by starting an intensive drive to combat absenteeism in war plants.

William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, cited figures to show that elimination of absenteeism would solve the Chicago area man power shortage.

At the same time, Victor A. Olander, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, said that if the WMC would supply detailed figures on absenteeism, by plants and departments, to the unions, the unions themselves would undertake to reduce absenteeism to an absolute minimum.

Processing Procedure Halved.

It now takes two hours or a little more to obtain a referral for a war job at a United States employment office, a Tribune reporter found yesterday by going thru the line at the USES office at 308 N. Michigan av. That compares with approximately four hours two weeks ago.

Lester Brown, WMC area director, said more than 35 USES interviewers from downstate offices have been brought to Chicago, of whom 17 are in the downtown office. The state unemployment compensation division has promised an additional 30 trained personnel, he said, and the civil service commission has been asked to hire 90 new workers.

Believes 40,000 Took Jobs.

Brown added that February broke all records for persons interviewed and for persons referred to jobs at USES offices here, with 146,789 applicants and 50,500 referrals. Of these, Brown estimated that at least 40,000 found places on war plant pay rolls.

In its drive against absenteeism, the WMC is seeking to attack the problem from the other end by closing the leaks in the employment bucket while pouring in new supplies of labor.

Spencer said absenteeism costs Chicago plants alone the equivalent of 40,000 to 60,000 workers every day and pointed out that the current man power shortage of 55,000 in this area could be wiped out by eliminating absenteeism. The campaign is under the direction of Brown and S. C. Bloom, chief consultant of the division of man power utilization.

Thirteen Cures Suggested.

In individual plant surveys, Brown said, 13 general types of cure for absenteeism will be suggested. These include sending a nurse or other representative to the home of each absentee; telephoning or telegraphing each absentee; return to work interviews; reducing disciplinary layoffs; poster and slogan campaigns; posting absentee records on bulletin boards; prizes for high attendance records; labor-management subcommittees; signing of pledge cards; safety programs; talks by wounded war veterans; wide distribution of information on the effect of absenteeism, and dismissal of chronic absentees.

It was suggested that plants which fail to coöperate in suggested campaigns to eliminate absenteeism might lose hiring priorities.

Cites WMC Responsibility.

Olander, in offering full union cooperation, inferentially laid part of the blame for absenteeism on the WMC for failing to provide adequate figures on specific plants.

"The WMC has the responsibility of maintaining the labor supply," he said. "That necessarily implies guarding against anything that demoralizes that supply. It also involves great care in providing the right sort of conditions within the plants and working out means whereby workers can obtain ordinary necessities of life outside the plants.

"Injuries and accidents inside the plants which now take a terrific toll are largely preventable. Overwork is another cause of absenteeism."

Fear Present Sets Would Be Junked.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—A federal communications commission proposal that frequency modulation [FM] be moved to higher frequencies met with a generally negative response from the radio industry today.

At a hearing marked by frequent references to such mystic terms as F2 layer, sporadic E, and tropospheric wave transmission, prominent representatives of the radio industry, with one exception, told the commission FM should remain approximately where it is.

See Cost Increase.

They argued that interference in the present band is not the serious matter the FCC claims it is, present FM receiving sets would be made obsolete by a change, FM industrial development would be retarded by a frequency switch, and costs of producing sending and receiving equipment for the proposed wave lengths would be increased.

One of the principal opponents of the change which the FCC contends would be beneficial was Edwin H. Armstrong of New York, pioneer in FM radio.

Favored by Chicagoans.

"It seem.. to me that the logical order of allocations in the 44 to 108 megacycle [44,000-108,000 kilocycles] band is amateurs at the lower end, FM in the center, and television in the upper end," Armstrong said.

The industry spokesman who has thus far supported the commission's position was Cyrus T. Read of the Hallicrafters company of Chicago. Read said his company's engineers favor the frequency change as a means of eliminating interference and of allowing for post-war expansion.

SEIZE 3, HUNT 9 FOR THEFT IN OPA WAREHOUSE

Office of price administration officials said last night they were seeking nine more Negroes, eight of whom are former employes of its coupon warehouse at 559 E. Illinois st., after the arrest of three men and the seizure of stolen coupons worth 125,000 gallons of gasoline yesterday.

The three seized, all Negroes, were Ezekiel Robinson, 45, of 4326 Vernon av.; Lawrence Collins, 18, of 4444 St. Lawrence av., and Oscar Haywood, 21, of 4949 St. Lawrence av. Capt. William Doyle of Pekin police said the coupons were found in Robinson's home.

L. D. Edwards, chief of the OPA's currency protection division, said his office had recovered 25,000 "R" coupons, still valid, worth 125,000 gallons, and 2,100 "B-4" coupons, for 10,500 gallons, which expired last year. He said burglars robbed the warehouse last Saturday.

TWO'S COMPANY; WIFE'S RETURN MAKES A CROWD

When Mrs. Mildred Kilpatrick Watson, 27, recently returned from a trip to New York, she found two women occupying her apartment at 201 E. Chestnut st. as guests of her estranged husband, John, 40, an importer of men's woolens, she told Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday in Circuit court.

Mrs. Mildred Watson.

The women refused to leave or to let Mrs. Watson in. She moved to a room in the Allerton hotel, 701 N. Michigan av. Mrs. Watson, represented by Atty. Michael Zlatnik, said the room is too small for exercises she is required to take for her health.

Mrs. Watson asked for a court order giving her possession of the Chestnut st. apartment and for an increase in the temporary support of $100 a month she has been receiving since last June on her suit for separate maintenance. Judge Feinberg continued the case to March 30 after Atty. David Canel, representing Watson, said Mrs. Watson does not need more support. "She spends $20 a bottle for perfume," Canel argued.

Newman said identification was made thru personal articles in the hotel room. He said an inquest showed the woman died from two hammer blows on the head.

The sheriff said Mrs. Pierce was the daughter of John Brock of Denver and that she came here to marry Staff Sgt. Herman A. Cole of Roane Mountain, Tenn.

Police were searching for a man who registered with the woman yesterday, giving a fictitious New Orleans address, City Marshall R. C. Miller of Ocean Springs, said.

BARE RED TIES OF 10 OFFICERS IN U. S. ARMY

Communist Party Links Are Established.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Evidence was disclosed tonight which appeared to contradict the testimony yesterday of high war department officials that no Communist has been given an army commission.

The names of 10 army officers, about whose Communist connections there can be little question in the light of official records, have been obtained by THE TRIBUNE and turned over to a member of the house military affairs subcommittee investigating the army's recent directive permitting the commissioning of Communists.

These names were obtained in a brief preliminary investigation which indicated the presence of a large group of Communists holding army commissions. An army intelligence officer estimated the number as "at least 500."

Boast of 10,000.

The Communist Political association, successor to the Communist party, has boasted that it has more than 10,000 members in the military forces. Inquiry indicates that many of these hold highly confidential posts involving what the army calls "sensitive duties."

Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy and Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, head of army intelligence, sought in their testimony before the subcommittee to dismiss the commissioning of Communists as "largely an academic question." Gen. Bissell said: "I know of no case of any man who was ever a member of the Communist party who has been commissioned."

Officers Are Listed.

Against this statement may be set the following list of officers and an account of their communistic connections:

Maj. Edward Newhouse, who occupies an important and highly confidential post on the staff of Gen. Arnold, chief of staff of the army air forces. He attended the Tehran conference between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Dictator Stalin and was decorated by the soviet marshal for undisclosed services. He entered the army after Pearl Harbor.

Newhouse was a member of the staff of the Daily Worker, official Communist organ in the United States, and has openly admitted in his writings that he was a member of the Communist party. He was also a contributor to New Masses, official Communist magazine.

One Picketed White House.

Together with Earl Browder, head of the Communist party, Newhouse signed in 1935 the "call for a congress of revolutionary writers" which was addressed "to those who have clearly indicated their sympathy to the revolutionary cause; who do not need to be convinced of the decay of capitalism and the inevitability of revolution."

Lieutenant Milton Wolff, present assignment unknown. He was a member of the Young Communist league and national commander of the Communist-controled Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade. He was a staff writer for the Weekly Review, published by the Young Communist league. He was also a supporter of the American Peace mobilization, branded subversive by the attorney general, which picketed the White House during the period of the Stalin-Hitler nonaggression pact.

Lt. Irving Goff, present assignment unknown. He was a speaker at the Communist Workers' school in New York City in 1941, and the Daily Worker publicized his talk. He went on record in the official Communist daily as protesting against the imprisonment of Earl Browder, Feb. 22, 1941.

Official of Brigade.

Lt. Irving Fajans, present assignment unknown. He was cited on the Young Communist league honor roll, according to the yearbook of the organization in 1938. He was secretary treasurer of the Communist controled veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade.

Lt. Jerome Cook, present assignment unknown. He was the signer of a statement defending the Communist party which appeared in the Daily Worker, March 5, 1941. He was a member of the Young Communist league in St. Louis, and listed as a member of the Communist party in that city in congressional hearings. Cook was a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy, cited as subversive by the attorney general, and signer of a statement defending William Schneiderman, a leading Communist organizer.

Appeals for Support.

Lt. Jerry Trauber, present assignment unknown, was a member of the executive board of the International Workers order, which Atty. Gen. Biddle labeled as one of the strongest communist front organizations. Trauber in the Daily Worker publicly appealed for support of the Communist party press together with a number of Communist leaders.

Lt. Richard L. Criley, former head of the Young Communist league of California, spoke during the army hour radio program May 21, 1944, on his assignment in Sicily handling labor affairs for the civil administrative organization.

Crowd Attracted by Blaze Fatal to One

15 Escape Unhurt

A fire which swept a three story brick apartment building at 539 W. Garfield blvd. early yesterday caused the death of Paul Wukovitz, 42, and serious injuries to his wife, Rose, 45, and daughter, Mrs. Lilljan Hefeli, 20, an expectant mother. Fifteen persons escaped uninjured from the burning building.

Mrs. Wukovitz and her daughter jumped to the sidewalk from a third story window. They were taken to St. Bernard's hospital, where Mrs. Wukovitz was reported in a critical condition. Her husband's charred body was found near the window of their apartment.

Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney said the origin of the fire had not been determined.

CAFE OPERATORS DRAFT RECIPE TO END CURFEW

A delegation representing the nation's cafe owners will formally present a substitute plan calling for normal hours six days a week and complete closing on the seventh instead of the present midnight curfew, Milton T. Raynor, representing the Chicago Cafe Owners association, said yesterday after his return from a conference in Washington, D. C.

The delegation, Raynor said, will present the alternate plan to War Mobilization Director Byrnes on Monday or Tuesday. The group will be headed by Rep. Kelly (D., Ill.).

Meanwhile, effect of the curfew on business in Chicago night spots was analyzed. Thomas Rosenberg, Raynor's law partner, said the cafe owners estimated that the average cafe had suffered a 60 per cent decrease in revenue.

Rosenberg estimated that more than 3,000 cafe and tavern employes will be fired if the curfew remains in effect.

Jack Ure, supervisor of the United States employment office for the West Madison street district, said 1,500 persons applied for jobs Tuesday morning and 2,100 yesterday, compared with 638 Monday morning, before the ban went into effect.

State, Other Officials Cut Driving by 32 Million Miles

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—Illinois' state, county, and municipal governments last year reduced their automobile usage by 32 million miles, Gov. Green said today after conferring with Wesley W. Polk, chief highway engineer who acts as state governmental mileage administrator. The state alone cut its mileage 24 million below peace time levels, saving $1,311,000, Green reported.

FARM CRIPPLED BY DRAFT; QUIZ ON BOARD ASKED

C. A. Hughes, Cook county farm bureau agent, said yesterday he had asked state selective service to investigate the Flossmoor draft board, after he had learned that the drafting of two young farmers Saturday will force into idleness more than 325 acres of rich farm land.

The investigation is sought as the result of an affidavit by Tunis Swets, 47, of route 1, Chicago Heights. Swets charged that P. W. Goodson, wealthy Bloom township farmer and board member, offered to buy a herd of 20 purebred hogs that is up for sale as a result of the board's action in drafting Swet's son, John.

Swets said yesterday that his two sons, John, 22, and Clarence, 20, had operated his 40 acre farm, plus 86 acres of rented land, for the last four years. Last year, the brothers produced 3,000 bushels of onion sets, 10,500 pounds of asparagus, sold $3,000 worth of tomatoes, fed 157 hogs and 32 feeder cattle, besides planting 20 acres of sweet corn and enough field corn to supply them two seasons.

Younger Son Drafted First.

Last fall Clarence was drafted and an estimated $1,000 worth of tomatoes rotted in the sun because of the boy's absence from the farm. When the father protested to the board, he says he was told by board members: "The country has enough food for five years. It doesn't make any difference if your tomatoes rot."

On Jan. 4, John was placed in 1-A, and again the father went to the board to protest. The board again mentioned the vast amounts of food the government had stored, and then advised him to sell his live stock and equipment, Swets recounted.

"When I told them I had 20 purebred, registered hogs, Goodson [Goodson owns 800 acres of land] said, 'I'll come over and buy them.'

Board Member Silenced.

"Then the other board members hushed him up, and told him he'd have to transact his business outside of selective service meetings."

Hughes said a similar case involved a youth named Emil Juergens, 20, hired hand for William Andres, near Chicago Heights, who will be inducted Saturday with John Swets. As a result, Andres will have to sell a herd of 27 purebred Holsteins, Hughes said.

One board member, who refused to be quoted by name, admitted last night that Goodson offered to buy Swet's hogs, and that he was reprimanded by other members. He added, however, that the Flossmoor board had exhausted its supply of man power and had been forced to draft farm youths.

Appeals Turned Down.

The board member also asserted that all those who will be inducted Saturday have made appeals and lost, and that in most cases their induction had been recommended by the Cook county agricultural war board, of which Hughes is a member.

Members of the Flossmoor board are Date W. Jurgensen, Glenwood, chairman; H. R. Gordon, and Harry Karsters, Flossmoor, and Goodson. The appeal agent is Walter Wiles, Flossmoor.

Mines Bag Over 1,000 Enemy Ships, British Say

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—More than 1,000 enemy vessels—warships, supply ships, and coastal craft—have been sunk or damaged by British mines since the outbreak of war, the admiralty announced tonight. Probably more than 60 per cent of this number struck mines laid by R. A. F. planes, the statement said.

THE RECORD OF THREE YEARS.

The Japs continue to immolate themselves on Corregidor. They have been exterminated on Verde Island, which commands the shortest supply route from the United States to Manila. The mopup in Luzon goes forward and Lt. Gen. Smith of the marines says the worst appears over at Iwo. Hard fighting and more casualties lie ahead, but the issue is no longer in doubt.

We have freed the Philippines. The final defeat of Japan, now groggy, with its relic of a navy in hiding in some port as remote as possible from the advancing American bomber bases, will avenge Pearl Harbor if that disaster has not already been avenged. The time is appropriate to recapitulate the events of the last 38 months and review some of the forces that shaped those events.

We have been a long time going back to Bataan. The navy's pre-war plan did not envision that it would be lost. Those plans were rendered hopeless by Pearl Harbor. The forces in the Philippines, ill equipped, neglected by the burocrats, stripped of the effective part of their air force after the fighting started, fought in a gallant but foredoomed cause. We have been a long time regaining the ground in the Pacific that was sacrificed by Washington.

We can take pride in the victory. It is essentially an American victory. The Australians fought valiantly beside us to free their own territories and still are engaged in extensive operations in that area. Other aid has not been worth acknowledgment. The victory which has avenged Bataan, which has freed the people of the Philippines, and which has advertised the American principle of freedom to a world of backward empires, reluctant to put the welfare of their colonial subjects ahead of the profits of exploitation, has been the work of the American people.

It has also been a victory for American public opinion which marched slowly at first and then with greater force and greater indignation compelled a reluctant administration to the grudging provision of the forces that made the advance possible. THE TRIBUNE takes pride that it led the crusade for this American war almost from the very day that the fighting started.

This newspaper takes pride that in the fight to compel recognition of the vital importance of the war in the Pacific we incurred the enmity of the Communists and the royalists, who from the day of Pearl Harbor onward conducted violent propaganda to divert American attention from the area in which our vital interests lay in order to use the power of this country to advance the interests of their alien masters. We take pride in our triumph over those propagandists who would have sacrificed the rescue of the prisoners of Bataan to the greater advancement of the imperialist schemes of Communist Russia.

In the first dark weeks, when false optimism still prevailed in many quarters, we did not succumb to it. We foresaw five months before the end at Corregidor that it was inevitable, but we said "even if we lose the Philippines we shall not lose the war," and we outlined the possibility of the strategy that has since made victory possible.

We warned on Jan. 11, 1942, after the Japanese had disclosed their barbarity by the bombing of the open city of Manila, that their defeat "is a long, hard task, but we must commit ourselves to it if we are to retain our integrity as a nation." Three days later we said: "It is the sound principle of war to concentrate on the principal and proximate enemy. For the United States that enemy is Japan."

Mr. Churchill met Mr. Roosevelt in Washington in the early weeks of the war and won him to the ill-considered decision to subordinate the Pacific war in order to bolster the British and Russians in Europe. We protested on Jan. 24, 1942: "For the moment a large part of the American public appears to be almost indifferent to the fate of the battered garrison at Corregidor and on Luzon. Perhaps there are some in Washington who think that this move will persist, come what may. If so, they are going to get the surprise of their lives."

The forecast proved true. The administration was more susceptible to the Communist and royalist propaganda than were the people. Aid to the gallant little forces in the Pacific outposts to which we managed to cling was grudging and slow. The whole force of a publicly financed propaganda machine and of an un-American section of the press was turned loose to distract attention from the war against Japan and even, on occasion, to revile our most brilliant leader in that war, Gen. MacArthur.

The movement a year ago to nominate MacArthur for the Presidency had no source in any ambition of his. It sprang purely from the political consciousness of the American people who recognized that, by backing him, they could force attention to the fighting which they recognized in their very bones was most vital to the interests of their country. It was not until the plea for proper conduct of Pacific operations appeared in the only language that Mr. Roosevelt understands—the language of votes—that the military forces were made available for victory.

Whatever good and whatever future security come out of this war for the American people will come from our victory in the Pacific. The more eloquently Mr. Churchill defends the Yalta deal, the more clear it becomes that American ideas are not to be incorporated in the reorganization and reconstruction of Europe. Europeans are glad to have lend-lease, but they don't want the Bill of Rights.

We believe, however, that there will roll forth from the Philippines a spirit of freedom which will prove irresistible. Its echo, striking back into this country, will discountenance that strange alliance of Communists and royalists who have striven so mightily, and with such tragic success until now, to destroy the Republic for their opposing but equally un-American ends.

SIDNEY CLEARS IT.

Rep. Paul Stewart of Oklahoma described to the house a momentary palpitation caused by receipt of a letter from Collier's magazine saying it was offering a $10,000 prize to be offered the senator and representative "who best serve their country during the present year." The judges were to be "a committee of distinguished Americans." Mr. Stewart said that for a moment he saw the committee considering his record—but only for a moment. For then on the list of "distinguished committeemen" his eye lit on the name of Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO's political action committee.

"My astonishment," said Mr. Stewart, "would have been no greater had I found the name of King Herod on a list of great humanitarians. Mr. Hillman spent a great deal of time trying to defeat me in the last election. I could not delude myself that I would be selected for honest and intelligent public service with Mr. Hillman as one of the distinguished Americans on the committee."

Collier's evidently is abiding by Mr. Roosevelt's admonition, 'Clear everything with Sidney." The PAC chieftain can be counted upon not to be the most disinterested judge in the world. Whether Collier's handful of silver will influence the acts of legislators is a collateral consideration. If Mr. Stewart has a little spare time he might investigate whether a violation of the corrupt practices act is involved.

"A FAIRER CHOICE."

Prime Minister Churchill has so long been the orator, has spoken so often, and frequently with such effect upon his auditors, that he now seems to have fallen victim to his own spell. In his speech to parliament on the doings in the Crimea he exhibited the symptoms of this self-hypnosis. He seemed to think that if he said it, it had to be so.

Mr. Churchill demanded the usual vote of confidence. When he gets it he can congratulate himself that the morality of the settlement, and his own statement of its meaning, have been upheld. It will be convenient for him to overlook the fact that his Tory confreres, who constitute the overwhelming majority of the house and who have not submitted themselves to an election in 10 years, cannot overthrow him without overthrowing themselves.

Fresh from the conference where he, and Stalin, and Mr. Roosevelt decreed the extinction of three sovereign states, the partitioning of a fourth, and the compromising of the independent existence of how many others no one yet knows, Mr. Churchill self-righteously proclaimed, "I am sure that a fairer choice is open to mankind than they have known in recorded ages. The lights burn brighter and shine more broadly than before. Let us walk forward together."

There will be some Poles, said Mr. Churchill, among them the brave men who fight in the Polish uniform under British command, who will not care to return to the Poland that is left them. Mr. Churchill did not deal with the tender fate which these men might expect, nor with the tragedy of soldiers who for five and one-half years fought for the image of a country which has now been wholly altered by three statesmen of alien lands. To these men without a country Mr. Churchill offered the dubious reward of asylum in Britain from the trials of existence in the new Poland. He would spare them the tyranny which their silent countrymen must suffer.

"The United States," said the prime minister, "has entered deeply and constructively into the life and salvation of Europe." The translation would be that this country shares the guilt. Our Constitution mentions that the President's initiative in foreign affairs is subject to the consent of the senate, but Mr. Churchill has gone his willful way so long and called it national policy that it is understandable that he should think that Mr. Roosevelt is the United States. With satisfaction, he sees us up to our necks in the strife and rivalries of a restless continent.

The king's first minister has succeeded only in persuading the stupid that imperial tyranny can be passed off as justice and morality. We shall soon be hearing Mr. Roosevelt's apologia. What bright countenance will he seek to put on the moral bankruptcy disclosed by these shabby decisions? Perhaps he can borrow a phrase from the other orator and confess that he is giving the world a peace of blood, toil, tears, and sweat.

SYMBOLIC GIFTS.

There is, presumably, a language of diplomatic gifts just as there is a language of flowers. Possibly, then, when Mr. Churchill recently presented Ibn Saud with a comprehensive selection of perfumes, the gift was intended to symbolize the wish that Saudi Arabia would always smell nice in British nostrils. The compliment was returned when Ibn Saud handed Mr. Churchill a golden sword with its unspoken hint that Britannia's present military instrument is somewhat blunted.

And now we come to Mr. Roosevelt's gifts at Yalta to Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin which took the form of the fourth inauguration medal cast in fine gold. It would embarrass Mr. Roosevelt to express in words to his colleagues how heavily he was indebted to them for the fourth inauguration. The medal told Mr. Churchill that the good work done by his Anglophile following on the seaboard had not been overlooked. The copy given to Mr. Stalin told him the same story as to his Browders and his PAC. The substance of which the medal was cast could convey the thought that there is gold for such helpful allies in them thar elections.

We should like to think that Mr. Roosevelt was hinting, also, that in this country elections are held, war or no war. It's 10 years since they've had one in Britain and they've never had a real one in Russia.

FIRST IN PEACE.

The first national cheers over the birth of quintuplets were heard in the reign of the first Roman emperor, Augustus, about 1,900 years ago. The emperor was propagandizing for larger families because the old Latin breed had been thinned out by civil wars. When a slave girl became the mother of quintuplets, he caused a monument to be erected in her honor. If there was any applause for the father, history is silent on the point. This incident was recorded by a Roman author named Aulus Gellius.

The first fossil bones of mankind's geologic forerunners were found in 1857 in a cave near Düsseldorf, Germany. This creature was subhuman, but his effigy can be seen in natural history museums all over the world, labeled Neanderthal Man. The site of the discovery was set aside as a national park and tourist objective. American soldiers may be visiting it soon. The actual bones—top of skull, femurs, portions of shoulder blade, ribs, and pelvis—are, or were at last report, in the university town of Bonn.

The first men to wear trousers were the barbarians so often denounced by the ancient Greeks, so often slaughtered by the Romans. These contemptible ruffians were scattered all over northern Europe and Asia Minor. When the Roman armies campaigned in Gaul and Germany their barelegged soldiers complained about the winter climate and adopted the Gallic bracae. The word survives in English as "breeches," in Scottish as "breeks."

No longer gleam, as war's constraining hand
Snuffs out the candle, and the dull, cold town
Has lost the parapets of fairyland.
No more the high allure of bright display
As gala casements show a world unreal
With waxen manikins, forever gay
In languid loveliness—and sales appeal.
Yet while steel skeletons loom gaunt and grim
Against a sky that grants oblivion,
And gloomy windows mirror walks gone dim
Without the magic of their floodlight sun,
With you beside me each drab, canyoned street

It's Tough When Your Name Is Clough.

Linemaster: Some years back, in an investigation of "-ough" words, you found, I believe, some seven possible pronunciations. This is to advise you that, despairing of ever teaching the world how to pronounce Clough, which rhymes with tough, I am about to drop that name and return to my native state—Crary. In addition to the seven ways, I am frequently pronounced Clugg, and that completes my burning up.

Rather than add to the confusion of an already scrambled world, I have therefore arrived at this momentous decision. Emerson Hough and Arthur Hugh Clough may have been able to stand it for a lifetime, but I have had enough.

PARTY AFTERGLOW.

It's better to do all the dishes at night
When guests have gone home, don't you think,
Than leave them to dim a day otherwise bright,
Stacked formidably in the sink?
At night you can coast on momentum acquired
As banter was tossed to and fro;
You talk to each other, forget you are tired,
Companionship keeps you aglow.
"That story of Frank's was a pip," she will say,
In elbow-deep soapsuds immersed,
"Would you please explain it?" (You blush in dismay.)
"And hasn't Joe Doaks got a thirst!"
The good dishes neatly arrayed,
And next comes the silver arranged in its case,
The pots and pans end the parade.
You wearily wander upstairs, close to dawn,
But memory, lingering bright,
Will say the best part's when the guests are all gone
And dishes are done, late at night.

An Echo from World War I.

Linemaster: I hope that when the American army reaches Coblenz some of the correspondents will tell us the latest news about Ehrenbreitstein [Feb. 24], which has been a mystery since the last war. When our soldiers were stationed in Coblenz after World War I., two of the boys from our town must have been thoroly bored. When they returned home they were asked about their experiences and were reticent. When Cy and Herman were asked, "Did you explore that ancient castle-fortress, Ehrenbreitstein, high up on the mountain?" they answered, "Naw. There was an old pile of junk up there on the hill, but we didn't climb up to it. All we wanted to do was to come home."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

APPETITE AND EATING HABITS.

APPETITE may be defined as the pleasant anticipation of eating. It may be quite different from hunger and is dependent upon a large number of factors. The memory of a pleasant meal, associated with sight and smell, all play a role. Nor do the needs of the body necessarily regulate the sensation. A person afflicted with severe illness may be literally starving to death and still have no desire for nourishment.

Loss of appetite [anorexia] may be an early indication of disease, either mental or physical. An animal, placed in an unfavorable, unpleasant environment, may lose its relish for food altho no actual trouble is present.

Distaste for edibles, appearing in a hitherto healthy adult who has experienced no change in his surroundings and who is not disturbed emotionally, should be investigated. It may be a warning signal of danger. In children, however, the symptom is rather common. Irregular habits, unbalanced menus, or worry may be responsible. The constant nagging of a mother may be the underlying cause. It is unwise to force a youngster to eat, as a psychic conflict may ensue.

Well prepared dishes should be served at certain set hours. There should be no discussion concerning its consumption. If the little one refuses to indulge, the plate should be removed without comment or obvious concern. No reward should be offered nor should candy or other delicacies be allowed. The normal child will enjoy the next meal without argument.

It is also important that parents give a good example. A father or mother who is continually criticizing or fussing will have no success in training junior.

We should keep in mind that the symptom may be the product of the imagination of the mother. Grownups often have a mistaken idea concerning the capacity of their offspring. If the youngster looks the picture of good nutrition, is active and normal in every way, and the physician can find nothing wrong—"poor appetite" may safely be forgotten.

There is a group of patients whose intake of vitamin B is inadequate. This may result in anorexia. The vitamin may be taken in concentrated form until such time as a balanced diet is supplying essential requirements.

The nose, throat, and mouth should be examined carefully to rule out conditions which may make chewing and swallowing painful. Exercise, which lowers the level of the blood sugar, is an excellent stimulant and may be all that is necessary in an individual leading a sedentary life.

It should be remembered by the obese that because the craving for calories is enormous, this does not mean that the system demands nutriment. The eating habit may have been acquired too well.

ERYSIPELAS.

REPLY.

An examination might disclose the presence of streptococcus germs elsewhere in the body—sinuses, teeth, tonsils, etc.—which may be acting as the source of this infection. Vaccines and X-ray are helpful.

SIZE OF HEART.

D. K. writes: Can anything be done to help the condition of a cardiac enlargement?

REPLY.

This depends on the cause. The heart enlarges in an attempt to overcome some defect or "leakage." Consult your physician for the care of this condition.

HEAD NOISES.

A. C. writes: Are ear noises always caused by high blood pressure?

REPLY.

Not necessarily. The annoyance may be associated with diseases of the ear, in arteriosclerosis, or after the administration of certain medicines, such as quinine.

POST NASAL DRIP.

E. W. writes: I can never blow my nose like other people. The discharge seems to go into my throat.

REPLY.

The diseased area is probably in the back of the throat near the nasal airways. This gives the sensation of having the nose blocked.

DRY NOSE.

G. M. writes: Has a cure been discovered for that terrible nose disease called "atrophic rhinitis"?

REPLY.

Admiral Without a Boat.

One of the more dramatic man hunts of this decade now is in its eighth month and is wholly lost in the wider drama of global war. It goes on day after day, night after night, in the ghastly caves and jungles on the Island of Biak in the Dutch East Indies. The prize is an isolated Jap admiral, Sadatoshi Senda.

When the allies landed on Biak last May, Senda led his men into grottos 100 feet deep, quickly known as "hell caves," where he established an underground fortress complete with a military hospital. Here for two months, surrounded by smashed ammunition cases and equipment, they lived, fought, and most of them died. The survivors, including the admiral, took to the jungle. Behind, in the underground site, he left his luxurious private hut and the living quarters of his 20—count them, 20—personal orderlies and cooks.

For months now Indonesian patrols have been hunting down the remnants. Week by week they surrender. "He [the admiral] demands the impossible," one of his officers said, in seeking the protection of the allied lines. But the man the patrols really seek is the admiral.

Almost daily rumor says he has been killed, wounded, or captured, but he is said to be alive and running hard. One patrol captured his sword. Another brought in his cape, his name on the inside in large gold letters. Time after time discarded bits of his uniform are found, so many, in fact, that the patrols say he must be racing about in his pajamas. Wherever he is, they contend, he must be living on wild plants and fruits, for he exhausted his food supply long ago.

This Changing World.

It came a month ago, and push it away as we will, the memory clings and clings. It is most ubiquitously present when wandering into a restaurant or when standing in the grocery fingering those last three red points and wondering what under the sun you are going to come out with. Today the battle is lost. Today strong will admits defeat. Today we give you the menu from the Clipper restaurant in San Francisco ["Dispute with waiter or dissatisfaction must be settled at the bar."] for one day, one lost, magnificent day some time between 1871 and 1884.

The menu starts with breakfast and supper, cooked to order. Under steaks are: Porterhouse, 20 cents; sirloin, 15 cents; rib, 15 cents; beefsteak, Spanish style, 10; beefsteak, plain, 10; tenderloin, 20. Pork chops, mutton chops, veal cutlets, ham [fried or boiled], stewed tripe, domestic sausages, liver fried with pork, pig's feet in batter, broiled or boiled mackerel, salmon, Hamburg beefsteak, soused pig's feet, and stewed mutton all are 10 cents. Chicken is 5. Three eggs, fried, boiled, or scrambled, or an omelette, are 15 cents, as is ham and two eggs or bacon and two eggs, or German pancakes.

Still following? Dinner offers, for 10 cents, codfish, bass, salmon, mackerel, fried tomcods, fried smelts, mutton with mint sauce, pig's head, corned beef and cabbage, ham, calf tongue, boiled beef, roast beef, veal, mutton, pork, and chicken, veal pot pie, beefsteak pie, lamb chops, stewed kidney, or beef à la mode. Pies, puddings, or cake are 5 cents. Claret is 20 cents a bottle, white wine 25, ale 15. A glass of beer is 5 cents.

Written into the menu in a volcanic black script are today's specials: Calves' head, Spanish, 10 cents; fried herring in batter, 10 cents; cold goose liver, 15 cents; liver in batter, 10 cents.

And the latter, hungry reader, is what has been worrying us. "Today's specials," presumably offered as a tantalizing specialty, are all that are left in the butcher shops of this fourth winter of war. Strange that they omitted pig tails and ox tails in 1871.

Deprivation.

The bus passed a candy store, and one of the young bobby-soxers sighed audibly and said to her two companions, "When Lent's over, let's go to De Met's and buy a pound of turtles and just sit and eat them."

FROM A FILIPINO GROUP.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—May I personally express the sincere appreciation and gratitude of the Filipino Guerrillas of Bataan association for your excellent and extraordinarily fine news comments and editorials on the Philippines. Your great, patriotic newspaper has vividly and graphically portrayed the courage of the Filipinos who so valiantly died in the epic of Bataan. Your brilliant editorial suggesting a memorial for those who died in Bataan is the patriotic feeling of all Americans.

SUGGESTS BLACK LIST.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—The papers today inform us that we lost 3,650 American boys inside of 48 hours in the battle of Iwo Jima. In the same paper is an article about a strike in a factory engaged in making engines for B-29 bombers. Two men were found asleep during working hours and were "punished" by a one day layoff; as a result, 46 others went out on strike.

I suggest that the names and addresses of these strikers be published in all of our newspapers so that the families and friends of our men fighting the Japs may keep a record of those who played while others died. Business firms also might keep these names and in the post-war world these brave strikers might learn that America will remember those who deserted in her hour of need.

HE'S GETTING COMBAT FATIGUE.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—It's all yours—veteran. What? Aid or blockade? I've been a veteran for five months now and it seems that my battle has just begun. I'm trying to operate a business—and essential at that. During the three years I was in service I lost contact with business firms who now refuse new customers. But the greatest hindrance of all is the government itself—the WPB, OPA, and WMC. My equipment is held up by nonsensical priority procedure; gasoline and tires are a nightmare; and no skilled help at all. If the word "veteran" is mentioned as a last hope the usual retort by the alphabetical conglomeration is, "We can't give you what we don't have and being a veteran doesn't make any difference."

I wasn't a neurotic just five months ago but I'm well on the way now.

THEY DESERVE IT, TOO.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Feb. 20.—Could a poor, timid taxpayer offer a suggestion to assist the Big Three in their decision of what to do with Germany? If the problem is to wreck Germany completely, to bankrupt her, to place her in a condition where she and her people will be hopelessly mired to insure permanent ruin, couldn't we lend-lease Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Wallace, and a dozen more of the outstanding leaders of the New Deal to govern her for a period of 10 years? Perhaps we could kill two birds with one stone and solve many problems. For full retribution and punishment and to be sure they are made to suffer fully for their crimes, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes should also be sent along.

TAXPAYER.

BEAVER'S TAIL.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 21.—Evidently our good Dr. Crane ["Horse Sense," Feb. 10] must have been brought up on McGuffey's second or third reader. In one of these books the statement is made that a beaver uses his tail as a trowel. That was a long time ago. Later scientists say that Mr. Beaver does not use his caudal appendage as a trowel, but as a scull when he is swimming, or as a rudder. To warn of danger he makes a loud noise by hitting the water with his tail as he dives to safety.

DEMANDS GREEN OUTLINE IDEAS ON CONSTITUTION

Legislator Raps Claim Change Is Wanted.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—Scoffing at the contention that there is a popular demand for scrapping the Illinois constitution of 1870, Rep. Monroe [D., Collinsville] today introduced a resolution calling upon Gov. Green to specify changes he favors in the basic law.

Speaker Hugh Green of the house of representatives ordered that the resolution be tabled until next week. Monroe said he will then ask for suspension of the rules to permit consideration of the document.

Gov. Green had no comment on Monroe's move, but said a resolution to place the constitutional convention proposal on the 1946 ballots will be introduced within several weeks.

Legislators Apathetic.

Despite the clamor of a number of pressure groups for "con con," most legislators have been either apathetic or hostile toward the proposal. The Illinois State Federation of Labor [AFL] is pitted against the CIO in fighting revision of the constitution during the war era.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association is against "con con" and the Illinois Agricultural association is expected to issue a supporting statement. Altho there are dozens of organizations listed in favor of "con con," many legislators tend to pay more attention to the AFL, manufacturers, and farm groups, which have long records of political effectiveness.

Green, Kelly For It.

Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly are committed to "con con," but have pledged that there will be no penalties dealt out to legislators voting against it.

Rep. Monroe's resolution takes up Green's stand for constitutional change and reapportionment of the state's congressional and legislative districts.

"Most of the members of this general assembly," his resolution reads, "have not met more than a negligible demand from their constituents for either of these propositions, and some members have heard no such demand at all.

"It is manifest that there is no more likelihood of legislative or congressional reapportionment under the present constitution at this session of the general assembly than at any of the last 15 sessions which have preceded it."

BACK PROPOSAL TO BUILD FUND FOR STATE VETS

Senators Would Set Cash Aside Now.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—The senate revenue committee today recommended passage of the Baker bill to set aside 25 per cent of sales tax revenues for payment of a future bonus to veterans of World War II.

Sen. Charles W. Baker [R., Davis Junction] is both chairman of the committee and sponsor of the bill. While no effort was made to block it in committee, Green administration leaders indicated they would oppose the bill when Baker seeks its advancement and passage.

Harmful Effect Seen.

"When this war is over, we know that Illinois will pay a bonus to its soldiers and sailors," Baker said. "We can escape future tax increases if we save our money now for the bonus. My plan is to set up a special fund in the state treasury, where part of the sales tax money can be held until the legislature in 1947 or at some other time passes a bonus law."

Finance Director McKibbin said he hadn't taken a public stand on the question but expected to oppose it on the ground that segregation of 25 per cent of the sales tax, the state's major revenue source, would "ruin any post-war program" for public improvements.

Gov. Green said that bonus plans should be held up for further study.

Plan to Split Tax Buried.

Baker said that the present treasury surplus, for which a special post-war budget is being drafted, wouldn't be touched by his bill, which would become effective July 1 and segregate 25 per cent of the sales tax revenues collected thereafter. It estimated it would produce at least 22 million dollars a year for the bonus fund.

In line with their contention that the state's present tax structure should be kept intact, administration forces succeeded Tuesday in burying in house revenue subcommittee a bill to give county governments a fourth of the state's inheritance tax revenues.

By a compromise still to be worked out, the University of Illinois will be given an increase somewhere between 5 and 6 million dollars in its biennial budget, the governor said after a conference with Park Livingston, president of the university board of trustees. The trustees originally asked for 10 million dollars additional and cut their request to 6 millions when the governor suggested that the increase be limited to 5 million dollars.

State Hospital Inquiry Proposed in Legislature

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28 [Special].—Rep. Marzullo [D., Chicago] today offered a resolution in the legislature seeking creation of a legislative commission to investigate conditions in state hospitals for the insane.

ILLINOIS RE-MAP PLAN DENOUNCED BY REP. SUMNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—Plans to reapportion Illinois' congressional districts at this time were denounced today by Rep. Sumner [R., Ill.] as a move that would "rob the people of representation they are supposed to get under the Constitution."

Miss Sumner charged in a statement that congressional redistricting, presently before the Illinois assembly, would penalize rural areas and give more power to the Democratic political machine in Chicago. She said this inequity would result because of abnormal farm-to-city population shifts during the war.

Reapportionment now, she continued, also would force candidates for congress to spend extra time campaigning in new territory when their services are needed for legislative problems in Washington.

Census Termed Out of Date.

"After more than 40 years without reapportionment I hope our governor and the legislators of Illinois will think twice before redistricting during this war," Miss Sumner said. "Redistricting now would have to be on the basis of the 1940 census. That census, long since grown inaccurate, was a war conditioned census, taken after war time migration had begun.

"Urged by our government, hordes of citizens in rural areas, in order to take defense jobs, already had moved away from residences to which they will return after the war. Many service men, heartsick from bitter war experiences, plan to move to the country when peace comes.

"It seems unfair and against the spirit of the Constitution not to wait until they can relocate. Redistricting now would freeze these deserving citizens, for perhaps 20 or 30 years, out of their chance to be counted in their permanent residences.

"Machine Gains" Claimed.

"And what do the people of Chicago stand to gain from it? Nothing, except more power for the big city political machines. You do not get government by the people out of the big city political machines. Candidates are undemocratically chosen by political bosses."

Miss Sumner predicted "leftwingers" urging reapportionment now will say its opponents are going against the Constitution.

As an example of the results of reapportionment during war, Miss Sumner said, her own 18th district, famous as the home of Uncle Joe Cannon, former house speaker, would be "vivisected" by any revision plan "under present anomolous war conditions."

PARTIES CHOOSE COURT TICKETS MARCH 19 AND 22

Cook county Republican committeemen will meet in their county judicial convention in the La Salle hotel March 19 and Democratic committeemen will meet in the Morrison hotel March 22 to nominate candidates for Circuit and Superior court judges to be elected June 4.

George M. Fisher, Republican county chairman, said no official call has been issued yet but reservation for the Republican convention has been made for 3 p. m. March 19 in the La Salle. This is the first date under which the convention legally can be held. The early timing is to permit a recess if difficulty arises in the nomination of judicial candidates.

Joseph L. Gill, secretary of the Democratic county committee, said the Democratic convention call will go out soon, setting the county convention for 11 a. m. March 22 in the Morrison.

With Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green reportedly agreed on coalition, harmonious conventions are anticipated by the leaders of both parties, altho some friction is reported on the naming of some of the candidates. Under coalition, 10 Democratic and seven Republican incumbents will seek reelection, leaving six vacancies on the Circuit and Superior court benches, with each party naming three.

Bad Practice to Scold Child Before Guests

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Let us go back again today to the subject we were talking about recently—that of being your child's "keeper" before people—especially on social occasions or in the matter of his or her "correct" behavior.

"Didn't you often find yourself getting terribly conscious of your children's behavior the minute callers came, or when you had house guests?" said a mother rather ruefully to me the other day.

Would that question make you squirm uneasily, if you tried to answer it honestly? If not, you're really the wise and happy exception, because many parents, as soon as any one not in the family appears on the scene, become acutely conscious of everything their child does which they think their visitor may criticize.

"Don't pass between us, Marion."

"Don't interrupt, dear. You know better than that."

Almost any natural thing the children do begins to seem [with some parents] like something to reprove, or explain, or apologize for, the minute alien eyes see it.

And the result? In the tense atmosphere created the children's embarrassment grows, and socially they stick out like a sore thumb; they begin to act shy, act up, or act contrary. And the more you talk the worse they get.

Instead of feeling so conscious of being your child's keeper on a social occasion, try treating him as just another sensible person, and don't expect him or her to suddenly turn into a prim little paragon of perfection, measuring up to some imagined or actual standards that you think a visitor may have. It's confusing for your children, makes them feel at a disadvantage, and is miserably uncomfortable for you.

Tale of a Boy, Adoption, and Couple's Grief

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

This is the story of a roly poly little one year old boy who has a new home and of the couple whose home he left. It is the story of an adoption.

Nearly a year ago, Franklin Soukup, 31, a bakery employe, and his wife, Edytha, 29, a nurse, of 5231 Woodlawn av., took five weeks old William Richard Suing to board for the Chicago Orphan asylum. The Soukups understood then that his unwed mother did not wish to have him adopted. They kept him, and, of course, they soon loved him.

Tuesday they lost him. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki denied their petition to adopt the boy, because they had failed to get the mother's written consent. The Soukups claimed the consent had been given verbally after the mother had decided to let the child be adopted. But when on Feb. 14 they went to Fort Wayne, Ind., the mother's home, to get it in writing they found that orphanage representatives had been there Feb. 13, and the mother had signed papers, three days after Billie's first birthday.

So Tuesday night, Mrs. Soukup said, orphanage agents came and took Billie. They didn't wait until he'd had his supper. He went to a new home—that of adopting parents—and when he got there, he wouldn't eat his supper, and he cried that night, or so an orphanage worker told Mrs. Soukup yesterday on the telephone.

Billie wasn't the only one who cried.

Mrs. Soukup recalled the story of the last year yesterday. "At first Billie's mother had no intention of giving him up," she said. "I don't know where the influence came in to let him be adopted, but when I knew she was willing to let him go, I asked immediately to have him. That was last May. The orphanage refused me. I tried again in September and was refused again.

"Billie's mother told me she liked our home and what we were doing, and it was all right for us to have him. She said she hald told the orphanage that, too. Even when we went down to Fort Wayne, she cried when she told me orphanage people had been there just the day before."

In taking the baby to board, Mrs. Soukup said she had been told that the asylum didn't as a rule permit adoptions, but that there were exceptions. She had thought this was in her favor when Billie's mother decided to give him up.

The Soukups received $25 a month for Billie's keep until last August, when the fee was raised $10. They said they would have been glad to return that money if they could have kept the child who now seems like their own. They said they understood that in Billie's new home there is a little girl, also adopted thru the Chicago Orphan asylum. They think that Billie's new parents quite likely are more wealthy, but they know the latter haven't any more affection for the child.

Mr. Soukup, a former theological student, is in charge of boys' work at the Hyde Park Bible church. His wife is in charge of girls' work. Their question is: Why couldn't they have Billie? Why couldn't the orphanage have given him to them as long as they were considered good enough to provide a foster home for a year?

In answer to the Soukups' petition in court the orphan asylum sets forth simply that there had been a distinct understanding with the couple that they were providing a foster home and would give him up whenever a suitable home was found for him.

Hoagy, Bogey, Bacall; Critic Prefers Hoagy

"TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT."

By Mae Tinée.

Three guesses as to my favorite in this film. If you think it was either of the stars, you're mistaken—it was Hoagy Carmichael, sitting at the piano in his shirtsleeves and chewing on a match, charming some delightful stuff from the keys, and occasionally chanting crazy lyrics by Johnny Mercer. Will somebody please put some more of him in a picture, soon?

Don't get me wrong. There's nothing amiss with Mr. Bogart, who's quite a handy fellow this trip, running a boat, removing bullets, outwitting the Gestapo, and knocking the girls dead with his treat 'em rough technique, but if you saw him in "Casablanca" none of his behavior in this film will be any novelty to you.

Miss Bacall does all right for herself, too, altho her habit of portraying sexiness by lowering her chin and staring silently upward at every one while uttering an occasional hoarse monosyllable seems a bit ridiculous at first. She warms up to her role later and is quite attractive in the rare moments in which she permits herself to smile.

Her voice is deliberately husky, as seems to be appropriate in portraying a siren, but I thought she was going to strangle a couple of times when she gave out with a song—"How Little We Know"—a good number, by the way. As Marie, who stopped to pick a few pockets to finance a return to the United States, she sees Bogey, decides she likes him, and goes after him like a man-eating tigress. Her methods are direct, to say the least.

I have only a vague recollection of Mr. Hemingway's novel, but it seems to me that only the title has been retained in the film version. Don't ask me its significance in relation to the picture—I couldn't say. Martinique is the setting, and the principals are drawn unwillingly into the intrigue between the Vichy and the Free French at the beginning of the war. There's a bit of shooting here and there, some sophisticated dialog, picturesque photography, and, as I said before, some darn good music.

If you liked "Casablanca" you'll probably like this, because the two are quite similar, and altho I thought this lacked the punch of the earlier film, I haven't the slightest doubt that it will keep the box offices busy. Mr. Bogart probably could go on forever in such roles. Miss Bacall undoubtedly will improve with experience, and Walter Brennan does an excellent job as a drunk, but as an entertainer I'll trade Hoagy for any of 'em.

Hard to tell what Burton Holmes' audience liked best in Orchestra hall last night—the hand picked scenery of five national parks, the glimpses of wild life from the rare trumpeter swan and a mother bear leaving her suckling cubs to charge the photographer to the usual tourist trade glimpses of greedy chipmunks gobbling chocolate creams, or a big juicy steak sizzling delectably, in full color, on an outdoor grill. Maybe some of the other things got a bigger hand, but that steak certainly rated a reminiscent sigh.

This time Mr. Holmes is visiting the Grand Tetons [which he invites you to look up in a French dictionary], Yellowstone, Glacier National, Yosemite, and the desolate grandeur of Monument valley, an ancient templed city whose architects were wind, water, and sand. He has his own pictures, many of Ted Phillips', and some made by rangers who know the parks like old friends, in snow as in sunshine. The pictures of Old Faithful are remarkable, there are waterfalls galore plunging into foamy depths, and many of us got our first good look at the beautiful bear grass, soft yellow spiky flowers that seem to bloom in earnest about once in seven years. It's a lot of vacation in one evening for the armchair traveler.

Opera in the Spring.

Complete casts for our week of Metropolitan Opera, starting April 30 at the Civic Opera house, will be announced Sunday, but in the meantime you may want to augment its Wagner ["Lohengrin" and "Die Meistersinger"] with the two productions going to Milwaukee. They are "Tristan and Isolde," Tuesday night, April 24, with Helen Traubel, Arthur Carron, Kerstin Thorborg, Herbert Jansen, and Norman Cordon or Emanuel List, Erich Leinsdorf conducting, and "Die Walküre," with Traubel, Emery Darcy, Astrid Varney, Blanche Thebom, Jansen, and Cordon or List, George Szell conducting.

Managerial Dialog.

Miss Thebom is a new Fricka, a newcomer so successful I think she must be the contralto in the dialog that took place some months ago between Edward Johnson, who runs the Met, and Chicago's Fausto Cleva. Said Johnson, gloating, to Cleva, "I have in my pocket a contralto you would do a lot to hear." Said Cleva, "What do I have to do?" Said Johnson, chuckling, "Buy a ticket." "Well," retaliated Cleva, "I have in my pocket a coloratura you would do a lot to hear." "What do I have to do," inquired Johnson. It was Cleva's turn to chuckle. He answered, "Buy a box."

Nijinsky's Daughter.

A soldier's letter written from Naples to Edwin Denby, dance critic of the New York Herald Tribune, answers some of those piled up questions about Nijinsky's daughter, who was said to have inherited the dancer's birdlike feet. "I also saw Kyra Nijinska dance her father's part in 'Le Spectre de la Rose,'" the letter says in part. "She is an excellent mime and reveals this talent in Debussy's 'La Mer.' She is quite popular in Italy, and there are American children and WACs attending her school as well as Italians."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 28.—Comdr. John Ford and Herbert Yates, head of Republic studios, have been huddling over a deal, similar to the one Frank Borzage has at that studio, which will go thru as soon as Ford finishes "They Were Expendable" for Metro. This means he will have complete jurisdiction over his productions—including choice of stories, writers, actors, etc.—but his pictures will be made on the Republic lot and released as Republic productions. . . . Gilbert Miller's back from the South Pacific in company with top ranking naval men, which must mean the navy intends having its own play, a la "This Is the Army" and "Winged Victory." . . . Katina Paxinou and Val Arms, who've been working for months on a streamlined version of "Mourning Becomes Electra," are about ready to put it into production on Broadway. Katharine Hepburn may play the daughter role, once done by the late Alice Brady. . . . I'm wondering if the Grants will send out another communique, or have we had the final one regarding their separation? Some day Barbara and Cary have got to stop shilly-shallying around and really grow up, or is that too much to expect? However, I understand Barbara has bought a home up in San Francisco and will live there as soon as she gets her son, because I understand her ex-husband refuses to allow the son to come back to any home she might take for herself in Hollywood.

As Time Goes By.

Jeanne Crain's getting no help from her family or studio in her talk of marriage with Paul Brooks. Both prefer their little Jeanne to wait until she's older. . . . Pola Negri is still living in the old Valentino estate—Falcon's Lair. . . . Betty Hutton, who's supposed to be resting in Phoenix, went to the "Gold Digger's Ball" and created a sensation. . . . Cornel Wilde is resting at Palm Springs while he completes a new play. He's already sold one, "Legend," which goes into rehearsal this spring. . . . Horace Heidt, band leader, is going into the hotel business. Last week he bought the Lone Palm hotel at Palm Springs. Before that he bought a steak house in Beverly. . . . Edmund Lowe will play the lead in James Cassidy's production of "The Front Page," which goes on tour soon. . . . Lillian Gish is bringing her mother and nurse to Beverly Hills for the first time in 18 years, which makes it appear that Lillian will remain here permanently. . . . John Charles Thomas has won for the 14th time Billboard's annual poll to determine the most popular singer of concert and operatic songs on the air.

No, Fans Don't Forget.

Robert Cummings, who's doing "You Came Along" for Hal Wallis, says actors who are in the service don't need to worry about keeping their fans. Says his fan mail actually increased while he was out of pictures for about two years. His last was "Princess O'Rourke" for Warners. . . . Lionel Barrymore has been elected an honorary member of the Cyril Clemens International Mark Twain society. Lionel knew Mark Twain as a small boy. . . . Republic's "Girls of the Big House" has a cast of 40 girls and one man. He's Stephen Barclay. Guess that takes care of the man shortage at Republic.

From the Other Side.

Elsie Mendl had a letter from a friend in Paris who wrote that the Marquise de Polignac [formerly Nina Eustis] is out of prison, but that nobody speaks to her, nor does anybody speak to Chanel. Her friend thanked Elsie profusely for sending over lipstick and some wonderful soap which she shared with Mrs. Duff Cooper and Mrs. Winston Churchill, and added, "I hear Mrs. Roosevelt is a wonderful woman, but I don't expect she's the kind of girl who would think of sending over scented soap, and that we'd rather have than gold. We're getting so tired of going to bed early and getting up earlier. But everybody in France worships Gen. Ike Eisenhower. He can do no wrong, even when he orders civilians back to London because they're just cluttering up the place."

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Many women who bake a great deal have discovered for themselves that cakes made with sour cream can turn out pretty coarse and rubber-textured if they're made with commercially soured cream and there's no fat in the recipe. Dairy sour cream is wonderful for salad dressings, vegetable, and meat sauces and gravies, and even as dessert topping, but it is a total failure at shortening cakes and cookies.

I thought I'd better mention the fact in connection with this very good recipe for orange raisin cakes. Make these cakes with your own sour cream—the thin kind of cream we get these days will do until we have the rich stuff again.

Orange Raisin Cakes.

[Two dozen small cakes.]

- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- ½ cup raisins
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon lemon extract
- ¾ cup sour cream

Place all ingredients in mixing bowl, stir to blend, then beat vigorously until well mixed. Pour into greased small cup cake or muffin pans, filling not more than two-thirds full. Bake 15 minutes or slightly longer in a 350 degree oven. Frost lightly while warm with a simple confectioners' icing flavored with grated orange rind.

Chocolate Sponge Roll.

[15 by 10 inch pan.]

- ½ cup sifted cake flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs
- ¾ cup sifted sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon soda
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Prepare pan first. Grease it, line with paper to within ½ inch of the edge, and grease the paper. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt three times. Place eggs in deep bowl, add the sugar, and beat with rotary beater until thick and light. Add flour all at once, stirring well. Add vanilla. Melt chocolate over boiling water, remove from heat, and add immediately the 2 tablespoons sugar, soda, and cold water. Stir until thick and light, then fold quickly into batter until completely blended. Turn into pan and bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes or until done. Cut off crisp edges of cake and turn out onto cloth. Remove paper and cool for exactly 5 minutes. Quickly spread with prepared vanilla pudding filling and roll as for jelly roll. Wrap in cloth and cool on a rack. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

- 1 teaspoon soda
- 2 cups flour

Combine all ingredients except flour in saucepan and boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat, cool, and stir in the sifted flour. Fill greased loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until done. Let ripen a day before cutting. LIDA WILSON, Kentland, Ind.

Makes Good Brown Gravy Every Time

MARCH IS NATIONAL BREAD & GRAVY MONTH

"Mother always made good gravy," is the remark brides often hear and because old fashioned bread and gravy is a new fashion in extenders, it pays more than ever to be able to make good gravy these days. With my never-fail method given below, you can make good rich gravy every time, with or without meat drippings. There's a real taste treat in store for you when you make gravy this way.

Good Old "Bread and B-V Gravy"

- 2 tbsp. fat or drippings
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1 cup liquid*
- 1 tsp. Wilson's B-V

*Use milk, water or vegetable water.

Melt fat, add flour and blend well. Add liquid and stir until smooth. When hot, add B-V which has been dissolved in a small amount of the hot mixture and cook until thickened sufficiently. Makes 1 cup gravy. Serves 3 or 4.

---------Clip Recipe Here---------

EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE

Men and children alike enjoy good old bread and gravy. And when it's good rich brown gravy made extra delicious with Wilson's B-V, there's real pleasure in cleaning up the last drop on your plate.

It's a Pinup Lunch

Bread and B-V Gravy
Green Beans Carrot Sticks
Deviled Egg
Baked Apple Milk

Why not pin this menu up on your kitchen bulletin board and serve it tomorrow? It's colorful and tasty . . . planned to raise shouts of joy from the young fry.

Sh-h-h! It's Nutritious

Yes, B-V is nutritious but keep it a secret from the family and you can use B-V often to add extra meat flavor to many low-point dishes. These dishes are so good your family won't even suspect they're also "good for them." One teaspoonful of B-V furnishes one-fourth of an adult's iron requirements for a day. Iron plus the trace of copper which is also present in B-V helps build red blood cells; and so B-V helps prevent anemia and is an excellent addition to the diet of blood donors and others who need to build an extra amount of red blood cells. Lack of sufficient iron in the diet causes listlessness and slow progress in school work. So plan now to check your family's daily iron supply.

A CUP A DAY

A cup of deliciously hot B-V daily—served regularly between meals or at bedtime—is a good habit to form. Why not start today?

Yours for tasty nutrition,
George Rector

P.S. A month from today, April 1, is Easter. Time to be making reservation with your meat dealer for a slice of Certified Tender-Made Ham (the original ready-to-eat ham), Certified Smoked Ham, Certified Leg of Lamb, or whatever your choice is for this joyous day. Due to the present meat situation, it might be wise to give a second choice so you won't be disappointed.

Edith Harrison Is Engaged to Army Officer

BY JUDITH CASS.

UNTIL official orders bring Lt. Col. Peter J. Rooney III. back to this country, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr. will wait anxiously to meet the army flyer who will become their son-in-law within the next few weeks. Today the Harrisons are announcing the engagement of their second daughter, Edith, to Col. Rooney, whom she met in England shortly after going overseas last September with the Red Cross.

Altho Miss Harrison will be married far from home, she will be able to say her wedding vows in the home of a relative, Mrs. Sidney R. Bailey [Lady Bailey], the former Mildred Bromwell. A cousin of the Harrisons, she has been "blitzed" out of her London home, but she has offered her cottage in Gilford, Surrey, for the ceremony, which probably will take place early in April.

Miss Harrison attended the Brilliantmont school in Lausanne, Switzerland; Rosemary hall, Wells college, and the Sorbonne in Paris. She made her debut at a dinner-dance in the Ambassador East on Christmas night, 1936, the winter that she was attending the Katherine Gibbs school in New York. A member of one of Chicago's pioneer families, she was named for her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Harrison Sr., the former Edith Ogden. Both Mr. Harrison Sr. and his late father served as mayors of Chicago.

Col. Rooney is the son of Mrs. Rooney Jr. of Carbondale, Pa. He attended the University of Toronto before enlisting in the army air forces in May, 1940.

Other Engagements.

Miss Suzette van Daell, the young easterner who is spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. H. Thomas Douglas Jr. of Chase av. while their son, Ensign Douglas III., is at home on leave, will become his bride some time this spring. Today Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. H. van Daell of Orchard farm, Amenia, N. Y., are announcing the engagement of their daughter to Ensign Douglas, who received his naval air wings Jan. 9 in Pensacola, Fla.

Miss van Daell, a graduate of Colby Junior college in New Hampshire, was a member of the final class of Women's Airforce Service Pilots, [WASPS], receiving her wings Dec. 7 at Avenger field, Sweetwater, Tex. Her fiancé was captain of the 1940 football team at Loyola academy, from which he was graduated. Before entering the naval reserve he completed three years at Dartmouth college, where he was elected 1944 football captain. When his leave is over March 12 he will report to Jacksonville, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. F. Smith of State pkwy. announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Anne, to Capt. Richard W. Long of the army air forces, son of Mrs. W. S. Long of Lafayette, La. Capt. Long, who recently returned from the European war theater after completing 109 missions, will report soon to Tucson, Ariz., where the wedding will take place early in April. Miss Smith was graduated from the Loring school and the Career institute. Her fiance attended Southwestern college in Louisiana.

Wedding News.

The wedding gown which Miss Sarah Coonley wore 44 years ago when she became the bride of William Watkins Davies of Louisville, Ky., in the Lake Shore dr. home of her mother, Mrs. Coonley Ward, was brought out of its wrappings for the marriage recently of Miss Caroline Louise Schoettker to Mr. and Mrs. Davies' son, John Coonley Davies. The ceremony took place Jan. 14 in the New Canaan, Conn., home of Mr. Davies' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton S. Billings.

The bride, who attended DePauw university, is the daughter of Mrs. Edward C. Schoettker of E. Supe-

Contrast Dress Will Serve for Many Seasons

BY REA SEEGER.

Contrast dresses for wear under somewhat time-weary winter coats provide a new interest and pick-up. The same effective creations will slide obligingly under slim new spring coats of dark or neutral tones, then emerge later with short, bright jackets. Still later they are smart simple dresses for summer wear with summer costume accessories. So it's well to shop now for such distinctive models while the collections are complete and varied. Seldom do the smartest creations play a return engagement.

Vivid prints are tremendously popular as that first important buy for a jaded winter wardrobe. Florals, geometrics, and conversation starting prints in brilliant colors lure money out of pockets with ease, for these first fresh high colored prints are the very breath of spring just in the gay flowers and leaves of the small designs. More dramatic prints feature a huge design in an all-over pattern widely spaced against dark backgrounds such as navy or brown, copper or black. These are the first prints to be used for the ensembles of coat with companion dress, the dress and coat lining of the same eye-catching print.

Bold checks and stripes vie convincingly with the florals. The wide and evenly spaced stripes are exciting in simple day time dresses of rayon crepes and jerseys. Skirts are wider and, to the average eye, enough different from the needle slim affairs of last year to justify the brief sleeves and sometime mere shoulder caps. Effective stripes are those of alternate white and color, with the gray and white, navy and white, black and white, and red and white leading the lists. All are impressive contrasts for dark topcoats.

City's Public School Enrollment Drops 9,684 More in Year

Chicago's public schools have 9,684 fewer pupils now than a year ago, Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent, reported yesterday. Elementary school enrollment dropped 9,071 to 252,163 and high school enrollment declined 613 to 107,044.

Mr. Rogers said that the declining enrollment in grade schools is in direct ratio to a low birth rate several years ago. The decline in the high school figure was less in the last year because of a general effort to induce pupils to remain in school rather than quit for war jobs, he said.

Since 1940 grade school enrollment has declined 40,799 and high school enrollment has fallen off 33,543. Highest enrollment in the last six years was reached in 1941, when there were 284,588 pupils in grade schools and 142,486 in high schools.

Skating Party Way to Break Ice with Boy

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Q.—"I recently attended a party and met a fellow there. I liked him very much and he seemed to like me, too, but we made no date nor definite plans to meet again. I should like to see him again, however, and I think he'd be rather pleased to see me. He doesn't know my address but as I know where he lives would it be wrong to write to him to invite him to a skating party my school is giving? He is the only boy I know whom I'd like to ask to such a party. . . . "

On the SOLID side

A.—Chances are 10 to 1 that the Joe in question will be pleased to see you again, so ask him to the skating party. A written invitation might be too formal [you don't want him to pick you up in white tie and tr ils, do you?], you don't see him to extend the invitation personally so why not call him at his home some evening? It will give you the chance for a more casual and friendly approach.

Q.—"As far as I have been able to figure out, most girls have a 'line.' I happen to be one who hasn't. I'm considered popular, but with girls only. Every time a boy comes into the picture, I'm lost. The other girls seem to know what to say and just when to say it, but this particular Sad Sal is at a loss for words and just sits there. So how does one go about acquiring a line? It seems that a line is essential to any girl who expects to date. . . . "

A.—To a gal who has difficulty making with the small talk when fellows are around, any other girl who can keep the conversation rolling seems to be a sharp young character with a "line" that's all smooth and a yard wide. But there is a big difference between a "line" and the ability to keep up an interesting conversation. A line is just soft talk used to string the boys along. A good conversationalist is one who has a stock of interests and anecdotes and knows how to use them when the conversation gets thin around the edges. It's sincere interest and fresh conversation that makes a gal fun to talk with. A girl with a "good line" may be able to tell every second boy who comes along that he's her particular kind of date-bait and do a little verbal eye-rolling every time she talks to any fellow, but that kind of ersatz interest doesn't last. Boys like their gals honest.

Thru the Looking Glass

How bright are you about suiting the degree and intensity of your makeup to the time of day and the occasion? Or haven't you given it much thought?

It's an interesting subject and if your rating in the matter is good you can have fun checking up on the women you meet as you ride down to work, encounter when you're shopping, mingle with at parties, or see wherever and whenever there are groups of women. [And aren't there bunches of us today?]

Fortunately, most of us gals are fairly smart about the matter and apply makeup to suit our mode of dress and activities. We use a light hand in applying cosmetics when we're dressing for ordinary day time events, such as going down to the office or out for a day's shopping, and then discreetly shoot the works when we're primping for a special occasion. But there are still too many of us who have only one makeup routine, be it the overdone or underdone variety, and make that do for all occasions.

It's amazing to see a woman who wouldn't think of wearing a party dress to the office trot off to that same office with her face made up as if she were going to a ball. She's wearing the same amount of paint she would if she were expecting the soft lights of a night club to drain the color from her face. In the light of day the effect is unflatteringly garish and in bad taste.

On the other hand, there is the drab sister who goes off to a gala event, dressed correctly as far as clothes are concerned and ruining the whole effect with the little slap of powder and touch of lipstick she thinks is just the thing, and probably is—for going about her household duties.

Journey Underground

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author, a Lake Forest boy, enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and won his wings as a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force in England. On his ninth combat mission over Europe, enemy fighters attacked the formation near Paris. Prosser's Flying Fortress was hit and the crew had to bail out. He landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his right ankle. Soon he met two men, Jacques and Marceau, both former French soldiers, who took him to Marceau's home. Marceau's mother, Mere Louise, bandaged the injured foot and they hid him in the attic of their home. He met Marceau's wife, Renee, and other members of the household, including Marcel, who helped in the family's furniture shop; Germaine, whose husband was a prisoner in Germany, and Jeannette, whose father was a prisoner.

INSTALMENT V.

When La Mere Louise brought up luncheon, she said that she had been working hard all morning, and sat down for quite a long talk with me. She had been helping the men with their carpentry, sanding down a table. Downstairs they had set up a little workshop just before the war. Then there had been seven men in it, all making furniture. All the men except Marcel were mobilized in the early days of the war.

Until Jacques and Marceau returned, she and Marcel had tried to carry on as well as they could, but it had been a difficult time. Materials were hard to get and in winter when food was scarce they were often too weak to do more than two hours work a day. The last winter Marceau had been home, and Jacques had returned before spring, so since then they had done well. Marceau took the finished furniture into Paris each Tuesday; it was in great demand and sold very well.

"As she rushed on with this one-sided conversation, she tended to draw her face closer and closer to mine."

As Madame massaged my foot, she looked at it very carefully and said, "It will be another two days at least before you can leave."

The ankle had not noticeably changed, and I was becoming a little worried about it. I thought certainly that within two days the swelling should have gone done considerably, but it had not, and I was still bedridden.

Marceau came up just as we were discussing the problem to say, "Don't worry, you can stay until your foot is completely healed." Having given me that assurance, he and his mother went downstairs.

I excused myself from reading or studying all the time, for my reading material was very limited and difficult, but at least one poem and 20 French words were to be learned each day.

Renee came upstairs and interrupted my program. I was glad to have a short rest. She started rushing about the attic looking for something and talking to me at such a rate of speed that I could not possibly have understood her. She was rather an amusing sight, flitting about the attic in search of something, which by the intensity of her search, seemed to be important. She had rather a good figure which I had not noticed before; in fact, she was quite good looking. Her large black eyes compensated for the rest of her rather dreary face. Her mouth was small, and her lips were always well rouged, but her teeth were badly formed and irregular. Her hair was a dark mouse color, and hung down about her shoulders in rather a third class Rita Hayworth style.

Suddenly Renee had lost interest in her search and was sitting on the side of the bed talking faster even than before. I tried to look as if I understood, but after a few moments even that became too unbearable.

As she spoke she made many rapid gestures with her hands. One of them particularly intrigued me—I had always been taught to think it most indecent, but as I thought she was referring to the Germans, I accepted it in good patriotic fun. Then I discovered that it meant "to go."

"Am I going?" I asked.

As she rushed on with this one-sided conversation, she tended to draw her face closer and closer to mine. Each time she approached to within six inches I retreated back toward the wall—in a very short time my head was against the wall. I could not understand this advance, whether it was just Renee's manner or the preliminaries to seduction—whatever it was, the stage was perfectly set for the husband's unexpected entry and an all-out scene between husband and [innocent, in this case] lover.

Just as if a cue had been given, I suddenly heard the door open—"Marceau and the scene," I thought. Renee made no definite move, but in one lightning movement I had dodged down around her head and shoulders and took an indifferent looking [I hoped] position, lying on my stomach. Renee made no move as the feet on the staircase neared the top—obviously this was just Renee's manner, but what a disconcerting one. Even so, I was very glad to see Germaine at the head of the stairs and not Marceau.

She had brought up my milk and melba toast today.

When I finished, Germaine came over to sit on the bed while Renee sat in a chair. I asked Germaine if she had had a letter from her husband. No, she had not received one, but she said that a man who works in the same factory as her husband had come to a near-by village on leave and had offered to take some things back to her husband when he returned to Germany.

Just as the conversation began to lag, Mere Louise clambered up the stairs in her wooden shoes. When she saw the other two women, she launched into a spirited conversation with not too friendly a tone to it, and they quickly disappeared down the stairs. "There is bread to make," she said, and scurried down the stairs herself.

That night when the men came upstairs after dinner, they all became very interested in looking at the things I had brought with me, and could hardly believe that we were so thoroly equipped.

I felt that Marceau, before all the others, might be able to get me an identity card which would be so necessary if I were to travel far.

I could not avoid thinking of his brother-in-law at the police station and that there might have been a possibility of his helping us get papers.

Marceau remained silent for some time looking as if he were devising some sort of plan—I hoped it was the right one.

Jacques was very interested in the few odd shilling and half crown pieces that I had. He collected coins, he said, and brought out some Russian and Polish ones which were very odd and different.

Women Pledge Hospital WAC Recruiting Aid

Fifty prominent women's organizations yesterday joined the "battalion of mercy" by pledging to recruit at least one hospital WAC each in the current procurement campaign in Cook county, to continue thru March 16.

Representatives of the organizations at a meeting in the Merchants and Manufacturers' club, called by Ben Regan, director of the county citizens' committee to recruit hospital WACs, heard Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, deputy director; Maj. Doris E. Epperson, WAC director in the 6th service command; Lt. Col. Franklin Walton, chief of surgical services at the army's Vaughan General hospital; Maj. Robert E. Lynch, WAC recruiting director in the command, and Capt. Mary W. Stephenson, assistant to Maj. Lynch.

Col. Walton described the speed with which wounded men are returned for treatment to hospitals in the United States from the battle fronts. He emphasized that speed in recruiting is essential.

Mr. Regan announced that Illinois' original quota in the drive, 405 new WAC hospital technicians, has been doubled because of the greater rate at which veterans are being returned to this country. "Thirty thousand wounded men are sent back to the United States every month," he said, "and they need women's care. Being a WAC hospital worker is the greatest service a woman can perform for the prosecution of the war."

Maj. Epperson told the clubwomen that of the 1,300 WACs in the 6th service command, more than half now are assigned to hospital work.

Among the women's organizations which pledged thru their representatives to report recruiting prospects to WAC procurement headquarters, room A-333, 175 W. Jackson blvd., were the Association of Army Wives, the Salvation Army women's division, the Altrusa clubs, the Women's Advertising club, the American Women's Voluntary Services, the Chicago Junior league, the Girl Scouts, Inc., and the Women's Overseas Service league.

Also in the roster of groups supporting the drive were the Pilot and Soroptomist clubs, the Chicago Council of Catholic Women, the Illinois American Legion auxiliary, the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, the Y. W. C. A., the Illinois State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, the women's auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Order of the Eastern Star in Illinois.

I offered him some of my coins for his collection; he was delighted at this opportunity to get a British coin.

Later, after the men had gone downstairs, Mere Louise came up to my bed and asked in a subdued voice, suitable for an occasion of the deepest confidence: "Do you have an American coin that I might have as a souvenir?"

I had to tell her that this was one of the things not included in my kit. She was very disappointed, and I felt that I must give her something. The only distinctive American trinkets I had were the wing lapel badges of an officer's uniform. They seemed to be almost too insignificant, but I gave them to her, hoping they would take the place of the coin in her heart.

She was delighted, and assured me, "I shall keep these all my life; when I die they will go to my daughter, and her daughter will bequeath them to her daughter. They shall never leave the family." I felt rather overwhelmed to discover that I had given her a gift to which she had immediately attached so much sentiment.

The next day Marceau came up to talk for a while after lunch. The question of the identity card again arose. As we discussed it Renee and then Mere Louise offered me theirs. I showed great interest and asked them to bring them up. La Mere had the newest type card. It was printed on a piece of stiff white paper and was extremely simple. I made the comment, "These cards should be very easy to forge." Trying to maintain Marceau's interest I added, "Marceau, do you think we might be able to make some sign that resembled the police rubber stamp?"

Marceau said that paper would be impossible to get, but he seemed to answer abstractly.

Much of my time I spent in planning my route. The family had brought me all the old maps in the house. There was a question in my mind as to whether to go to Spain or Switzerland.

Marcel was my enthusiastic co-planner. He continually made many useful suggestions. He told me where I would find reliable Frenchmen, in what town there were large numbers of German troops, how to look like one of the local inhabitants, and many other bits of information.

As days went on Marcel and I shortened my walking route considerably. "I think it will be best to walk to a point south of Paris in the Fontainebleau area," he said, "and from there take the local railway train."

I tried to memorize as much of the map as possible. When Mere Louise rubbed my foot, I would practice the pronunciation of the names of towns and rivers and have her correct me. Renee told me of several places where I might stay en route, but most of them were slightly off my path.

Several days later Marceau brought some wonderful news—he could get me a carte d'identite. My none too subtle hints had had their desired effect. His brother-in-law at the police station would be able to make one for me. As much as I wanted the card, I was a little worried about the possible danger it might bring to Marceau, for the source of this card would be very close to him. However, he said, as he always did when I thought some project dangerous for him, "Pas de danger." [No danger.]

His brother-in-law said that making the card would be very simple, and two days later it arrived. They used my own name, David, which I thought was rather unwise.

Officially I was a 21 year old electrician for high tension wires. My profession had been Marceau's idea; he explained, "I chose this because you limp—if any one asks why you are not working you can say that you fell from one of the high poles and injured your feet."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of clubs.

Quick thinking and the exercise of sound judgment are sometimes required when an adversary has invoked the laws of contract bridge against you upon the commission of an irregularity, such as an insufficient bid or a call out of turn. Where partner is barred from the auction it may be incumbent upon you to take the bull by the horns and gamble out a game bid on behalf of the partner whose lips you have silenced by your indiscretion.

In today's hand North actually dealt the cards, but South in his eagerness to "get into the act" bid one spade out of turn. Attention was called to the irregularity and under the laws North was permanently barred. The spade bid was canceled and it therefore became East's turn to call. He craftily decided upon a pass. This was good strategy. North, an unknown quantity, having been barred, South would in all probability make a stab in the dark for game and East could take appropriate and profitable action on the next round. As might have been expected South contracted for game selecting three no trump as the shortest road in the dark.

East, pleased as punch, doubled and West led the six of clubs. East's king went to South's ace. It was evident that in addition to the king of diamonds a heart trick would have to be brought home if the contract was to be fulfilled, so declarer led the nine of spades over to dummy's queen and then a heart. East won with the king and destroyed the effect of his previous sagacity, by continuing with a club. It should have been evident to him that the club suit had no future since he would be unable to follow up the attack and a shift to diamonds was indicated. This would have resulted in a one trick defeat.

Declarer, of course, won the club return, since East could have no more if the lead was from a four card suit, and entered dummy by leading the ten of spades to play another heart. This was taken by the ace and the shift to a low diamond came too late. Declarer went up with the king and claimed nine tricks.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 28 [Special].—Indiana university, the Western conference's most consistent basketball loser this season, displayed a sharp reversal of form tonight in its final contest of the year, defeating a favorite University of Illinois quintet, 65 to 55. The victory broke an eight game losing streak for Indiana and resulted in the fourth loss in Big Nine competition for Illinois.

Indiana took an 11 to 10 lead after the first seven minutes of play and never relinquished its advantage the rest of the way, holding a 33 to 28 margin at half time. The same degree of inaccuracy in field goal and free throw shooting that toppled Illinois from a contending spot in the Big Nine title race to third place in the standings was apparent tonight.

Illini Weak in Free Throws.

While Indiana made good on 25 field goals in 80 attempts, the Illini connected on 25 out of 100. Altho the two teams were equal in total field goals, Illinois was weak in the free throw department, scoring only five while Indiana made good on 15.

Al Kralovansky, Indiana's sophomore center from East Chicago, Ind., paired with Jim Copeland in spearheading the Indiana scoring attack which started late in the first period and extended thru the final half. Kralovansky, who took the season's scoring honors for Indiana with a total of 195 points in 21 games, picked up 23 points tonight to lead the individual scoring. He was followed by Copeland with 19.

Junior Kirk Goes Scoreless.

While Walt Kersulis was high scorer for Illinois with five field goals and one free throw, he missed on five free shots. Junior Kirk, high scorer for Illinois quintet, was held scoreless tonight. He was unable to tally from the fiel.. and he missed out on six chances from the free throw line. Lineups:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE NEW MEXICO senate's effort to pass a bill which would ban booing at professional wrestling and boxing matches recalls a similar attempt on the part of Fred Kohler, at the time mayor of Cleveland. . . . Mayor Kohler, angered by the outbursts at an amateur ring show in the Public hall, announced that the sport would be discontinued unless the fans refrained from such outbursts. . . . At the next amateur show the howling was more pronounced than ever, so Kohler placed a ban on boxing which stood for years. . . . You need look no further than the record of Relief Pitcher Jittery Joe Berry to learn why the Athletics finished in a tie for a first division spot in the American league last season. . . . Altho he did not start a game, Joe worked 111 innings and was credited with 10 victories. . . . Most hitters in the circuit agree that for four or five innings the fragile workman is unbeatable. . . . Manager Freddy Fitzsimmons holds that the time has arrived to treat his Phillies with some respect. . . . "We are buying instead of selling players these days," explains Freddy, "and within a few years should have a winner. . . . My only hope is that I'll be managing the club when the time comes." . . . Terry McGovern once knocked out two opponents in one night. . . . Patsey Haley, who later became famous as a referee in New York, lasted less than a round. . . . Turkey Point Smith, the second victim, went three. . . . Unlike most pugilists who box from an orthodox stance, Harry Jeffra has no aversion to southpaws. . . . He claims to have fought eight good left-handers and to have knocked out seven of them. . . . Col. Larry McPhail, the new coöwner of the Yankees, always has been sports minded. . . . He played baseball at the University of Michigan, later became a football official, and is a better than average golfer. . . .

Coach Jeff Cravath has received a substantial boost in salary from the University of Southern California. . . . Trojan alumni had planned to do it if the school hadn't. . . . If George McQuinn finally is accepted for military service it will break up the St. Louis Browns' 4-F infield which had a lot to do with bringing the club its first pennant. . . . Says Jim Thorpe: "Football is the easiest of all games to play because it requires only brute strength in most instances. . . . Baseball is the hardest because it takes continual thinking and snap judgment; track is the finest conditioner and should be compulsory in every high school in the United States." . . . BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The commencement exercises of the most thrilling Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions in the 18 year history of boxing's biggest and best show were conducted last night in the Chicago Stadium before a crowd of 13,400 which was hard pressed thru 32 battles to ascertain which member of the quarter-final cast of 64 boxers was the best.

The regulars of the Golden Gloves faithful who had kept themselves busy thruout the first two sessions of the stirring three night program thought they had seen a-plenty. Last evening they watched the hardiest youngsters from 23 states lambaste each other in all eight weight divisions for the right to be in the select cast of 32 to argue it out in the same Stadium ring in the championship finals on March 9.

Qualifiers for the final session by classes:

HEAVYWEIGHTS—Paul Thomas, Milwaukee; Luke Baylark, Chicago; John Harding, Kansas City; Corp. William Zuke, Omaha.

The 32 winners of last night's sensational finish produced the company which will assemble one week from tomorrow for the penultimate party of local amateur boxing. In that March 9 joust they will have to go twice to win the right to meet their old eastern foes in the Inter-city bouts against New York in the Stadium on April 4.

Quijano Wins Thriller.

The regular customers who had attended Tuesday's heavier classes came with their eyes on the deeds of two 175 pounders—Adolfo Quijano of Los Angeles, winner of five consecutive knockouts, two of them in the Tournament of Champions, and John Gulley, one of the sharpest young men to reach the big show. For most of two rounds, this talented St. Louis Negro withstood the best shots of Quijano to a point where he had the big California army air corporal baffled.

Toward the end of the second round, tho, the black haired Quijano caught his foe with a brace of head punches which rocked the Missourian. The latter had charge of the fight to this point, but Quijano, seemingly exhausted, called on his reserve power to continue hammering John. Gulley was still in there swinging to the big crowd's applause until the finish. Quijano, who is stationed at Muroc, Cal., was just as tireless, matching Gulley's blows to the final gong.

Boyd Defeats Thomas.

Jackie Boyd, the skinny young west sider who won the 1944 Chicago city Golden Gloves flyweight title, then came back to repeat in this year's tournament, assured Chicago of a role in the big show on March 9 by taking a hard earned decision from Spider Thomas, a busy little Negro from Muncie, Ind. Spider's charging tactics couldn't quite match the astute jabbing of the blond Chicagoan.

Chicago's second standard bearer, Bantamweight Joey Plummer of the

And I couldn't seem to fall asleep again,
Altho I tried by all means in my power.

And wonder how he fared away off there,
And then for him and all the other boys
I'd start my nightly endless round of prayer."

And I thought, how many sleepless nights
Are being passed in cottage and in tower,
How many weary hearts lie there awake
And hear the town clock striking every hour,

O, may it not be long until sweet rest
And dreamless sleep will come—that will be when

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Texas Golden Glove team, a rip-snorting posse of punch packers here under the sponsorship of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, has been having a high old time in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium this week.

As THE TRIBUNE'S 18th annual amateur boxing show went into its third night, the Texans had won nine of their first 11 bouts, placing six men in the quarter-finals, thereby taking a short lived advantage in the scramble for the team championship trophy, one of the most prized of the sport's awards.

Not Typical Texans.

Three of the six won their bouts last night and two of the losses could just as well have been put with the Fort Worth victory tally. But Judges, who have a lot more experience in deciding the finer points, don't always see eye to eye with the crowd.

Altho the coaches came to Chicago in white hats and boots, the early pace setters, strangely enough, are not typical Texans. There's not

Little Fellows May Renew Private Feud in Gloves Finals

Frank Rivera of Kansas City and Jackie Boyd of the Chicago Golden Gloves team will have to wait until the tournament finals in Chicago Stadium March 9 before being able to settle their 2 months old ring feud.

These mighty mites were all ready to take care of their differences in last night's quarter-final competition in the Stadium, but the luck of the draw decreed otherwise. Rivera drew Pvt. Roy Stewart of Peoria and Chanute field, over whom he scored a convincing decision, while Boyd beat Spider Thomas, Muncie, Ind., in equally impressive fashion.

They've Met Before.

The Rivera-Boyd antagonism had its inception in Kansas City when Frankie was awarded a decision over Boyd which gave the Missouri team a draw in an intercity match with a Chicago Catholic Youth organization squad, four bouts to four.

Boyd and his backers claim Jackie deserved the award, while Charley Meyers, director of the American Youth clubs in Kansas City and coach of the Star's standard bearers, is just as insistent that the verdict in favor of Rivera was a just one.

Rivera, 18, is making his first appearance in the big show. Last year he captured the novice 112 pound title in Kansas City.

Overlook Other Foes.

In the heat of their personal rivalry, Boyd and Rivera have overlooked the challenge of two other strong contenders for the flyweight championship—Aldo Lu Pari of the Los Angeles Times' team and Ted Fittipaldo, representing the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Lu Pari beat Russell McCarty of Grand Rapids last night to advance to the semi-final round and Fittipaldo won from Gilbert Areche de la Cruz of Fort Worth.

The Chicago Sports Officials' association, of which Chester Coyner, Golden Gloves announcer, was a member, will attend the wake of Coyner and his wife, Eleanor, tonight at the chapel at 3246 W. Jackson blvd. They were killed early Tuesday morning when Chet's automobile struck a railroad viaduct abutment in 76th st., between Parnell av. and Wallace st.

Pvt. Max Klemm, heavyweight of Peoria and Chanute field, was late for his physical examination at yesterday's ceremonies in C. Y. O. center, but stayed to watch Pvt. Joe [Scully] Lerro of Chicago, who is an instructor at his field, draw Paul Thomas of the Milwaukee Journal as his foe in last night's encounter. Thomas, who was substituted for Pvt. Ray Monette after the latter was ruled out because of professionalism, eliminated Bud Streit of Minneapolis in Tuesday's preliminary competition.

Klemm, 28 years old, was defeated by Dan Merritt of Cleveland in the 1938 semi-finals when a representative of Cedar Rapids. Prior to entering the army, Max was a bus driver in Cedar Rapids. He has been at Chanute field three months and is an athletic instructor there.

FORMER CHIEF AT N. U. SIGNS FOR 3 YEARS

Nevers to Aid

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 28 [Special].—Maj. Ernie Nevers, athletic officer at the San Diego marine base, tonight signed for three years as assistant to Lt. Col. Dick Hanley, new coach of the Chicago club in the All-America Football conference. Maj. Nevers, who recently returned from service in the Pacific, will report to Chicago whenever he is discharged from the marine corps.

BY ARCH WARD.

John L. Keeshin, president of the Keeshin Freight Lines, who owns the Chicago franchise, announced that the agreement was for three years. The contract was drawn in Los Angeles.

Terms of the deal were not announced, but Col. Hanley, who soon will leave for his second overseas tour of duty, said his compensation will substantially exceed the annual remuneration he received at Northwestern university, where he served as head coach from 1927 thru 1934. He will report to the Chicago team after the war.

Five Teams Have Coaches.

Hanley is the fifth coach signed by clubs in the All-America conference. The others are Lt. [j. g.] Paul E. Brown, formerly of Ohio State, who will lead the Cleveland squad; Buck Shaw of Santa Clara, who will direct the San Francisco team; Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher of the Iowa Seahawks, who for seven years was coach and athletic director at Alabama Poly and who has been signed by Miami, and Sam Cordovano, formerly of Columbia university, who is co-owner and coach of the Buffalo unit.

"I am thrilled at the opportunity to return to Chicago after the war as a football coach," said Col. Hanley in Los Angeles last night. "Chicago is the greatest sports center in the nation. With Soldiers' field as a site, Mr. Keeshin and I expect to build a team that will merit the support of the area's hundreds of thousands of fans.

Business Opportunity, Too.

"I never gave a thought to a coaching career in pro football until the All-America conference was organized. The owners in that group are going to do something for young men fresh from college besides giving them immediate employment. In our case, they'll get a chance to learn the transportation business in the months they are not engaged in football. By the time they are at the end of their gridiron service they will be experienced in a field which may serve as a life pursuit. It will be a break for the Keeshin company as well as for the athletes involved.

"I realize now more than ever the importance of football and other contact sports," Hanley continued. "The war has taught all of us engaged in the training of men for battle that the spirit of man, his morale, his will to win are not enough. It takes more than moral strength to man machines in combat that continues without pause for days and weeks. It takes more than spirit to face the enemy in a surprise encounter at the end of an all-night march. It takes physical stamina, as well as spirit, to perform effectively under such conditions and come thru alive. Football develops that stamina. The training shouldn't end at 21 or 22 when a man receives his college diploma."

Captain in First World War.

Hanley, who last fall coached the El Torro, Cal., marines, entered service soon after the attack on Pearl Harbor with the rank of major. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel a year ago. He was a captain in the marine corps in World War I.

Chicago's new pro coach was born in Minnesota 48 years ago and moved with his parents to the Pacific coast when he was a boy. He entered Washington State shortly before the first World war and played quarter back on the football

Catholic Youth organization, tried his best against Hector Marquez of the strong Fort Worth team, but Marquez's willingness to accept the 17 year old Chicagoan's stoutest punches, plus a third round thrust in which the Texan lathered Plummer, was enough to win the decision for Hector.

The closest free style argument of the quarter-finals brought together Chicago's lightweight representative, Bernard Paige of the Savoy A. C. and Pvt. Angelo Soave, the Fort Knox, Ky., soldier who traveled nearly 400 miles to win his right to come up to the big show. Soave had Paige worried thru the first round, but then his flying fists began to miss the mark and the Chicago Negro won himself a place in the final 32 by his command of the last round.

The welterweights in the perennial gathering of the fistic clan, never a reticent group, lived up to tradition. Gil Garcia of the Fort Worth detail carried out his earlier promise by stopping Sam Baker of Terre Haute in the second minute of their second round. Lalo Berezzo, the Cleveland Plain Dealer 147 pounder, who had been recommended by his Ohio compatriots long before the tournament began, lived up to those advance notices by stopping Robert Manti of Milwaukee in the second minute of the first round.

Corp. Attra Wins Again.

Ray Spurlock, the Kansas City southpaw middleweight who discovered that he had a right hand in the interim since last year, when he fought on the Intercity team against New York, found himself with a job in his quarter-final assignment last evening against the rough and ready Jimmy McGrath of Fort Worth. The Texan didn't show a speck of respect for the Missourian, worrying him with a body assault in the first round, but Ray came back to win the last two in one of the most strenuous bouts of the tournament.

The top veteran of the Tournament of Champions, Corp. Tom Attra of Fort Worth, who was making his fourth appearance in the show, after three previous efforts in which he won the 1942 light heavyweight crown, kept up his record by earning a decision from Ken Fenske of Grand Rapids, a willing competitor who almost matched Thomas in endurance.

Luke Bayiark, the giant Savoy A. C. Negro who has won the city heavyweight championship for the last two years, gave Chicago its third representative in the March 9 finals by winning a decision from bald Chester Harter of Fort Wayne.

Red Smith to Serve as Cub Scout, Coach

Richard [Red] Smith will team up again with his old boss, Charley Grimm, manager of the Cubs. The chunky red head, better known in Chicago as a former aid to Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers, yesterday signed as bull pen coach and scout for the Cubs.

Smith was Grimm's right hand man four seasons with the Milwaukee Brewers and remained with the American association club after Charley was called to Chicago as Cub pilot last season. Smith recently was dismissed by the Brewers.

The newcomer rounds out a staff of three coaches, the other two being Roy Johnson and Milt Stock. Smith was line coach of the New York football Giants last season and will return there in the same capacity next fall.

The White Sox are marking time until the scheduled arrival next Thursday of their manager, James J. Dykes.

Army Five Ends Basket Play with 54-34 Victory

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 28 [Special].—The United States military academy basketball team wound up its home season with an easy 54 to 34 victory over Maryland's Terrapins in the fieldhouse today.

GOMEZ WILL RECOVER.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 28 [AP].—Staff Sgt. Tommy Gomez, with the 9th army in Europe, has written his family that he is "full of holes but out of danger." The former Tampa heavyweight boxer received several bullet wounds in action recently, and is now recuperating in England.

One, Hector Marquiz, the bantamweight who won two fights Monday night, lives in Juarez, across the border from El Paso. Middleweight Pvt. James [Trim Jim] McGrath was born in Scotland 21 years ago, but has lived most of his life in Detroit. He became an adopted Texan when the army air force put him on duty at Bryan AAF, just off the campus of Texas A. & M. college. Heavyweight Corp. Gene Gosney is an Oklahoman who is doing his army training in Texas at Camp Hood.

Marquez Defeats Plummer.

Marquez whipped Joseph Plummer of Chicago in one of the hottest matches of the evening and only won thru a third round rally that had Plummer on the way out when the bell sounded. The first two rounds were split. McGrath was beaten by Kansas City's Ray Spurlock, one of the best fighters in the tournament, but the fight went the full three rounds.

The other five are Texans, but not of the ranch type. Flyweight Gilbert Areche De LaCruz is a 17 year old high school boy from San Antonio. Featherweight Lloyd W. Williams, 19, was born in Temple, but calls Dalias his home now. Lightweight Jess Willard Blankenship is a Beaumont Hig. school football player. Welterweight Gilbert Garcia, 19, is a ship yard worker at Houston. Light Heavyweight Corp. Tom Attra is a native of Austin, but now is stationed at Brooks AAF at San Antonio.

De La Cruse and Williams Lose.

De La Cruze couldn't cope with the southpaw style of Cleveland's Ted Fittipaldo and dropped a decision. Then Williams lost a close one to Jack Darthard of Kansas City. It was a good, fast affair and could have gone either way.

Garcia, however, made Sam Baker of Terre Haute quit in the second round after a series of body punches had taken its toll.

Attra, wearing patches over his eyes, and with a skinned nose giving him the appearance of a battle royal performer, took Kenneth Fenske of Grand Rapids into camp in the Fort Worth team's final appearance of the night.

Only Two Losers.

Lightweight Blankenship and Heavyweight Gosney were the only losers Monday and Tuesday. Marquiz, Garcia, and Attra won two fights each. De La Cruz, Williams, and McGrath had to fight only once.

Marquiz, clerk in a Juarez department store is hailed in El Paso as the amateur bantamweight champion of Mexico, but there is no official national tournament so the claim has vague foundation. The modest, smiling little fellow is good. His bobbing and weaving style plus punching ability, makes him a tough fellow to beat. He is 21 and more mature than most Golden Glovers.

Garcia and De La Cruz are Latin Americans. Garcia has three brothers who are boxers and he has had a lot of experience tho he has been boxing only two years and is small even for a flyweight.

Win Four Texas Titles.

Attra is the papa of the group. He is 26 and this is his sixth year in Golden Gloves participation. He has won four Texas championships and competed in the Tournament of Champions here four times. In 1942 he won the 175 pound crown to help Fort Worth to its second team championship. He also was on the 1940 team which captured the coveted trophy. A former Austin newsboy, he now is a physical training instructor at Brooks field.

The Texas representatives qualified for their trip to Chicago by winning in the Star-Telegram's ninth tournament, a state-wide affair that had 17 teams from civilian and military centers, each of which held its own elimination tournaments. Twenty-two states, Mexico, and Hawaii had sons in the tournament, which was one of the most successful ever directed by the newspaper's sports editor, Flem Hall.

HAWK HOPES DIE OR RISE TONIGHT ON RANGER RINK

New York, Feb. 28 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks, hope renewed after their 3 to 3 tie with Toronto Tuesday, arrived here today for their scheduled clash with the New York Rangers tomorrow night.

Each team needs tomorrow night's game to keep alive their hopes of entering the play-offs. For the Rangers a victory will hoist them into fourth place a half game ahead of the Boston Bruins.

A victory for the Hawks will cut the fourth place Bruins' lead to only two games and, as the Hawks and Boston have two games left to play together, the Hawks, by winning both and taking their final Chicago game against New York and tying or winning one of their remaining contests against the Canadiens, could qualify for the play-offs.

RELEASE HANDBALL DATES.

The annual Y. M. C. A. city doubles handball tournament will be held in the Hyde Park Y from March 14 to 19, and the state singles meet will be held in the Lawson Y from April 11 to 14, it was announced yesterday.

MINORS OUTLINE PROPOSALS FOR NEW AGREEMENT

BY EDWARD PRELL.

First phase of a new major-minor agreement to be operative next January for a 10-year period was completed yesterday when the minor leagues' 10-man committee finished a three-day session. It was certain that this committee, which has only the power to make suggestions, proposed that the minors get a better deal from their big baseball brothers.

Next development will be a conference between a minor league committee of eight and representatives from the American and National leagues to study the recommendations and try to reach common ground on them. Tom Richardson, president of the Eastern league and chairman of the committee, suggested that this meeting take place within the next 30 to 60 days.

No Comment from Harridge.

He thought that perhaps the next move should come from the major leagues. But Will Harridge, president of the American league, was of the opinion that the proper procedure would be for this group to make its report to William G. Bramham, president of the National association of Professional Baseball clubs. Then, Mr. Harridge suggested, perhaps President Bramham, as representative of the minors would contact the big leagues.

The committee reached the point of belligerency during its deliberations, heightened by a demand that the minors have a voice in the naming of a commissioner to succeed the late K. M. Landis. On this committee were such former major leaguers as Clarence Rowland and Billy Evans. Rowland is president of the Pacific Coast league and Evans is boss of the Southern association.

Several Provisions Made.

The group also wound up and delivered another fast one in suggesting legislation for the protection of the minors that would enable them to either reaffirm or cancel the agreement governing their relationship with the majors.

Richardson admitted that several revisions were made in the agreement which has been operative since 1934 and which expires on Jan. 11, 1946. These were not revealed, he said, because they first must be accepted by the minor leagues as a whole.

Service Men Will Cast in Tribune Event

Two of the new events on the schedule of THE TRIBUNE'S annual casting tournament should prove outstanding from the standpoint of both competitors and spectators. These are the service men's contest and the husband-wife event. The casting meet will be held in conjunction with the International Sportsmen's show opening in the Coliseum March 10.

"I hope the tournament will be a success and hope to see it myself," Col. Hall wrote. "Then I would like to take the winner on a fishing trip and show him up."

Col. Chester L. Fordney, head of the central procurement division of the marine corps, and Capt. Fred H. Dettmar, public relations officer at Fort Sheridan, also have called the service men's casting event to the attention of their men. Placards announcing the contest have been placed in all the local U. S. O. centers and service men's canteens.

All service men are eligible for

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—President and Mrs. Roosevelt and top ranking officials attended military burial services in Arlington National cemetery today for Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary and military aide.

The 61 year old artillery man died at sea Feb. 20 en route from the Crimea conference on the cruiser that brought the chief executive home. His body was brought to Washington early today on the President's train.

The President sat in his closed car with one window down during the services. The general's widow also remained in her car.

A White House messenger, Robert Goodloe, World War I. corporal, who was Watson's personal chauffeur before the latter became Mr. Roosevelt's appointment secretary in 1939, stood in tears during the ceremony. So did the family's cook, Edith Fletcher.

WAR TIME BOOM MAKES UNIONS BIG BUSINESS

Pile Up Vast Funds, Gain Members.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Labor unions are big business. Their aggregate yearly revenues, wholly tax free, are estimated at more than a quarter of a billion dollars. High war time employment and union membership, with comparatively little strike expense, are enabling the unions to pile up funds in their treasuries at an unprecedented rate.

Investigation by THE TRIBUNE discloses that there are a score of national labor organizations that have net assets that exceed one million dollars. The dues collected by some of the unions average a million dollars a month for an annual rate of 12 million dollars. Some unions are using their big war time revenue to build up their treasury balances; others are spending to gain more members and solidify their positions. Labor spokesmen agree that in the aggregate organized labor today wields more money influence than ever before.

Funds Held in Liquid Form.

The unions have become big investors in government securities. For the most part union funds are held in liquid form, either in government issues or other readily marketable securities or in cash. In some instances unions hold other assets such as office buildings and other property, sometimes used for organization purposes or merely held as investments. Financial officers of the national unions are taking an interest in the government's fiscal policies. Their interest is that of investors, anxious to protect their big investments in government securities.

A complete statement of the financial resources of organized labor cannot be presented because thousands of local unions, which retain most of the money collected in dues, do not issue reports on their finances. Reports from national unions are far from complete, but information assembled from various sources discloses that a score of these organizations have assets valued at more than a million each after allowance is made for their liabilities. Total assets of at least two unions exceed 30 million dollars.

Assets of Richest Unions.

Mine Workers, United	*12,000,000

Most Figures Pre-Pearl Harbor.

The net asset figures used are in most cases based on data compiled by the naval affairs committee of the house of representatives in 1941, six months before the United States entered the war. Where possible the figures have been adjusted to give later information. The figures for the United Steel Workers are revised up to June 30, 1944. Where total assets are used the figures are based on recent estimates or official union statements.

Nearly all unions have increased their membership and their financial resources since the United States entered the war. The war time labor policy of the government helped this trend. The "maintenance of membership" policy of the war labor board [a form of the closed shop] and the widespread adoption of the check-off system, under which the employer collects dues for the union, have contributed greatly to union prosperity.

Membership Highest in History.

Union membership today is the highest in history. Membership in unions affiliated with the AFL at the end of 1944 is officially reported at 6,807,000. This is an increase of more than 50 per cent over 1941. The CIO claims present membership of 5 million. The railroad brotherhoods, the mine workers, and other independent unions bring the total to an estimated 15 million workers.

Union membership has increased vastly since the passage of the Wagner act in 1935 which led to the aggressive CIO organization drives. The AFL membership has risen steadily thruout the period in which the CIO was launching new unions and building on predecessor organizations.

[An account of the finances of the two largest CIO unions, the auto workers and steel workers, will be given in a subsequent article.]

C.&E.I. to Buy Streamliners for Two Runs

Two streamlined passenger trains have been ordered by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad from the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, Holly Stover, president, disclosed yesterday. Delivery of the trains is dependent upon WPB authorization of their construction.

Both trains will be drawn by 2,000 horse power diesel-electric locomotives of which two have been ordered from the Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation, La Grange.

For Evansville, Thebes Runs.

One train, consisting of seven cars including a diner, will be operated on a schedule of about 5 hours between Chicago and Evansville, Ind., for the 287 mile run, making a daily round trip. It is expected that stops will be made at Chicago Heights, Watseka, Danville, Terre Haute, and Vincennes.

The other train will consist of four cars, including a lunch car, and will make the 378 mile run daily to Thebes, Ill., in about 7 hours. Towns at which stops will be made include Shelbyville, Salem, Mount Vernon, and West Frankfort.

Termed Aid to Volume.

Each of the trains will include the latest improvements developed by Pullman-Standard. They are expected to help the road build its traffic volume in the competitive post-war period.

CIO WINS FIXED TERMINATION OF STEEL CONTRACT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The war labor board today fixed the termination date of the contract between the CIO United Steel Workers and five subsidiaries of United States Steel corporation at Oct. 15, 1946, as requested by the CIO.

The companies involved are Carnegie-Illinois, National Tube, Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad, Columbia Steel, and American Steel and Wire companies.

The companies had asked for an open-end contract, which could be reopened on 10 days' notice and revoked after 20 more days, as customary in the industry. The CIO contended that new features of the contract, such as establishment of a wage study commission and a board of arbitration and conciliation, necessitated a greater element of permanency in it.

WPB PROLONGS BAN ON CIVILIAN OUTPUT SHIFTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The WPB today extended another 90 days its ban on spot reconversion in labor short areas because of "the present critical labor shortage in war plants."

The order bans civilian production under the spot plan in all Group I. and II. labor areas—about 200 industrial centers. WPB said that only when projects are unanimously approved by local production urgency committees will there be any exceptions.

The prohibition does not apply to the rest of the country, but shortage of materials for military requirements is expected to minimize operation of the spot plan everywhere.

Chicago Area Electricity Output Rises 4.1 Per Cent

Chicago area electricity output of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies, excluding sales to other electric utilities, last week increased 4.1 per cent to 202,890,000 kilowatt hours from 194,941,000 a year earlier, Edison said yesterday.

Dodge Strike Persists; Union Quiz On

Detroit, Feb. 28 (AP).—The big Dodge main plant of Chrysler corporation today remained closed for the fourth consecutive day as 13,500 striking production employes continued their defiance of government agencies and their own international union.

In the latest move to end the work stoppage that has halted production of Super Fortress engine parts, anti-aircraft cannon, rockets, and other materiel, the international executive board of the CIO United Automobile Workers summoned officers of Dodge local 3 to a hearing to show cause why disciplinary action should not be taken. After the hearing the board said further action would be taken at its meeting next week in New York.

The international union already had denounced the strike as unauthorized and a violation of the union constitution and its no-strike pledge.

Other Plants Affected.

Meanwhile, the effect of the strike was extended to additional Chrysler plants. Production in the Dodge truck plant was virtually halted with 3,000 men made idle; 500 others had been sent home for lack of parts in other Detroit units, and shortly after noon 500 employes of the Chrysler plant in Windsor, Ont., were laid off. Company officials said lack of materials and small parts normally supplied by the Detroit Dodge main plant forced the layoff.

The strike began Friday following the dismissal of eight men accused by the company of failing to maintain agreed rates of production.

Trolley Strike Continues.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP).—A work stoppage of approximately 325 employes of the Reading Street Railway company entered its fourth day today without settlement in sight despite a regional war labor board order to end the transport tie-up.

Miners Ordered Back.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP).—United Mine Workers district and local officers today ordered 600 anthracite miners of the Nottingham colliery of the Glen Alden company, who voted last night to continue a shutdown which began yesterday, to report for work tomorrow.

BUYER OF WAR BONDS WILL LOSE THRU GOLD PRICE HIKE: BURGESS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—The president of the American Bankers association told senators today that holders of war bonds "will pay thru the nose" if the price of gold were increased. W. Randolph Burgess, also vice chairman of the National City Bank of New York, said boosting the gold price from $35 an ounce would mean dollars invested in war bonds would buy less.

Furthermore, it would have far reaching international effects, he said, adding: "Our gold price is the peg on which monetary stability thruout the world has hung."

Sen. Murdock [D., Utah] suggested the gold price rise as an alternative at a senate banking committee hearing on a bill to reduce the minimum required gold ratio behind federal reserve obligations to 25 per cent. The reserve board asked this action because gold backing is near the present required minimum of 40 per cent of federal reserve notes and 35 per cent of deposits. Burgess suggested that a minimum of 30 per cent might take care of needs. He warned repeatedly against inflationary forces.

BELL & HOWELL FINANCING PLAN WINS APPROVAL

A recently announced financing plan of Bell & Howell company was approved yesterday by stockholders at a special meeting, J. H. McNabb, president, announced. The program provides that of an authorized 60,000 shares of $100 par value cumulative preferred stock an initial 30,000 shares will be sold publicly.

Half of an authorized 1 million shares of $10 par value common stock will be exchanged on a 25 for 1 basis for the outstanding 20,000 shares of $25 par value common stock.

Proceeds of the preferred stock sale will be used in part to purchase the Lincolnwood plant from the Defense Plant corporation, and to build an addition to the plant. A registration statement is expected to be filed with the securities and exchange commission about March 20.

ENGINE USING EITHER GAS OR OIL DEVELOPED

Development of a new sparkless diesel-type engine which is easily convertible from oil to gas and which consumes 25 per cent less fuel when gas-operated was announced yesterday by the Cooper-Bessemer corporation, diesel manufacturer.

The engine, already in production, will operate on a wide variety of fuels, including fuel oil, natural gas, manufactured and coke oven gases, sewage gas, and refinery by-products, the company said.

"To convert the oil engine to the gas engine, it is necessary merely to remove the fuel oil system from the governor, set it in the minimum position and connect the governor to the gas regulating valve," the company said. "This is an extremely simple move and requires not more than a few minutes."

Colorado Fuel and Iron Calls Outstanding Bonds

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—Colorado Fuel and Iron corporation today called for redemption on April 1 at par and interest its $11,035,000 of 5 per cent bonds. Payment will be made from proceeds of a bank loan running for 10 years with an average interest rate just above 3 per cent. The refunding represented the first major step by Allen & Co. and associates since purchase of controlling interest in the company last December from John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Rockefeller Center.

Court to Hear Critics of Two Transit Plans

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Objections to the plans now being pushed as solutions for the Chicago traction problem will be given an airing in federal District court on March 16. This was assured yesterday by an order of Judge Michael L. Igoe, who has control of the elevated and surface lines in bankruptcy.

The order was issued after Atty. William H. Sexton, acting for the city of Chicago, filed with the court the city's plan to purchase both properties for about 87 million dollars, the money to be raised by the sale of revenue bonds secured only by earnings of a unified, municipally operated company.

March 16 Day of Argument.

The same date had already been set for arguments on objections to the so-called trustees' plan, which would unify the traction systems under private ownership and under a franchise ordinance adopted by the council in 1941 and approved by referendum. This ordinance has been extended to May 1 by agreement.

Judge Igoe ruled that objections to the city proposal might be filed within 10 days and argued also on March 16.

Sexton said that the city would not wish to see its plan "shunted aside" in favor of the trustee plan. He said the city was eager to have its proposition submitted as soon as possible, by court order, to the thousands of persons who own securities of the two traction lines.

Time Required Is One Issue.

As matters stand, the city is allowing the 1941 ordinance to remain in force, altho a formal statement of policy has disavowed the belief that any privately owned company can rehabilitate local transportation. The city is formally committed to municipal ownership, either as a single entity or as a part of a metropolitan transit district agreed on by Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green.

There were indications that objectors to the city plan, including attorneys for the "L" and surface trustees, would like to inquire deeply into how long it will take to make the municipal ownership scheme effective. One of their questions is whether the investors would demand court tests of all phases of the plan, which is usually a lengthy process.

Court Hopes for Speed.

Judge Igoe has maintained thruout that the quickest way to get an adequate solution is being followed by the trustees and that the city could purchase the unified company more easily than two companies, once it gets over the legal and financial hurdles.

If all the proposed plans fail, the court probably would have to permit separate reorganizations of the solvent surface lines and the financially embarrassed "L" company.

HOG SUPPLY DIPS TO 5 MONTH LOW FOR WEDNESDAY

Farmers yesterday delivered the smallest Wednesday hog supply since last October and buyers continued to pay the highest prices permitted by law for practically all stock.

An increase in cattle receipts over Wednesday of last week was not enough to offset the volume drop earlier in the week. Packers bought all classes freely at steady to strong prices, and paid more for some.

Total production of federally inspected meat during February was 24 per cent less than in January and 31 per cent less than a year ago, the American Meat institute reported.

STEEL STOCKS LEAD GENERAL PRICE UPSWING

Rails, Industrials Are Prominent.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—The stock market closed the books on February today with a showing of strength in industrial and rail leaders which lifted the averages into new high ground since the autumn of 1937.

The upturn, an extension of the advance of late Tuesday, was led by the steels. Final gains of the leaders ranged from fractions to about 2 points. Dealings totaled 1,960,000 shares, the largest since Feb. 14.

Buying Confidence Gains.

Buying confidence rose after a 3,000 share opening transaction raised United States Steel ⅞ point above yesterday's closing. Bidders apparently concluded the decline last week had removed technical weaknesses, and apprehensions of possible heavy additional taxes on speculation subsided.

Some stocks lost their gains near the finish, but most of the industrial leaders retained the major part of their advances. The Associated Press 60 stock composite showed a closing rise of 0.4 point at 62.1.

United States Steel closed 1¾ higher. Up a point or more were Youngstown Sheet, Bethlehem, Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, and Santa Fe.

RAILS LEAD BOND RISE.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP).—Railroad loans led a generally higher bond market today, rising fractions to about 2 points to a new average high since 1937. Trading expanded as buyers dropped their caution of several days and bid aggressively for a long list of carrier bonds of both solvent and bankrupt railroads. A slow, steady demand for investment rated corporates added to the overall stability.

Sales rose to $11,920,000 from $8,690,000 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails made a new top at 99.6, up 0.2 point.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and turnover increased to 75,000 shares. Active issues included Chicago corporation, up ⅝; Asbestos Manufacuring, down ⅛; Peabody Coal, up ¼; Butler Brothers, up ⅜, and Aviation corporation, up ⅛. Among 14 new 1944-'45 highs were Chicago corporation common and preferred, the latter up 1 to 60, and Union Carbide and Carbon, up 3¼ to 88.

2 CHICAGO BANKS ACT TO INCREASE CAPITAL SHARES

Directors of Merchants National bank in Chicago yesterday authorized an increase in the bank's stock to $400,000 from the present $200,000 to be accomplished thru the declaration of a dividend totaling 1,000 shares and the sale to present shareholders of an additional 1,000 at $100 a share, George R. Boyles, president, announced. The shareholders will be asked to approve the proposal at a stockholders meeting to be called.

Stockholders of the National Security Bank of Chicago voted to increase capital stock from $400,000 to $500,000 by the sale of 1,000 shares at $100, Norman B. Collins, president, announced. The increase will become effective about April 2.

A. O. SMITH CORPORATION.

I have noted the fluctuations in A. O. Smith corporation stock from a 1944 low of 29½ to a recent high of 77. What is the company's earnings record?—P. R.

The largely expanded war time sales and earnings of the company compare with a disappointing profit record during most of the 1930s. Such a situation presents the stock market with a valuation problem as to how much weight to give to the peace time earnings and how much to apparently abnormal results achieved during the war.

As an important manufacturer of automobile frames, the company has favorable prospects for automotive business after the war, but whether earnings will be such as to sustain the current price of the stock is a question of speculative character. A variety of other products is manufactured in normal times, including welded pipe for the natural gas and oil industries, and other oil and industrial equipment. In the last two years, nearly all production has been for war purposes.

Earnings per share on the 498,800 shares in the three months ended Oct. 31 were $2.78. For fiscal years ended July 31, they were: 1944, $12.85; 1943, $11.29, after renegotiation reserve; 1942, $7.42; 1941, $5.50; 1940, $3.39; 1939, 21 cents. A net loss was reported for 1938. Sales increased to $178,112,000 in 1944 from $20,297,000 in 1939. No dividend was paid after 1931 until 1940. One dollar a share was paid in 1944, and the same in 1943 and 1942.

Long term bank loans as of July 31 amounted to 30 million dollars. Net working capital was $53,898,957.

AMERICAN MACHINE AND METALS, INC.

A dividend of 25c per share will be paid on March 30 1945, to stockholders of record at close of business March 10, 1945. To obtain dividend, holders of Voting Trust Certificates should exchange same for Capital Stock promptly.

Mines Seek to Avoid Strife; Pay Parley Will Open Today

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Bituminous coal operators tonight urged John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to lay aside the "usual differences and squabbles" on the eve of contract negotiations and write a new agreement without a strike.

Wage conferences, over which the hint of a strike already hovers, will begin tomorrow. The bituminous contract expires March 31.

The operators made their first concerted reply to Lewis' surprise move of Monday in which he formally notified the government under terms of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act that a "dispute" exists and a strike vote may be taken in 30 days.

Lewis' Doubts Not Shared.

Representing 90 per cent of the operators having contracts with the UMW the statement said the operators "do not share" Lewis' apparent doubt that the negotiations could produce a new wage agreement.

"We enter this conference with a sincere and honest desire to attain in the speediest possible manner, and without any threat or intimation to the country of a suspension of production, a fair and equitable agreement in accordance with the laws of this nation," the operators said.

Object Is to Break Formula.

The UMW Journal, meanwhile, made it clear editorially that Lewis' objective is to overturn the Little Steel formula which has limited pay increases to 15 per cent above Jan. 1, 1941, levels. The miners already have received this "cost of living" raise.

The Journal attacked the recent wage report of the war labor board, which recommended continuation of the formula and the administration's wage stabilization policy as intended to "stymie" the coal wage negotiations "and give to the coal operators the support of government agencies necessary for the operators to completely defy and deny any and all wage betterments asked."

Alco-Gravure Buys Site in Clearing Area

Purchase of a 71/5 acre tract at the southeast corner of Kimball av. and Addison st. by the Alco-Gravure division of Publication corporation as the site for a big post-war plant, was announced yesterday. The property fronting 600 feet on Kimball and 500 on Addison in the Clearing Industrial district's new Addison-Kedzie development, is expected to be improved with a one story building containing 250,000 square feet of floor space.

The company, which prints a number of national publications in addition to commercial work, opened its first Chicago plant in 1924 with 35,000 square feet. In 1934 it moved to its present site, 2436 W. 15th st., where it has 120,000 square feet.

Approve duPont Addition.

Purchase of this post-war building site was one of the largest single land transactions ever made by Clearing Industrial District, Inc., said H. Perry Phelps, vice president. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. was broker.

E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., has been authorized by the war production board to add to its Grasselli unit in East Chicago, Ind., facilities for production of 36,000 tons annually of sulphuric acid.

This extension is part of a major expanded sulphuric acid program affecting also the Stauffer Chemical company plant in Hammond, and the General Chemical corporation unit in South Chicago. These three enlargements will increase the annual sulphuric acid capacity of the Chicago area more than 100,000 tons.

New Plant Commitments.

Investment in new plants announced or under way, thru private or public funds, in the Chicago area in February were $4,542,000, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported. For the first two months of 1945 expenditures or commitments totaled $7,047,000.

The total investment in new manufacturing facilities covering war production and post-war planning in the metropolitan area since July 1, 1940, has reached $1,068,749,544.

SEN. WILLIS PRAISES PAPERS' WAR WORK; ASKS NEWSPRINT AID

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP).—Sen. Willis [R., Ind.] paid tribute in the senate today to the contribution newspapers are making toward winning the war and asked increased consideration for their need of newsprint.

Willis said there were rumors that newsprint allotments would be reduced in the second quarter of 1945, and that studies showed government requirements would increase 1,250,000 pounds in that quarter.

"I do not intend to criticize here the various agencies of government which deem it so necessary to carry on their propaganda as well as their essential needs during these war times, but I do contend that the government is making a grave mistake if it restricts to a larger degree—than it is willing to assume for itself—the use of paper for newspaper publishing."

NOMINATE THREE NEW DIRECTORS OF PEOPLES GAS

Election of three new directors at the annual meeting of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company on April 5 was proposed yesterday by the management in a proxy statement sent to shareholders.

Nominated to fill vacancies on the board were William McCormick Blair, president of William Blair & Co., investment banking firm; Henry T. Heald, president of Illinois Institute of Technology, and James S. Knowlson, chairman and president of Stewart-Warner corporation.

The vacancies were created by the deaths of Donald R. McLennan and Robert F. Carr, and by the retirement of Charles B. Goodspeed because of ill health.

Directors nominated for reelection were Sewell L. Avery, chairman of United States Gypsum company and Montgomery Ward & Co.; Edward E. Brown, chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago; Howard W. Fenton, chairman of Harris Trust and Savings bank, and George A. Ranney, chairman of Peoples Gas.

GRAIN FUTURES END STRONG AS SHORTS COVER

Strength in securities and inflation talk lifted grain futures prices yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Short covering led by professional traders disclosed a lack of pressure early, and the markets advanced quickly, with rye in the lead. Rye was up 1¼ cents a bushel at one time, but outside buying failed to follow the advance and gains were trimmed.

Closing sales on wheat futures were at gains of ¼ to ½ cent. Corn rose ⅛ to ⅜, oats ⅜ to ⅝, rye ½ to ¾, and barley ¾ to 1 cent.

CIGARET SALES RECORD SET BY AMER. TOBACCO

Net Earnings Slide to $3.74 a Share.

The American Tobacco company produced and sold more cigarets in 1944 than in any previous year despite "limitation on production caused by factors beyond its control," George W. Hill, president, reported to stockholders yesterday.

George W. Hill.

Dollar sales broke all records, totaling $533,373,788, up $3,951,684 from 1943. Net earnings, however, declined to $19,902,189, or $3.74 a share of common and common B stock, from $22,534,201, or $4.32 a share.

Increased army and navy needs and inability to expand output enough to keep pace with demand because of war conditions made it "necessary for the company to ration its cigarets and other products to civilian customers," Hill said.

War Deliveries Near 1¼ Billion.

Aviation corporation reported deliveries of 1 billion 233 million dollars of war products last year, 14 per cent more than 1943. Its backlog of orders

1945 Red Cross War Fund

It Costs $6 a Second to Keep Your Red Cross at His Side

There are 727 American Red Cross clubs in overseas operations, serving or entertaining an average of 7,130,000 fighting men every month.

In addition, there are 194 "clubs on wheels" that carry service to our men in the field. Wherever they are, the Red Cross is at their side.

More than 6,000,000 volunteers produce millions of comfort kits, surgical dressings, and garments. They pack food parcels for prisoners of war.

Many families, with men in service, today face difficulties. The Home Service helps thousands of service men's families with personal problems.
